WOMAN INSANE

Aroused Residents of Gorham St. by Wild Cries

She Was Found a Raving Maniac — Child Found Dead in Her Room — Had Been Dead About Three Days

The residents of Gorham street, in the vicinity of the court house, were rudely aroused from their slumbers early this morning by the cries of a woman in apparent distress. She appeared at a window and was wildly excited. The people who occupied the same premises, 259 Gorham street, offered her assitance, but when they arrived they found the woman a raving maniac. Upon further investigation, a two days' old baby was discovered in her room.

The dead body of the child was removed to the undertaking rooms of M. H. McDonough & Sons, and the woman was taken to the city hospital.

From the facts that could be gathered by the police it seems that the woman has been in this city for the past three months. She belongs in the town of Leominster, and as the authorities assert has a husband living there by the name of Jesse Moody.

Dr. Meigs made a superficial examination of the body and said the child had been dead about three days, probably from birth. He would not make any further statement without an autopsy.

FAMILY TROUBLES

Were Aired in Police Court This Morning

In police court this morning was a light docket, and the court's time was taken up with a number of domestic disputes and family troubles. William J. Lally was before the court for the non-support of his better half, and Judge Pickman after quite an investigation, decided that William was guilty, and advised him to lead a different life. The sentence imposed by the judge was a suspended one of six months in jail, and during that time he will be in the custody of the probation officer.

Rather Go to Jail

George F. Droletter was also given a suspended sentence of six months for non-support of his wife, but he said he would rather serve three months than live with her again, and the court granted his request. There was a conference afterwards which may result in a better understanding.

Sent to Jail

Stephen Shaughnessy was in a very bad condition, and the court thought he ought to have a rest at the Lowell Jail for the term of 10 days.

A Milk Case

Mrs. C. A. Frost was charged with keeping milk under the standard and she pleaded not guilty, and said she had no intention of doing anything wrong. Inspector of milk and vinegar Masters testified as to the analyzation of the samples, and Deputy Inspector James E. Hill told the court just how he received the samples. The court took the matter under consideration.

The Drunks

Charles H. Crocker, Sarah A. Donahue, Joseph Dupuis, Edward Bonley, and George Watson were respectively fined six dollars, and the court after hearing the testimony in Watson's case, revoked the sentence and gave him in charge of the probation officer.

There were seven $2 fines, and seven released by the probation officer.

CONDITION CRITICAL

Little Boy Fell a Distance of Forty Feet

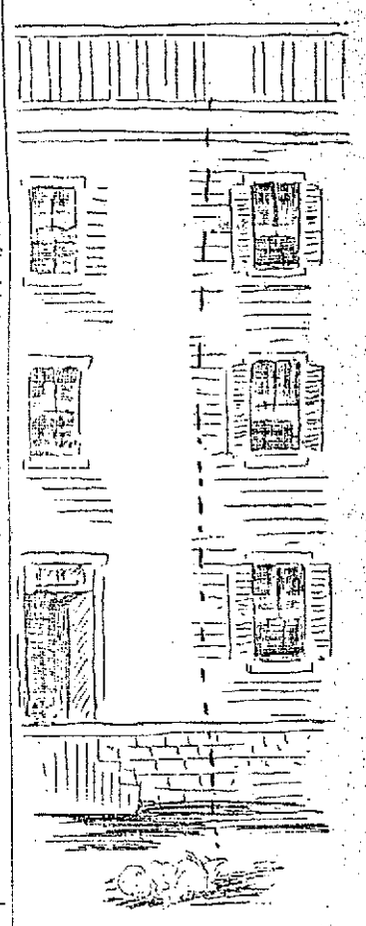

Thomas Fox, 18 months old son of Joseph Fox of 27 Rogers street, is lying at the point of death at the home of his parents, as a result of his falling from the piazza on the third story in the rear of the building and striking on his head on the concrete pavement below.

The accident happened last Saturday and the child is still unconscious, suffering from a concussion of the brain, partial paralysis and probably internal injuries.

Dr. J. B. O'Connor, who has been attending the child, has done everything in his power for the little one and entertains hope for its recovery.

The accident was a peculiar one. The Fox family occupies the third floor of the building at 27 Rogers street, close to the Concord river. The railing on the piazza in the rear of the tenement occupied by the Fox family was loose and carpenters were sent to the place by the owner of the house to make repairs. One of the slats in the railing which was broken was removed by the carpenters and before it was replaced the child managed to make his way to the place and crawl through.

He fell to the ground, striking on the concrete walk in the rear yard. Several women rushed to the yard and found the boy in an unconscious condition. He was picked up and carried to the tenement occupied by his parents. Dr. O'Connor was summoned.

Says Do it Now

Mr. Whitcomb, superintendent of schools, calls attention to the fact that it is never too early to vaccinate the pupils who are now on their vacation. Mr. Whitcomb never called the attention of parents to this matter so early in the year, but he thinks it is well that they should have it in mind. He says that the law demands that the child shall be vaccinated and quite frequently they come to school at the close of the holidays without being vaccinated and that means that they will lose anywhere from two weeks to a month with sore arms.

P. H. McDonald of Methuen, formerly of Lowell, was a visitor in this city today.

FEW TRAINS RUNNING

Strike Has Left Grand Trunk Practically Idle

MONTREAL, July 19.—The strike order issued on the Grand Trunk road at 9.30 last night and instantly obeyed by fully 3500 conductors and trainmen, whose demands for wage increases had not been met by President Hayes of the railroad at the final conference yesterday, caused practically complete paralysis of the freight movement throughout the greater part of the system today and few if any passenger trains were put out.

All suburban trains on the Grand Trunk railroad running into Montreal were cancelled this morning. Thousands of business men and others were compelled to find other means of reaching the city. Milk trains were also cancelled and a large section of the city is threatened with a milk famine.

When the 1500 employes of the Grand Trunk shops at Point St. Charles reported for work today they found the shops surrounded by a cordon of 350 policemen and notices posted that the shops were closed in consequence of the strike of conductors and trainmen which started last night. The men returned to their homes peacefully or gathered in groups discussing the situation.

Union officials here say that the object of the Grand Trunk in closing its shops is to force the shop employes, many of whom are old trainmen, to take the strikers' places. The union officials say that if this is the intention it will not succeed.

The International Limited, the Grand Trunk's fast through train to Detroit and Chicago, left at the usual hour, 9 o'clock this morning.

PARTLY TIED UP

BUFFALO, July 19.—As a result of the Grand Trunk strike the Wabash railroad is partially tied up. Wabash train number 1, a fast express for St. Louis, which arrived at 2 o'clock this morning from the east, did not get away for nearly seven hours. Other trains were delayed but not seriously. J. J. Mossman, general agent for the Wabash along the Niagara frontier today said: "The strike on the Wabash is the result of the Grand Trunk strike and we were powerless to prevent. On its line from Buffalo to Windsor the Wabash is operated in connection with the Grand Trunk and we are bound with the Grand Trunk agreements so there was no choice about the matter."

SOME TRAINS CANCELLED

MONTREAL, July 19.—Shortly before noon today the Grand Trunk officials claimed that the strike of conductors and trainmen inaugurated over its lines last night had not had the effect of tying up its service, but admitted that some local trains had been cancelled and that freight traffic had been practically compelled to come to a standstill. They insisted that all important passenger and mail trains were moving as usual. The International Limited from Montreal to Chicago, the company's most important day train, left Bonaventure station here as usual at 9 o'clock this morning in charge of a non-union crew.

The company expects to replace the strikers by recruits from the shops.

The strike embraces all the company's lines from Portland, Maine, to Chicago. It involves nearly 5000 trainmen and conductors. In addition the action of the company in closing its various shops throughout Canada and Michigan throws probably 10,000 additional workers out of employment.

The strikers state that they are less concerned in the stopping of passenger traffic than in tying up the freight traffic important in crop carrying, and this, they say, they have succeeded in doing completely.

Both sides appear to be out for a determined struggle. The union officials say they will accept nothing less than the wages and conditions prescribed in the standardization rules and the company says it cannot meet any such conditions.

The company is congratulating itself on the eleventh hour settlement made with the telegraph operators yesterday which removes that branch of the service from the participation in the trouble.

The principal points involved in the strike are, in addition to Montreal, London and Stratford, Ont. and Port Huron and Battle Creek, Mich., in all of which places the company has workshops.

Appeal has been made by the men employed in the shops at Montreal to the mayor and city council for arbitration under the Mulock law. These city officials will tender their offices to both sides today but it is not believed that it will have any result.

The Grand Trunk early posted notices at Bonaventure station that all local trains had been cancelled. Another notice warned all persons not having business on the premises to leave.

PRACTICALLY IDLE

BOSTON, July 19.—Some 700 miles of railroad in the New England states was made practically idle today by the strike of conductors and trainmen declared last night throughout the entire Grand Trunk railroad system. This 700 miles in the strike here is merely New England's small share in a strike of 3500 employees on 4700 miles of trackage composing the great Grand Trunk system.

The strike in New England affects 166 miles of the main line of the Grand Trunk road, extending from Portland, Me., across the northern portion of New Hampshire and a small piece of northeastern Vermont to the Quebec boundary line where it continues to Montreal. In the Central Vermont and New London and Northern roads, which are controlled by the Grand Trunk, there are 536 miles of track extending through Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The number of trainmen on strike on the New London and Northern and the Central Vermont branches of the system is about 350. Another hundred may be on strike on the main line of the main road between Portland and Montreal.

Because of the strike the railroad shops at St. Albans, Vt., where 150 men are employed were closed this afternoon. The shop employees before closing time adopted a resolution condemning the strike of the trainmen.

Freight traffic was tied up generally throughout the New England states where the Grand Trunk and its allied lines operate. Passenger traffic was moved more or less regularly though generally passengers, like perishable freight, were "subject to delay."

Some of the passenger trains were manned by strike breakers while others were taken care of by station agents and clerks from the offices of the company. Others had their crews recruited from the company's shops.

All of the through trains were delayed anywhere from half an hour to four or five hours. Local passenger trains ran nearer to schedule although far from their customary regularity.

Montpelier, Burlington and Island Pond felt the strike keenly. At Island Pond the strikers were joined by the men who worked in the railroad shops. St. Albans was in better shape, from the company's standpoint, than any other place in Vermont. The trains in St. Albans, although manned by emergency crews, ran on almost the usual time with some slight delays.

Freight was not moved at all today. This was due, it was said by railroad officials, not so much on account of the strike on the Central Vermont line, as because there was no freight being received from western points over the Grand Trunk lines.

MOTHER SAVED HIM

FLINT, Mich. July 19.—The brakeman on a westbound Grand Trunk passenger train which passed through Flint this morning was attacked by strikers here. They threatened taking him off the train and rushed for the car which he was on. Just as they were mounting the steps a woman who said she was his mother stepped on to the platform and shouted that before they could touch her son they must deal with her. The strikers retreated and the train pulled out. As it left the mother stepped off.

SCOTLAND YARD

LONDON, July 19.—Scotland Yard today obtained what is believed to be a clue to the disposition of the bones with which the flesh unearthed in the cellar in Hilldrop Crescent once formed the body of Belle Elmore, wife of Dr. Hawley Crippen. The detectives ran across a woman who said that Miss Leneve had been her friend and had talked to her in confidence about the mysterious visits paid by Dr. Crippen to the neighborhood of Regents park. The theory of the police is that the bones of the murdered woman may have been carried in some small parcels to Regents park and deposited in the Regents canal. This development has strengthened the belief of Miss Leneve's friends that she is innocent of any knowledge of the crime. At the inquest yesterday the physicians testified that the flesh had been carefully and skilfully carved from the skeleton. It has been deemed of great importance to discover the missing members, including the head, hands and feet, in order to complete the body and thus establish legally the case of murder.

With the evidence at hand the police have not as yet been able to determine so much as the sex of the victim. The authorities today offered a reward of $1250 for information leading to the arrest of Dr. Crippen. He left his office at 1 p. m. on July 2, since which time no positive trace of his whereabouts has been discovered. Supt. Forest of Scotland Yard does not admit that any important discovery has been made.

There is still hope that the fugitive pair may be found aboard the Red Star liner Kroonland.

STRIKE DECLARED

Grand Trunk Conductors and Trainmen Quit Work

MONTREAL, Que., July 19.—Conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont railways to the number of 2500 obeyed an automatic strike order at 9.30 o'clock last night.

On Sunday when the members of the strike committee left here each man carried a sealed envelope to be opened at that hour calling a strike unless a telegram had previously been received which, upon comparison with a copy enclosed in the envelope stated otherwise.

No such telegram was sent and the strike became effective at 9.30.

Under the terms of the strike order trains which began their runs before 9.30 are to be taken through to the terminal by the men in charge.

After that the company is expected to look after its own interests.

Offered 18 Per Cent

The happenings of the day previous to the strike becoming effective were explained as follows in a statement issued by the company at 6 o'clock:

"Messrs. Berry and Murdock, with a committee representing the Grand Trunk trainmen and yardmen, met the officers of the company this morning and advised that they had received the authority of a large majority of our trainmen to order a strike in the event a settlement was not reached with the company.

"A general discussion of the situation took place, during which we advised them that we were not in a position to do more than had been offered in our former proposition, giving the men an increase of approximately 18 per cent; with the further promise that they should be given the same standard rate of pay as the Canadian Pacific as soon as the Grand Trunk, through its relation with the Grand Trunk Pacific, is in a position to participate in the higher rates obtaining on traffic in the northwest.

"By reason of the completion of that road and the obtaining of through rail connections between the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific, which should be accomplished within two years, it was explained that if there was any question of indefiniteness as to the date when the standardization was to take effect, we would agree that it should be not later than Jan. 1, 1913, or earlier if the board of railway commissioners, upon hearing of the facts in the case, should so determine.

"This was not considered satisfactory, and the conference was adjourned until the afternoon, when we were handed the schedule of rates of pay and rules which are practically the eastern standard.

"This reply was made that we could do no better than what had already been offered, and we had no further proposition to make.

"Should a strike be ordered we feel confident that it will be found that many of the employees of the company in the train service will disregard such strike and will continue service with the company. We have a large number of applications from other parties desirous of obtaining employment, and shall also recruit largely from our own forces in other departments.

Will Close All Shops

"In the meantime, we shall make effective the rules and rates of pay offered the employees. Pending settlement of matters all shops on the system will be closed."

To this President Hays added:

"We have done the best we can, having regard to the interests of the shareholders and of the men themselves. We have offered substantial increases in wages. For instance, we give conductors between Montreal and Portland an increase from $110 to $135; between Montreal and Brockville from $90 to $140 a month; between Montreal and Toronto from $110 to $140, and baggagemen from $70 to $85, and brakemen from $55 and $60 to $80.

"On mileage rates conductors of through trips are to be raised from 2.90 to 3.36 cents a mile, and brakemen from 1.90 to 2.25 cents.

"On the runs between Montreal and Ottawa conductors are to be raised from $110 to $140 a month; baggagemen from $75 to $85, and so on.

"When I put this to the men I said further that this was a very large increase, but that if they did not think it satisfactory there was still another alternative. I said I was willing in such case to go to the arbitration of a board of expert railway men as to whether or not the proposition was fair and would be willing to abide by their decision.

"Further, I said to the representatives of the men: 'Suppose a strike is brought on, with all its disturbance of conditions and business. What shall we do eventually but settle it as I have proposed? You will have displaced a great many men, created great losses all over, and got no further ahead.' But they refused to listen to this."

Trainmen's Side of Controversy

Vice-President James Murdock of the Brotherhood of Trainmen said, in explaining their side of the case:

"We met Mr. Hays today, when he elaborated somewhat upon his original offer to the extent of saying he meant by it the award of the board of conciliation, and that the standard wage for the territory should be adopted by January, 1913.

"Mr. Hayes was told that the subcommittee and other officers could not believe that they had the right to set aside the strongly expressed position of the men, even if they were inclined to do so.

"With this the conference adjourned until the afternoon, when the sub-committee and officers presented to Mr. Hays the lowest possible basis of settlement that could be considered. That proposed to put into effect a temporary modification of the standard until January 1, 1911, in the territory east of the Detroit and St. Clair rivers.

"Mr. Hays took that under advisement and called the sub-committee back at 5.30, when he presented the company's proposition, which he said was their estimate of the award of the board of conciliation.

"The committee at a glance found that it was very far from being anything like the board's award and that in the great majority of cases where rates had been specified these rates are very much below those suggested by the board.

"For instance: On the Portland-Montreal runs we had Mr. Hays offering $2.25 per 100 miles to a passenger conductor, instead of $2.45 8-10, as filed in the board's award. We find in Montreal-Toronto passenger runs he offers conductors $2.31 per 100 miles, instead of the board's award of $2.45 8-10. The minimum standard monthly salary for a passenger conductor in the territory is $125 a month; the board recommended $101 a month. Mr. Hays suggests very many runs at $100 a month and some as low as $80 a month. The minimum monthly pay for a passenger brakeman recommended by the board was $56; Mr. Hays offers in many cases $55, a monthly increase of $5 on a $50 salary.

"Further, in his proposition Mr. Hayes ignored entirely the board's recommendation to standardize conditions on the Grand Trunk and its recommendation to put into effect the mileage basis of pay in either passenger or local freight service. Instead, he proposes to perpetuate existing conditions and in some ways to make them much more objectionable, since there would be greater inequalities than in the past.

Trainmen Have $1,000,000 Fund

Asked as to what backings the international unions would have for such an extensive strike, Mr. Murdock said:

"There is a protective fund of $1,000,000 back of us now, and there will be no difficulty in getting $350,000 a month to keep the strike going. The full protective features of both the conductors' and trainmen's unions will be given with payment of strike pay of $50 a month to members of the Order of Railway Conductors and $35 a month to members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen."

The Central Vermont, which is controlled by the Grand Trunk made an effort to prevent its men going out by appealing to Washington under the terms of the Erdman act. Vice President Murdock of the trainmen yesterday afternoon received a telegram signed by Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, and Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, stating that the railway had made this application and expressing their willingness to use their offices in the direction desired. To this Mr. Murdock replied:

"Our organization always is willing to accept your friendly offices, but situation is such, considering attitude of the company, as to leave small hope for settlement as a result of mediation. Men leave this service this evening."

The order closing the shops all along the lines of the Grand Trunk will affect over 5000 men, of whom about 700 are in Montreal. It is understood that a considerable number will be offered the chance to take the place of striking conductors and trainmen, some of them being qualified by experience on the road.

Shopmen Seek Arbitration

In addition to the Montreal shops, the Grand Trunk has shops at Toronto, Stratford, Battle Creek, Mich.; Port Huron, Mich.; Gorham, Me., and Portland, Me. The men in the local shops yesterday afternoon were engaged in signing a petition to the city council, asking that body to petition to the government to appoint a board of arbitration under the Mulock act. This act preceded the Lemieux act, under which sat the board of conciliation whose award the men refused to accept, although it was signed by their representative on the board.

The Mulock act does not, however, go as far as the Lemieux act, inasmuch as it imposes no penalties whatever, but simply provides for an inquiry to be made in the matters at issue, provision being made for the appointment of an arbitrator should one of the parties refuse to name one.

The Grand Trunk made application to the minister of labor for the appointment of a board of arbitration under this act, but the minister declined, considering the reference under the Lemieux act sufficient. Under the Mulock act a municipality affected may make application for the appointment of arbitrators and the intention is to make the city council, if possible, repeat the demand which the minister of labor already has refused in the application of the railway company.

The report of a second board of arbitration could not affect the company's position and might strengthen it. The only passenger trains to leave Bonaventure depot after the strike order went into effect, the Toronto express and local, pulled out without any delay due to strike. The express was manned by a crew of French Canadians, old employes of the company, not members of the Brotherhood. A number of strikers watched it depart, but there was no demonstration of any kind.

126 QUIT WORK

DURAND, Mich., July 19.—Although at least 126 trainmen and conductors on the Grand Trunk railroad here went on strike last night, conditions are normal today. There have been no disturbances. It is understood strike breakers are operating the trains which appear to be running on schedule time.

HAVE EMERGENCY CREWS

ST. ALBANS, Vt., July 19.—The strike on the Central Vermont railroad, a branch of the Grand Trunk system, was making its power felt throughout Vermont today. Some of the passenger trains from this city started on time equipped with emergency crews recruited from railroad offices and shops. The engineers and firemen are not concerned in the strike, consequently there was no lack of motive power. The morning train from the south, due here at 5 a. m., was more than four hours late in reaching this city.

During the forenoon the railroad officials had nothing to say regarding the movement of freight. It was expected that a statement bearing upon this phase of the strike might be issued later.

NO FREIGHT TRAINS

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—Although passenger trains on the Grand Trunk railroad in and out of Portland were running practically on time this forenoon, no freight trains were moving. The principal business of the railroad on this division is the freight traffic.

NO CANDIDATE ENDORSED

HELENA, Mont., July 19.—The democratic state committee last night turned down all propositions looking to the endorsement by the state committee of any democratic candidate for United States senator and set the convention for Sept. 8 at Livingston.

Nearby cottages fell in heaps of ruins while other buildings lost windows and doors. The explosion caused a panic on the opposite side of Lake Constance.

IDENTIFIED AS BANDITS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 19.—Two men giving their names as James C. Brown and Charles Dunbar, who were arrested by a constable here last night for horse stealing, have been identified as the bandits who held up and robbed the Japan fast mail on the Southern Pacific at Goodyear on April 17. The numbers on the revolvers led to their identification. They had been stolen from a Riverside store shortly before the train robbery. Dunbar, aside from answering the general description of the train crew as to appearance, has a gold tooth as did the smaller train robber.

BODIES FOUND FLOATING

NEW YORK, July 19.—The bodies of two men, believed to be members of the crew of the freight steamer H. F. Dimock, plying between here and Boston which was badly damaged during the pier fire of the Metropolitan S. S. Co., Saturday, were found floating in the North river at the foot of Fulton street today. The bodies apparently were those of a fireman about 35 years of age and of a deckhand or longshoreman about 28 years old.

FALSE HAIR HARMFUL

Now that so much artificial hair is the fashion, it is more necessary than ever that women should keep their scalps thoroughly cleansed because the present style of hairdressing is very heating and irritating to the scalp. The result is that dandruff forms, the scalp itches and the hair falls out. To guard against this condition, the scalp and hair should be washed frequently with Birt's Head Wash, a delicately perfumed preparation which has the formula printed on every package. If there is any doubt in your mind about the formula being good, ask your doctor what he thinks of it. Here it is: Refined Soap, Salicylic Acid, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil and Glycerin. DR. FRENCH

INJURED BY FALL OF A CLOCK IN CAR

Dr. C. E. French met with a painful accident Sunday night while riding on an electric car which was passing through Centralville. He occupied the front seat and was struck on the head by a register clock which became dislodged probably by the swaying of the car.

The clock struck the doctor a glancing blow on the head. He was stunned for a time, but soon recovered. He was attended by Dr. Carolin and will require to keep quiet for a few days. He is now resting at Gloucester.

MRS. H. H. ROGERS SCARED

PITTSFIELD, July 19.—Mrs. Henry H. Rogers narrowly escaped a serious accident on West Stockbridge mountain Sunday night. She was being driven with a party of friends in a big touring car over the crest of one of the steep hills at a high rate of speed on a very narrow highway.

Going up to the other side of the mountain was a motor car owned by George Cox of New York, who is spending the summer at his country place in New Lebanon, N. Y. Cox's chauffeur saw the rush of the Rogers car over the summit and pulled out into the extreme edge of the narrow road, but not far enough to avoid a collision with the Rogers car, which was badly damaged.

A protecting knoll in the road prevented the Rogers car from being overturned. All of Mrs. Rogers' party were badly frightened at the collision.

COL. ROOSEVELT

To Take Stump For His Nephew

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 19.—Ex-President Roosevelt yesterday issued his first formal statement written with his own hand since he returned from abroad a month ago yesterday.

It concerned the political future of his nephew, Theodore Douglas Robinson, who, Mr. Roosevelt hopes, will be elected to congress, if nominated, from the 27th New York district, comprising Herkimer and Oneida counties. This is Mr. Roosevelt's statement:

"I distinctly state that I will not take part in any fight for any congressional nomination."

After the nominations are made, however, Col. Roosevelt says he may have a good many things to say. He will speak for many of the candidates he favors and may speak against others.

As an evidence of his interest in the congressional fight and also as outlining his attitude, the former president issued a formal statement as follows:

"My brother-in-law, Douglas Robinson, and his son, my nephew Theodore Robinson, were down to see me. My brother-in-law, who has a big farm in Herkimer county which he inherited from his mother and which has been in his family for generations, is a member of the Herkimer county grange, which is arranging for the grange picnic to be held in Utica at the end of August, and he came to extend me the committee's invitation to speak at the picnic. I have accepted.

"My nephew, Theodore Robinson, is a candidate for the congressional nomination in the 27th district, comprising Herkimer and Oneida counties. He told me that he did not desire me to take any part whatever in the nomination, because he especially desired this matter should be settled by his neighbors in Herkimer and Oneida absolutely without interference of any kind, but he desired to know whether in the event of his nomination I would come up and speak for him. I told him that of course I would, for I have long hoped that he would go into active politics, because I have a high regard for his judgment and ability and he and I are in accord in our views on public questions."

Robinson is making his canvass on a progressive platform. His opponent has the support of the Sherman-Wheeler republicans of Oneida and the Strobel following of Herkimer. Robinson declares that he represents the principles advocated by Gov. Hughes.

When Col. Roosevelt was questioned regarding the interview given by Odell, in which it was set forth with more or less sarcasm that now that Roosevelt is back the city, state and nation can rest easy, as they will be taken care of, the colonel laughed heartily.

What he said in response was not for publication. When pressed to make some public reply, he said that persons throughout the country would have to become very personal and hit hard before he would make any response.

The colonel showed great interest in the speech of Uncle Joe Cannon on the defeat of Bryan and an interview by John W. Kern. He wishes to study Bryan's predicament thoroughly before expressing any opinion. As regards the situation in Indiana he may have something to say as to the relative standing of insurgents and regulars within a few days.

Col. Roosevelt expressed great interest in the question of the New York governorship and a possible candidate for the senatorship, but believes it as yet too early to announce what position he will take.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A well attended meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., was held last evening, with President Dennis Lynch in the chair. Considerable business was transacted, 20 applications for membership being received and 10 initiations conducted. Dennis Lynch and D. J. Murphy were elected delegates to the state convention to be held in August, with John P. Sheehan and John Walsh as alternates. The following were elected as aids to the chief marshal: John B. Clancy, John McOsker, Jr., Edward Mooney, J. Carlin, Jr., T. D. Finnegan, P. Conroy, Philip Harley, T. O'Connor, J. Cullinev, F. Carolan, John Daly and Dr. Halloran. Dennis Lynch was elected marshal of the division.

HORSE DISEASES

Advice As to Treatment of Them

Azoturia, poisoning by Albuminoids, really a liver disease, but affects the urine to such an extent that it may be said to combine both liver and kidneys and is caused by high feeding of nitrogenized food, full feeding, keeping in stall without exercise. This disease is never seen in the horse at pasture. It shows itself only after the horse is put to work, say driven a hundred yards. The animal goes down behind, though in mild form it may be seen simply in one limb, showing lameness. The lining of the eyes and nose is seen to be dusky brown in color. The severe form of this disease usually comes on after a couple of days of rest, with heavy feeding, heaving flanks, dilated nostrils, face expression pinched, sweating and trembling. The muscles become rigid and swelled, causing the animal to move stiffly. Hence many call this trouble "Stiffs" but it is only a few moments before the animal is down. The urine if voided is highly colored, red, black or dark brown. Proper treatment will usually effect a cure, but delays and carelessness lead to tardy recovery and partial paralysis of the hind quarters ensues, while the muscles up the front of the stifle, waste and atrophy.

To prevent this sort of trouble look after and reduce the feed when the animal is not worked and never allow the horse once having had this ill to be left a single day without exercise and a warm bran mash or a laxative of half pound Glauber salts.

Mild attacks may be treated by giving a laxative, light exercise, an ounce of saltpeter and a tonic powder. In severe cases give a physic with about 4 drams of bromide potassium and one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, hot fomentations to the loins. Rub the limbs well to stimulate circulation, continue feed and treatment for a laxative condition.

Spasms of the neck of the bladder are caused in the main by hard and continuous driving, cold storms, draughts when perspiring or fatigued, diuretics, stone in the bladder, etc., indicated by stretching and straining with little or no voiding but slight dribbling in vain efforts of pain and groans, with many symptoms of colic. The position of fore legs extended forward and hind legs stretched backwards is indicative of the animal suffering from bladder troubles of this sort. This is often coupled with impaction of the bowel as well. In such cases use a catheter when possible. Otherwise spread clean straw or litter under the animal. Pour water in a small stream from one pail to another establishing sympathetic action. Rub the abdomen with wisps of straw and give warm, soapy water enemas. Have the water quite blood warm. Paralysis of the bladder may follow or exist with spasms of the neck of the same. Occur from tetanus, rheumatism, hemeplegia, disease of the posterior and of the spinal marrow, broken back, palsy of the tail and hind limbs shown by constant dribbling, when the neck is included, running down the thighs. If the neck is not involved the urine is retained, until the bladder is largely extended, when it is voided in a gush, though the bladder is not emptied. Suppression of urine is caused by stone obstruction, consequently this confusion should be overcome by actual examination along the whole course of the duct. Treatment is of avail only in certain cases. Sprains of the back or disease of the spinal cord, which are remediable, should have proper treatment, and the catheter frequently used. If the bladder trouble exists after recovery of the spinal trouble, apply mustard and water or a good stimulating liniment to the back part of the belly in front of the udder, until the hair stands on end. In the horse apply same between the thighs, well up and downward. Warm water enemas and a laxative condition, tonic the system and as an experiment electricity may be tried.

NEW MOTH PEST

Has Appeared in the Vicinity of Medford

Medford's latest moth pest may yet be the worst. Although the smallest as an individual, he bids fair to become the biggest in numbers and the most dangerous in his depredations. He may be the insect that will damage the American forests more seriously than any other pests that have preceded him. He is a miner and works inside of the leaves.

From the fact that there is no known way of attacking the caterpillar without destroying the trees, he is a particularly difficult proposition to deal with. Fortified by his position during his whole working life against the attacks of birds or other parasites and also against the weather or any poisonous spray that may be directed at him, he is safe from ordinary assault.

The new caterpillar and moth are practically unknown. Whether they bear a name or not cannot be stated. They were discovered two years ago this spring by Gen. Samuel C. Lawrence in his woods, eating away at the inside pulp of the leaves of some small oak undergrowth. Since then they have spread over many acres of his estate and the adjoining Fells reservation, and now there are more millions of them in the woods than there were persons found by the United States enumerators in the whole 1910 census.

The caterpillar in question is from 1-8 to 3-16 of an inch long, a little flat, translucent creature of a yellowish green or darker color that eats his way between the upper and under epidermis or skin of the leaf. What he devours is the parenchyma or soft pulp of the leaf. Wherever he works, his traces are visible in the rapidly spreading brown spots on the green leaf which gradually curls up as the life is sucked or eaten out of it. As many as 100 of these tiny caterpillars have been counted in a single oak leaf which goes to show the plentifulness of the insect.

The oak shrubs seems to be the first infested. Then the pest spreads up into the trees, working his way toward the top. He seems to have a special fondness for red and white oaks, but walnut and linden trees have also been found infested.

As the worm is inside of the leaf it can readily be appreciated why the arsenate of lead that is sprayed on the outside of the leaves apparently has no effect on them. This fact also explains his impregnable position so far as the birds and various other parasites are concerned. The insect is a "miner" and works all the time below the surface.

About May 20 last the big tower on Ram's Head hill and the adjacent trees were fairly covered with a shower of the little white millers of this particular insect. About that time the eggs must have been laid,—nobody knows where,—and later the little caterpillars must have come into existence. During the last four weeks their presence has been noticed with an ever increasing spread till now there are hundreds of trees the leaves of which are entirely brown.

Splitting open the brown spotted leaf, you will find half a dozen or several score of the tiny caterpillars under the thin upper skin. Just now the caterpillars are mostly full grown, a large portion of them are pupating and a few have transformed into flying millers. In two months the cycle from miller to miller has been completed. How many cycles take place in the season will be known later.

Under the microscope the full grown caterpillar apears to be something less than 3-16 of an inch in length. Except for his flat appearance,—his width being four or five times his thickness and one-fifth of his length,—he looks like the rattler of a microscopic rattlesnake. There are 11 of these articles or rattles with a sharp little bead at one end and a dark little tail at the other. As the caterpillar matures he seems to grow darker. When in the pupa state he is something like the color of iron rust or a little redder. This pupa is encased in a small film of white silk like the finest waxed paper which is attached to the inside of the heavier underskin of the leaf. This white film or cocoon is circular in form and about one quarter inch in diameter.

In the same leaf this week may be seen a large number of crawling caterpillars, also pupae in all stages, including some where the wings are fast developing. Some of the youngest caterpillars are almost as colorless as small shrimp. Minute spots, apparently of black excrement, are scattered about on the lower thickness of the leaf.

To see the creature at work you must get your leaf and split it open by lifting off the thin upper skin,—a trick which is easily done, thanks to the skill and thoroughness with which the insect does his work.

It may be that some device may be arranged to destroy the multitudes of millers that will soon be flying and thus bring about a reduction in the possible numbers of the next generation. But the problem is not an easy one.

These little miners are not the only new moth pests that have been discovered in the Fells. Last year and this year it was found that the tops of some of the red oaks on the Lawrence estate were being defoliated. Gen. Lawrence took a large quantity of the caterpillars to the state forester who sent them to William F. Fiske, the entomologist at the Melrose parasite station. Mr. Fiske has given considerable study to these caterpillars and found that there were 12 varieties among the specimens submitted. Just what they were he was unable to state, but whatever their names they are exceedingly hardy and voracious, too.

On July 9 of this year some strange caterpillars were found on the big elm tree in front of Gen. Lawrence's stable. As they were entirely unlike any caterpillars that the men had seen before a large number of specimens were sent to the Melrose parasite station. A single twig one foot long contained 135 caterpillars. At Melrose they were recognized as the "morning cloak butterfly" caterpillars, which are common in the western states, where they are extremely partial to willow trees, but are seldom seen in the east. They were more than one inch in length and had two rows of horns or spines extending along their back with 11 in each row.

PRESIDENT TAFT

Paid a Visit to Eastport, Me., Today

EASTPORT, Me., July 19.—When the presidential yacht Mayflower pointed her way up the Lubec narrows this morning a president of the United States for the first time in history reached the northeast corner of the country. Eastport was appropriately excited. Flags and bunting were displayed along the waterfront and the entire population was early astir in getting the little town in readiness for the coming of the distinguished guest. Soon after 8 o'clock people from the surrounding villages began to arrive. Some came in farm wagons, some in automobiles. The Mayflower was not due to arrive until 11 o'clock and the president was not expected ashore until 2 p. m., but Water street and the docks were thronged by 9 o'clock. From the moment the Mayflower reached the open sea she became the target for inspection by passengers and crew of every passing vessel. The yacht arrived off Eastport early this morning but loitered in the open sea while the party breakfasted.

ANOTHER FIGHT

BETWEEN JEFFRIES AND JOHNSON SEEMS LIKELY

CHICAGO, July 19.—Plans for another battle between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson were outlined in a letter by Joe Choynski. "I'm so firmly convinced that Jeffries can whip Johnson the best day he ever lived, that I'm advising him to bet $50,000 of his own money and then challenge Johnson, the winner to get the entire receipts and the side bet," declared Joe last night. "Jeffries' defeat is told in two words—'mental collapse.' True, he was in excellent condition physically, but his mind and heart were affected and when he entered the ring his brain refused to act. For weeks and weeks before the fight Jeffries received hundreds of letters daily from admirers imploring him to whip Johnson," continued Joseph. "They told him that he was 'the hope of the white race.' That preyed on his mind. He did not confide his troubles to his camp associates and the weight on his mind simply unnerved him."

THE SMOKE LAW

Inspector Greenleaf Gets After the Mills

He Charges Violations and Says He Means Business — He is Without Office or Help From the City, But Will Enforce the Law

Despite the fact that the city council has refused to appropriate $200 for necessaries and that he is denied an office at the city hall, Roy M. Greenleaf, Lowell's smoke inspector, is going right ahead and is determined to do business. There is no pay attached to the job of smoke inspector and it became known today that Mr. Greenleaf was paying rent on a typewriter at home.

"Yes, it's true that I am paying rent for a typewriter with which to do the city's work. Mr. Dowling, clerk of committees, very kindly suggested that I might use his typewriter, but I do not want to put him to that trouble and the chances are that when I would want it he would be using it.

"I think it is pretty small potatoes on the part of the city council to delay the appropriation of $200 for the few things that I require. The mayor recommended to the city council that the money be appropriated, but it would seem that the board of aldermen is not in sympathy with the mayor. They do not take kindly to his suggestions. I suppose that's what you call petty politics, isn't it. The fate of the appropriation suggested by the mayor is now in the hands of the committee on appropriations and it remains to be seen what disposition will be made of it.

"The only encouragement I receive on the job comes from Mayor Meehan. I had a talk with him this morning and told him what I was doing and intended to do. I told him that I had communicated with and received letters from mill agents and that I intended to enforce the smoke law. He told me to be sure that I was right and when convinced that I was right, to go ahead. He said he would stand back of me."

Mr. Greenleaf then referred to correspondence he had with mill officials. He wrote to Agent Wadleigh of the Merrimack mills advising that official that the smoke inspector had noted a violation of the smoke nuisance at the Merrimack mills. The following reply was sent the inspector by Mr. Wadleigh:

Lowell, Mass., July 1, 1910.

Mr. Roy W. Greenleaf, Office of Smoke Inspector, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: I have your letter of June 27th in which you specify dates on which this company violated chapter 102, sections 122 and 126 of revised laws, as regards smoke nuisance. We are very much surprised to note the extent of violation and do not see how we can possibly agree with your letter. We have had a custom in vogue here for years of comparing our smoke every half hour with the Ringelmann chart and noting same. Record of June first taken by Ringelmann chart, does not agree with your letter. We might possibly have a better understanding of the matter if we understood your method of observation. At your convenience, would you mind calling at the office, either to see the writer or our chief engineer, Mr. Pilkington, and compare notes as to methods used, etc. I will say that frequently this company is blamed for black smoke, when in reality it come from a chimney almost in direct line with ours, but immediately back of it, and owned by another concern. I assume that you are entirely familiar with the Lowell chimneys, and it could not have been a mistake in your report based on the wrong chimney.

Yours truly,
J. C. Wadleigh, Agent.

Inspector Greenleaf's Reply

Lowell, Mass., July 11, 1910.

Mr. J. C. Wadleigh, Agent, Merrimack Manufacturing Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of July 1st, questioning the correctness of my observations of your chimney on June 1st. I am very glad to explain my method of observing up to the present time. In the near future I intend to adopt a closer system of grading smoke for use in which I shall employ an instrument which is being designed by a Boston gentleman.

All of my observations have been made from the city hall tower, where I can have unobstructed view of all chimneys; and in the absence of a Ringelmann chart, for which I have sent but have not as yet received, I have graded smoke as of but three densities—gray, dense gray, and dark gray being equivalent to No. 2, or 40 per cent, dense being equivalent to No. 3, or 60 per cent, and dark being equivalent to No. 4, or 80 per cent black of the Ringelmann chart.

ROY M. GREENLEAF

It is not the policy of this office to persistently worry or badger any corporation or concern by unnecessary or unwarranted demands, but to require and expect compliance with the requirements of the law by whatever method they see fit, tending to the reduction and final elimination of the smoke nuisance as it exists at the present time. No suggestions are offered other than a fine gas analyzer or C O 2 recorder would prove a revelation as to coal waste.

I am familiar with the chimney to which you refer and I assure you that I have not overlooked it or mistaken it for your own at any time.

I shall be pleased to accept your invitation to call at an early date, and I thank you for the opportunity.

Very truly yours,
Roy M. Greenleaf,
Inspector.

The following letter from Agent Southworth of the Massachusetts mills to the smoke inspector is self explanatory:

Lowell, July 6, 1910.

Mr. Roy W. Greenleaf, Smoke Inspector, City Hall.

Dear Sir:

I received from you several weeks ago a copy of the smoke laws, and although I have not been notified that the Massachusetts chimneys are offenders, I think I may as well explain to you the situation.

We are just about to start on the foundation of a new steel frame boiler house and coal bunker, with chimney stack adjoining. The boilers we are to install for the relief of our present boilers will be equipped with stokers and will be very nearly smokeless, and the starting of them up which I am afraid will not be much before next spring, will relieve our old boilers which have no stokers so that they will smoke less than they do.

Under these circumstances we must either smoke as we are doing for some months to come, or shut down our mills. If you will let me know whether you have marked our chimneys as offenders, I will apply for a permit until next May.

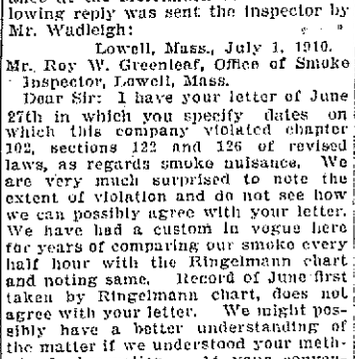

Yours truly,
W. S. Southworth, Agent.

Mr. Greenleaf has not replied to Mr. Southworth's letter but will do so in a few days.

Since Inspector Greenleaf addressed his communication to Agent Wadleigh of the Merrimack mills he has received a Ringelmann chart from Washington, D. C., and he is thoroughly familiar with it. He is a firm believer in the abatement of the smoke nuisance and to say that he is well posted on the question is putting it mildly. He is posted on scientific investigations and called the reporter's attention to the following item in the New England Engineer:

"Scientific investigations in Leeds, England, made by a professor of the University of Leeds, show that in the business section about 300 tons of soot per square mile reached the ground."

Mr. Greenleaf claims that the United States Geological survey claims that 90,000,000 tons of coal are used on 51,000 locomotives in the United States. Of this coal 40,371,000 tons are wasted. It is estimated that 10,080,000 tons are lost by the smoke.

EXPULSION OF JEWS

At the Rate of Forty-Five a Day From Kiev

KIEV, Russia, July 19.—The expulsion of Jews from Kiev is at the rate of forty-five individuals a day. From July 4 until July 15, 497 were expelled by what is known as the second method. That is they were actually forced to leave town. During the same period 1121 persons were expelled by the first method, which in effect is a warning for their departure but permits them to remain for a settlement of private affairs.

During the twelve days mentioned there were 165 expulsions from Solomenka and 151 from Demieffka. Since May 14 when the imperial decree ordering that all Jews who could not establish a legal right of residence elsewhere should be returned within the pale of the restricted district of the Polish provinces and the Ukraine became effective, there have been expelled from this city, Solomenka and Demieffka 3001 persons by the second method and 3641 by the first method. However, in making this total of 6642 allowance must be made for a large percentage of duplications in the count. Many have been expelled only to return and be sent away again while the expulsions from Solomenka and Demieffka are largely composed of those who were originally expelled from this city. Officers of the Jewish relief committee of Kiev stated today that, roughly estimated, seven hundred families had been already sent out of the city and four hundred families were still subject to such treatment. The larger figures furnished day by day indicate the mobility of the expelled, many of whom persistently return to Kiev to face repeated expulsion.

In the case of the latter the authorities have adopted drastic measures, the returning ones frequently being accompanied from the city by gendarmes and in many cases banishment by "etappe" has been resorted to. This system provides for the shipment of batches of Jews to their final destination under escort of relays of guards.

HIGHLAND LIGHT, July 19.—A man adrift in a dory was picked up off Pamet river at 9 a. m. today by the steam yacht Sagamore, bound from Boston to Vineyard Haven. The men is believed by shore observers to have been a fisherman. The dory was drifting toward the breakers when the yacht was seen to pick it up.

GIRL WAS DROWNED

BRUTAL OUTRAGE

Autoists Fatally Injured Two Men and Left Them to Die

LINCOLN, R. I., July 19.—The body of James O'Rourke, 55, a laborer, employed at the Lonsdale bleachery, was found early today on Lonsdale avenue, while on the other side of the road James Larkin, 35, another laborer, was found probably fatally injured. Both men had evidently been struck by an automobile, the occupants of which had stopped and laid the victims by the roadside and left them there to die. It is believed the auto was going in the direction of Woonsocket and the police of that city and the intervening towns have been asked to look out for the car.

Cuba produces no finer tobacco than that in the Blackstone cigar

The filler is the best Havana leaf—the same grade as that in the most famous cigars in the world.

The Sumatra wrapper is light and neutral in taste. This is why the Blackstone cigar gives the real Havana flavor without the clear-Havana's after-effect of nervousness. The fastidious smoker with a Perfecto taste will readily learn to like the

Lowell Adds Another Victory to Its Credit

BROCKTON, July 19.—Lowell batted Sweeney, the Brockton pitcher, hard in the game yesterday and won 8 to 1. Nine of the 14 hits made by the visitors were recorded in the third and fifth innings when the scoring was all done. Yount held Brockton down to four hits. The score:

DIAMOND NOTES

The Fall River Herald gives this report of repartee which took place in that city the other day, when Worcester was playing there: "Balk," cried Page, the second baseman for Worcester. "Guess not," replied Rorty. "Balks apply only to base runners." Page got a couple of players to take sides with him and insisted that he was right. He got so huffy about it that Burkett could stand it no longer. "Aw, what are you giving us?" shouted Burkett across the diamond. "You're wrong, Page, and the umpire is right. Go out and spend a dime for a rule book before you start to tell us anything about rules." Page subsided, but he holds to the opinion that the umpire was wrong.

Haverhill fans think that Cain looks the goods at third corner. In the last two games he has had seven chances, which he has accepted without a miscue. He also has made four runs, three hits for a total of four.

Pipe artists in Pittsburg have sent out the story that Detroit is to replace the Pirates in the National league as representatives of the Smoketown men beginning with the season of 1911. Just plain bunk, because the Pirates have not yet hit their stride.

A Fall River newspaperman says that Manager O'Brien is to have a conference with Tom McCarthy, scout for the Cincinnati National team, and talk over the Bedlont deal. The last time Cincinnati was in Boston, the business manager of the team, Frank Bancroft, said that Mr. McCarthy was not scouting for his club. He was last season, but his services closed with the season in October.

Provoked by the action of Johnny Evers when the Trojan kicked himself out of the double header on the west side, Chicago, thereby disorganizing to a large degree the veteran machine work of the club, Manager Chance last night promised a fine of $100 for the next member of his team to be ordered from a game. He says he is going to break up the habit among his players of roaring at every decision, and will himself, hereafter, do all the talking.

The New Bedford Standard says: "It seems peculiar how some club series go. Manager O'Brien over in Fall River can dress anything up in a uniform, bring it over here and have better than an even chance of winning, although New Bedford is ahead in every other series. Up in Haverhill they can dress any kind of an amateur up and trim Lowell, Haverhill having won seven out of nine this year against Gray's team, and having lost every other series."

A dispatch from Washington says: So far as the catching department is concerned it is already assured that the Nationals will be better fortified behind the bat next spring than they have ever been before. Charley Street has never had good assistants to help him out, and this has thrown the bulk of the work on his shoulders. Not since he came here has he had any one who could come anywhere near filling his shoes. But next spring Street will have Ainsmith and Henry to help him out, two willing youngsters of ability. This thing of carrying a lot of has-beens on the catching staff does not help any team, and the Nationals have been fortunate indeed in not having Street out of the game with any serious injury.

Mathewson of New York has 83 strikeouts to his credit, and Earl Moore of Philadelphia, 77. Moren of the Quakers has 75 and Rucker comes next with 65. Fred W. Walker, former university of Chicago star pitcher, yesterday signed with the New York Giants and joined the team at Pittsburg. "Buggs" Raymond says Walker will develop into a "wonder." Johnson struck out thirteen men in eight innings against St. Louis, just before the senators left for Detroit, but the game was called with the score a tie on account of rain. The Browns tied the score on a wild throw by Johnson.

EX-MAYOR DEAD

Lawrence Loses a Pioneer Citizen

LAWRENCE, July 19.—Ex-Mayor Robert H. Tewksbury died at his home, 20 Berkeley street, at 9.30 last night of a complication of diseases. His death removes one of the city's pioneer citizens.

Robert H. Tewksbury was born in Hopkinton, N. H., April 11, 1833, son of Joseph and Eliza Tewksbury. His father's family were among the early settlers of Manchester, Mass.

Coming to Lawrence he secured employment with the Essex company, which controls the waterways of the city, and originally owned a large part of the land included in the city limits. For 35 years he was cashier and bookkeeper of the company. Thirty years of this time the transferring of land sold by the company was a part of his duties. These transactions covered a large area of both manufacturing and residential sites.

He acted as a city official a number of years, culminating a service from 1863 to 1875 as treasurer and collector of taxes with a term as mayor in 1875.

From 1875 till 1880 he was a member of the water board and in more recent time, when a commission was decided upon to have charge of the construction of a new high school, Mr. Tewksbury was again called into public service as a member and served five years as its secretary. This commission had charge of the construction of the A. B. Bruce school and the Gilbert E. Hood building.

He was president of the Lawrence savings bank and a deacon of the Lawrence street Congregational church. He was for many years secretary of the old residents' association and when the 50th anniversary of the city was observed, he was selected to deliver the anniversary poem.

Mr. Tewksbury had twice married, his first wife, who died many years ago, was Miss Angelia C. Hawthorn, to whom he was married in 1859. In 1894 he was married to Miss Amelia Burkinshaw. She and his two sons, Willis H. Tewksbury and Robert L. Tewksbury, survive.

No citizen was held in higher esteem and his familiarity with the growth of the city gave him a valuable fund of information regarding its history, which was often sought. As a tribute of respect the fire alarm was tolled 77 times on word of his death being received at headquarters.

LONG DELAY

IS LIKELY IN THE CHARLTON CASE

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Whether or not Porter Charlton, accused of having murdered his wife at Lake Como, Italy, must face trial in Italy, gives promise of being a long-drawn-out affair. The intention of the state department to wait for the New Jersey courts to act on the question of his extradition before passing on the intricate problems of reciprocity and mutuality of interpretation of the treaty was expressed yesterday by an official of the department. The statement was reiterated that the department has not passed on any of the problems reported to be involved in the case.

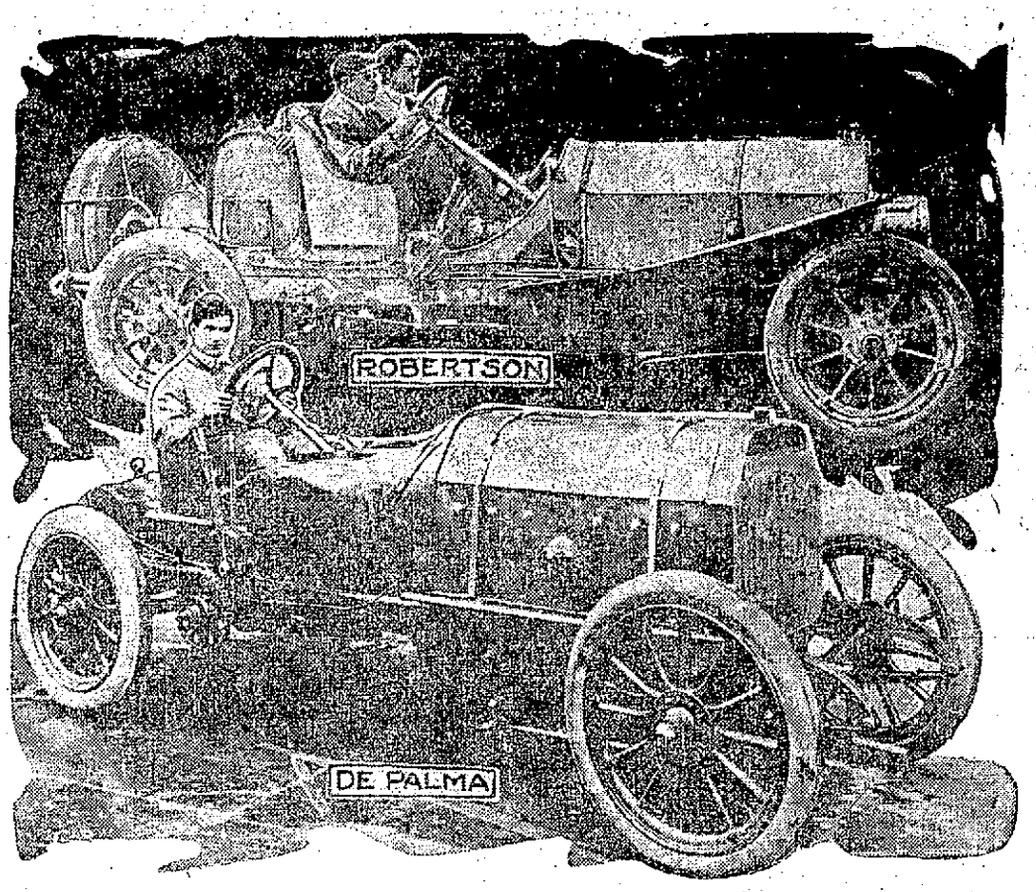

It became known yesterday that should Charlton be liberated by the New Jersey court, he may have to face further extradition proceedings in another court. Precedents are said to have been found for repeated attempts to procure a court order for extradition.

In event of favorable action on the extradition papers by the court or of adverse action, it is regarded as probable that it will be months before official channels are cleared of the case.

COLORED TEAMS BARRED

CHICAGO, July 19.—Colored baseball teams, including the Cuban ball teams, will hereafter be barred from participation in games with teams of the Chicago baseball league. The reason assigned is that Cuban teams have been overrunning territory. The bars are put up against them.

TWO FAMOUS DAREDEVIL AUTO DRIVERS WHO ARE TO MEET IN SPECIAL EVENT

NEW YORK, July 19.—George Robertson and Ralph De Palma, the demons of motor racing, at last are to meet in a speed duel that is calculated to become historic. These two speed kings are down to furnish the feature event in the race meet to be held at Brighton Beach here July 23. Robertson and De Palma are rated to be the two most daring, nerviest and dexterous pilots of high speed cars in this country. Each has a string of victories to his credit, and each has scored records on road and track, yet the two have never come together in an actual match where conditions were equally favorable to both. De Palma has gained many laurels as a track driver, while Robertson is the premier American when it comes to road racing. Barney Oldfield was a wonderful track pilot, but has never been very successful in a road contest. It will be intensely interesting to see whether a man who is essentially a road driver can reverse the process and defeat a motordrome champion at his own game. Robertson thinks he can, but De Palma dissents from this opinion. The match is to be in five mile heats, best two in three, from flying start. These are conditions that are favorable to both drivers, and, moreover, the distance is ideal to get all the speed possible out of the machines and all of the daring possible out of the drivers for every inch of the way. Robertson will drive his ninety horsepower Simplex car, built in America, and De Palma the Fiat "cyclone" built in Italy.

PRESENCE OF MIND

SAVED A HAVERHILL MAN FROM DEATH

HAVERHILL, July 19.—Plenty of pluck and presence of mind saved E. N. Wiswell of this city from death in the Merrimack river late yesterday afternoon when in midstream his open power boat caught fire and he was forced to flee for his life.

Wiswell was going up river in his boat, which was expensively finished, shortly before 5 o'clock, and just before he got ready to anchor opposite the ball grounds on River street he accidentally stepped on a match. In an instant there was a flash and the entire boat, kindled by gasoline, was in flames.

At first Wiswell tried to beat out the fire, but seeing the uselessness of such an attempt, he jumped overboard and swam 200 yards to the shore. Bruised and burned, he made his way to the car barns where he telephoned for the combination chemical truck. While awaiting the arrival of the fire apparatus, Wiswell swam out to his rowboat and managed to tow the power boat to the shore, where the fire was extinguished. During all this time he paid no heed to his burns, but assisted the firemen in extinguishing the flames. The boat was valued at $275 and was insured.

BITTEN BY SNAKE

WEST HOLYOKE MAN MAY NOT LIVE

HOLYOKE, July 19.—Oswald Nestman, aged 35, is at the point of death this evening at his home in West Holyoke, about four miles from this city, as the result of a bite inflicted by a tame rattlesnake Saturday afternoon.

He came to Holyoke with his tame snake and while exhibiting to some friends on the street, it turned and bit him in on the hand. He called on a doctor, who advised him to go to the Pasteur institute in New York, but he went home instead and yesterday his arm and face were badly swollen. Slits were cut in his arm to let out the poison, but last evening he was delirious and had to be tied to his bed. He wanted to get out and kill the snake, which, however, had already been killed.

Nestman had won quite a little reputation as a snake charmer and had made a pet of this snake for several months, carrying it about on his person, and fondling it from time to time. His physicians last evening gave little hope of his recovery.

ENGLISH SOCIETY LEADERS TO JOIN IN NATIONAL ARCHERY MEET

CHICAGO, July 19.—Chicago is to be the scene this year of the thirty-second annual tournament of the National Archery association of the United States, which is scheduled for Aug. 16, 17, 18 and 19. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held, the events, both scratch and handicap, being provided for in equal numbers for women and men. The opening day, Tuesday, Aug. 16, will be the big day of the meeting, three women's rounds and three men's rounds at various distances being down for decision. The annual business meeting will be held Thursday, Aug. 18, at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Vendome hotel. On Friday morning, Aug. 19, the tournament will be wound up with a luncheon and the awarding of prizes in the Chicago Archers' refectory. A number of prominent English society members have promised to attend the meet. Mrs. Elton Lee, the winner of many English prizes, will be among the fair shooters.

A. O. H. DELEGATES

New England Men Reached Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., July 19.—The New England special bearing 92 delegates to the national convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians arrived in Portland yesterday morning and proceeded at once to "wake things up." Many of the delegates like National Pres. Matthew Cummings are from Massachusetts and a number from Boston. The New England delegation is also the largest attending the convention.

They have pledged their united influence to the support of Pres. Cummings in his campaign for re-election and expect to be victorious in face of opposition from Joseph McLoughlin, the candidate from Philadelphia, and from James J. Regan, national vice president, from St. Paul, Minn., who aspire to presidential honors.

It is expected that the New England delegation will reaffirm their pledges of support to Pres. Cummings' candidacy which they made before leaving their homes. Cummings also has the support of all the remainder of the old national board except P. T. Moran, who has become a candidate for the national vice presidency since Regan announced his presidential candidacy.

Those who strongly opposed Pres. Cummings during the past four years are now supporting him. It is generally urged that every act of his has been for the benefit of the A. O. H., and that opposition was engendered because he refused to allow the Clan-na-Gael to dictate the management of the A. O. H.

Among Pres. Cummings' most ardent and active supporters are Mgr. Teeling from Lynn and Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell, Massachusetts state chaplain.

The New England delegates are more than pleased with the hospitality of Portland people and delighted with the perfect climate. The nights are cool enough to make blankets comfortable while the days are golden with sunshine, yet are never uncomfortably warm.

They will tour the city today as guests of the Commercial club and then will be guests of the club at a reception and luncheon in the evening. The entertainment committee has taken pains to see that the New Englanders should enjoy the fine fruit and roses for which Portland and Oregon are famous.

They were very busy yesterday discussing the great purpose of the meeting, namely, the affiliation of all Irish organizations that work for the independence of Ireland. The plan was originated in the Philadelphia county board and has the endorsement of all national officers and the opposition only of the Clan-na-Gael.

It is considered vitally important to decide once and for all whether the A. O. H. shall control its own affairs or whether it considers the body named as the most important.

At the banquet in the armory, Portland's biggest building, on Thursday night, two archbishops, five bishops and 60 priests, besides the delegates, will be guests.

Mrs. Ellen Ryan Jolly of Pawtucket, R. I., is campaigning vigorously for national president of the ladies' auxiliary, but the present national president, Miss Anna C. Malia of Scranton, Penn., has a strong following.

SIX MORE BATHS

To be Installed at the Eliot School

Six more baths are to be installed in the basement of the Eliot school. This conclusion was arrived at yesterday, and the playground committee of the Middlesex Women's club will pay the freight. Boys and even girls resort to and flounder about in the mud pond on the common. Almost everything imaginable is thrown into that pond and it is unsanitary. The supervisors and the committee talked the matter over and yesterday the committee consulted with the park commission and the school authorities with the result that the baths will be installed at once and it is hoped that some plan can be devised whereby the girls can use the showers at stated times.

TO DIVIDE $7,000,000 ESTATE

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—By the death of Mrs. Mary Leidringhaus at Jamestown, R. I., yesterday the $7,000,000 estate of her husband, the late William F. Neidringhaus, will revert to her four sons and six daughters to be divided among them. Mrs. Neidringhaus died of heart disease at her summer home.

William F. Neidringhaus died July 13, 1908. He was founder a few years ago of Granite City, Ill., as an industrial community and his estate consisted chiefly of stock in the National enameling company and real estate there and in St. Louis.

Granite City now has a population of more than 15,000. Mr. Neidringhaus directed in his will that a trust company be formed to be known as the W. F. Neidringhaus trust company to manage the estate. The four sons, George W., Albert W., Oliver E. and Lee I. Neidringhaus, were named as directors of the company to manage the estate.

The trust company was ordered to pay Mrs. Neidringhaus $20,000 a year from the income of the estate and the house at 5105 Lindell boulevard was left to her.

The death of Mrs. Neidringhaus will end the trust and the property will be divided among the 10 heirs according to the provisions of the will.

OLD LANDMARK DOOMED

NEWPORT, R. I., July 19.—The shot tower which has stood for many years on Thames street and the old buildings idle for years are to be torn down and one of Newport's old landmarks will go. The government made some of its shot here many years ago, and at one time it was the most noted plant in this country.

It was once struck by lightning and storms and weather having had their effect the owners decided as a matter of precaution to pull the tower down.

DANIEL W. FIELD

Is Going to School Again

BROCKTON, Mass., July 19.—Daniel Waldo Field is going to school again. It is not surprising that a man wants to go to school, but when that man is a millionaire and forty-five years of age then it is different. Mr.

DANIEL WALDO FIELD

Field has just completed his plans for entering Harvard and will be the oldest student in the university. In his youth he was unable to obtain the education he desired, but that did not keep him from making a success in the business world. Mr. Field is a millionaire shoe manufacturer, and he says that he wants to enjoy his millions with an education that will enable him to glean the better things in life.

ASKS DIVORCE

MISS FELD NAMED AS ONE CO-RESPONDENT

SWAMPSCOTT, July 19.—Interest was added yesterday to the divorce proceedings which Eben B. Phillips of this town has instituted against his wife, by the filing at Salem of a divorce libel, brought by Gertrude May Phillips of Swampscott against her husband, Harry F. Phillips, who is a son by a former marriage of Mrs. Eben B. Phillips.

In the libel, which asks the divorce on grounds of alleged statutory offences, Inez Feld of this town is named as a corespondent, and it is further set forth that there are other corespondents whose names to Mrs. Phillips are unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Phillips were married in Chicopee some years ago. The bride was a Marblehead schoolgirl, Gertrude May Mace, who attained considerable reputation as an amateur actress. The marriage was unexpected and occasioned much surprise in circles where the couple were well known.

ANDREW T. SAWIN DEAD

NORTHAMPTON, July 19.—Andrew T. Sawin, aged 70, who was for 15 years ticket agent of the Boston & Maine railroad here, died last night after a long illness at his home on Butler place. He was born in Wendell, lived at the home of Albert Clapp at South Deerfield in his youth and was first employed by the Boston & Maine at the station in that village.

He came to this city about 35 years ago and was baggage master at the passenger station and cashier in the freight depot before his appointment to be ticket agent about 20 years ago. He retired because of failing health five years ago.

Mr. Sawin was a member of the First Congregational church and Nonotuck lodge of Odd Fellows. He is survived by a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Charles E. Tilley of Providence and Miss Nina Sawin of this city.

FOUR WOMEN INJURED

NEWPORT, R. I., July 19.—During an auction sale of furniture of Chas. Astor Bristed of Lenox yesterday afternoon, to satisfy claims of Newport merchants, a section of the front piazza of the Hodson cottage on Bellevue avenue gave way.

Mrs. Dennis Shanahan, Miss Bessie Shanahan, Mrs. Thomas Coen and Mrs. Elmer Gifford, all of Newport, were carried to the ground below, 15 feet, and landed in a heap.

Miss Shanahan suffered a sprained ankle and Mrs. Coen was cut about the face. The other women were severely shaken.

Dr. Philip E. Clarke chanced to be among the purchasers and attended the women. Later they were taken to their homes in an automobile by Lawrence W. Coudray.

On another section of the same piazza were women of St. George's church serving tea to the auction patrons.

HAD FINE TIME

MEMBERS OF INDUSTRY COUNCIL ENJOYED AN OUTING

Two hundred or more members of Industry council, Royal Arcanum, held an outing in Richardson's grove Sunday and had a most enjoyable time. The affair was planned several weeks ago and a competent committee was named to take charge of the arrangements. The members left Merrimack square in special cars at 10 o'clock and upon arrival at the grove proceeded to a program of games that furnished amusement and excitement. At 2 o'clock a dinner was served that satisfied everyone present. Then there was more entertainment provided and just before starting for home a sumptuous supper was enjoyed. The affair was a most successful one and the members were loud in their praise of the work of the committee in charge.

MAN WAS KILLED

In South End Lodging House in Boston Last Night

Alleged Assailant Raved After the Death Shot and Called For Morphine—The Victim Sought Interview Due to Wife's Story

BOSTON, July 19.—James F. Farrell, 42 years old, married and living at 906 Washington street, corner of Broadway extension, South End, where he conducts a lodging house with his wife, shot and killed James H. Lawson, 28 years old, in the house at the address named above, at 8 o'clock last night.

Farrell was almost immediately arrested by Patrolman Thomas P. Healey of the Lagrange street station, but not without a battle in which he drew his revolver.

Patrolman Thomas P. Healey was pulling in a duty call at box 28 at the corner of Washington street and Broadway extension at 8.02 o'clock when he heard two revolver shots. Screams of women followed and Patrolman Healey instantly located the cries in the lodging house. He ran to the doorway at 906 Washington street and hurried up the stairs.

When he entered a room on the third floor he found a man upon the floor bleeding from the ears, nose and mouth and another man sitting disconsolate upon the side of a bed, and two women wringing their hands, weeping and screaming.

Patrolman Healey grabbed the man who was seated upon the bed and started down the dark stairway and to the box with him.

When the policeman and his prisoner reached the second landing, which was dark, the prisoner stopped and began to resist the officer. He managed to reach his hip pocket and draw his revolver.

With a quick blow of his fist, Patrolman Healey knocked the revolver out of Farrell's hand and he then secured the weapon and put it in his own pocket. He went to the box and sent in a call for an ambulance and the patrol wagon.

When they arrived he sent the prisoner to the station house in charge of the wagon man and went back to the house. Lawson was taken to the City hospital.

Lawson was dead when he was picked up from the floor and after the ambulance arrived at the hospital the body was sent to the morgue. Lawson died from an internal hemorrhage.

Mark for Two Bullets

Lawson was struck by two bullets.

The first one lodged in his left jaw toward the point of the chin.

The second bullet passed through the right arm and into the arm pit, severing an artery and causing an internal hemorrhage.

Every exit to the house was promptly guarded by the police following the shooting and the witnesses detained. All of the witnesses were taken to the Lagrange street police station and were separated from each other so that they could not discuss the facts in the case among themselves.

Chief Inspector Joseph Dugan was sent for and arrived at the station house in a short time.

In the meantime, Farrell, booked on the charge of murder, was raving like a madman in his cell.

He begged for cigarettes and morphine. In the opinion of the police he was under the influence of drugs. He was sallow, haggard and his eyes had a wild stare and the pupils were much distended.

"O, officers, get me some morphine and some cigarettes and I will be satisfied," he shouted. "I will not care about anything else."

Like a Man in a Trance

Farrell behaved like a man in a trance when he was brought into Deputy Supt. Lawrence Cain's office to be interviewed by Chief Inspector Dugan. He wore a gray summer sack suit, a Panama hat, a high collar and a white four-in-hand tie. He has a sandy mustache, sandy hair and large blue eyes. He is a French Canadian and came from Ottawa, Can., a year ago.

Farrell begged again for drugs, but when somewhat calmed, he said:

"Mrs. Lawson is my wife's niece. On Sunday night I had to call in two policemen to throw two men out of my house. They were making bother and attacking me.

"I bought a revolver today to protect myself with. I feared Lawson would kill me because I had trouble with him on Sunday night.

"Tonight Lawson came into my room and began to abuse and upbraid me about his wife. He told me that if I had any arguments with her that I must have them in his presence. Then he struck me. Then I drew my revolver and shot him and the women came into the room and then the policeman. I do not remember any more. I was afraid he was going to kill me."

Mrs. Lawson, who was the first witness to tell her story to Chief Inspector Dugan, said:

"Mr. Farrell came into my room Sunday night and began to upbraid me and he struck me in the face. I told my husband about it. Tonight my husband went to Mr. Farrell's room to talk to him about it and to ask him to tell his troubles to him and not to me.

"I tried to persuade him not to go, but he was offended at the manner in which Mr. Farrell had treated me and he insisted upon going. He went and I soon started to follow him upstairs.

"Mr. Farrell's room is on the third floor. When I reached the landing outside the door I heard a revolver shot and a scream. I hurried and I also heard Mrs. Farrell, my aunt, coming upstairs behind me.

"Just as I entered the room, Mr. Farrell fired the second shot and I saw my husband fall to the floor. In a moment Mrs. Farrell entered the room and we screamed and wept. Then the policeman came and took Mr. Farrell away and others came and removed my husband."

The Trouble on Sunday Night

One other witness, a young man who is a lodger in the house, told of the trouble on Sunday night, and he also said that he heard loud words between Lawson and Farrell last night, and that later he heard the two revolver shots and saw the results of what happened.

The revolver taken from Farrell by Patrolman Healey is a new 38-caliber five-barrel affair. Three cartridges remained in the weapon and the shells of two that had been discharged.

Farrell also had a small paper box filled with morphine tablets in his pocket when he was arrested. He had evidently taken some of them previous to the shooting.

Farrell is employed as a piano tuner and polisher, and Lawson was employed in an Atlantic avenue shipping office. Lawson came from Nashville, Tenn.

The scene at station 4 was a most pathetic one last night while the investigation was in progress. The women did not know the shooting was fatal until Lieut. Goodwin and Sergt. Martin King found it necessary to break the news to Mrs. Lawson. She is a tall young woman of comely appearance. When told of the death of her husband she almost fainted.

Mrs. Farrell walked the floor of the guardroom constantly, weeping and wringing her hands. She said Lawson was a good man, industrious and sober at all times. She begged to be permitted to go to the hospital to see him, and when she was finally told he was dead she was almost prostrated.

Preparing Case Against Farrell

The witnesses were permitted to return to their home after the investigation, but Sergt. King and Patrolmen John Moran and Patrick Healey went out in search of two who left the house immediately after the shooting.

Farrell will be brought to police headquarters this morning to be re-examined and to be photographed and measured. He will be arraigned in court later and his case will be continued for an investigation and the preparation of the case by the police.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the vicinity as a result of the shooting and a throng of men, women and children gathered in the streets.

Patrolman P. J. Healey was congratulated by his superiors last night for his work in arresting Farrell and in securing the witnesses to the shooting.

THAT BEAM HOUSE

Petition of Remonstrants to the Board of Health

Following is one of the petitions to the board of health relative to the proposed beam house of the American Hide & Leather company on Perry street. The addresses of the signers are omitted. It may be stated that the petition was lodged with the board before the recent hearing. It is as follows:

The undersigned, residents, property owners and tax payers, disturbed and alarmed at the position taken by the American Hide & Leather company relative to the erection of a beaming plant as shown by their letter to your body dated April 25th ult., their attitude being in effect that while it is insisted that your board has no authority or jurisdiction over the matter, the company nevertheless desires your approval to their erecting such a plant on the location described in said letter, and seek from you a formal permit therefor, do hereby emphatically protest against the establishment of any such plant, however modernized, upon the location suggested, or any other location in that immediate vicinity; and respectfully pray that you withhold your approval therefor, and refrain from any action encouraging such project until an opportunity be afforded the citizens of Lowell to appear before you at a public hearing, time and place thereof to be fixed and duly warned by you,—there to state fully their objections in the premises.

HELD IN $2,000

In Connection With "White Slave" Case

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—Charged with bringing Cora Conrad, a pretty young girl, here from New York and then forcing her to live a "white slave," John Bureas, a swarthy young man picked up in the police crusade to prevent starting of traffic in girls in this city, was held under $2000 bonds by Acting Recorder Grove yesterday and placed in jail to await the action of the October grand jury.

The girl, who was found in a tenderloin resort by Detective Herbert, made a pitiful plea for protection from Bureas, whom she claimed lured her from New York with tales of gay and jolly times at the shore.

The police are still holding the girl as a witness against the man and will endeavor to find her parents, who reside in a New England town, which the girl refuses to name because of the disgrace to her family.

MOTHER ANGRY

THAT HER BABY WAS OVERLOOKED AT SHOW

The recent baby show held at Lakeview park has left a sting and baby shows ought not to have any stings. A woman carrying a baby in her arms called at this office last evening and asked to see the editor. The auto editor answered the summons, but when he found out that the visitor wanted to talk babies he referred her to the baseball editor who is considered a splendid judge of babies and who has been known to lecture on prepared milk. He smiled on the fond and gracious mother, tickled the baby under the chin and declared him to be the prettiest baby boy he had seen for ages. "I don't think so," said the fond and gracious mother. "I know he is not the prettiest baby in the world, but just the same, he should have been awarded a prize at the baby show at Lakeview park. He would have received a prize, too, but for the fact that that Mr. Gage thought he was the whole shooting match. The women who were appointed didn't have a word to say about the babies—Mr. Gage said it all. It was a case of race prejudice, so it was, and if they will hold another baby show I will give to the woman who will present a baby of my baby's age and weighing as much and looking as well as my baby, $5 in gold."

Even the baby laughed at the baseball editor he looked so helpless. When first called he thought perhaps that an anxious mother had called with a sick baby to have him instruct her as to the use of prepared milk. He was not prepared for a charge of race prejudice, but he told the lady, on his word of honor, that he would do all in his power to bring about another baby show, at which the judges would be men who can tell a handsome baby when they see one.

SAILOR IS SAFE

CREW HAD MOURNED HIM AS DEAD

BOSTON, July 19.—When the fishing schooner Walter P. Goulart warped into a berth on the north side of T wharf late yesterday afternoon her colors were at half mast and there was mourning on board for one of the crew who was believed to have been lost.

Capt. Goulart and his crew learned, however, that the missing man had been picked up and brought here and was now safe at his home in Gloucester. The flag was quickly lowered and all hands went forward to learn the story of the rescue.

The Goulart was on Georges July 10, and the men were out hauling trawls. A heavy blanket of fog shut in and all the men hurried back to the vessel except Joe Robert, a Portuguese fisherman, who lost his way. The schooner cruised about in the vicinity all that day and night, burning torches and sounding her fog horn, but the missing man could not be located.

Robert, it appears, rowed in the opposite direction from the vessel and, after being three days and nights in the open dory, was picked up off Martinicus by one of the Maine steamers and taken to Rockland. He was afterward brought here and sent to his home in Gloucester.

The Goulart brought in 60,000 pounds of fish.

BETRAYED BY WOMAN

Bank Teller Arrested on Charge of Stealing $100,000

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Eluding the police of several cities and private detectives for more than two months, J. Howard Lowery, alias James H. Johnson, wanted in Utica, N. Y., on a charge of embezzling more than $100,000 from the Utica City National bank, was betrayed into the hands of a detective here yesterday by a woman and taken out of the city to New York state before the local authorities were aware of what was going on.

His arrest is the reward of perseverance on the part of Daniel J. Kelleher, a detective in the New York office of the American Bankers association. Lowery was a note teller in the bank and disappeared last April while an examiner was going over the bank's books.

When the police and private detectives started to look for the missing man they had nothing on which to work, but at last Kelleher got a clue that led to several cities and then to Wilmington, Del. He learned that a woman was in correspondence with the former teller and he spent many days in Delaware city before he learned her address, and then kept watch of her for nearly a week.

Sunday night the detective's vigil was rewarded. As he was standing in an alley near the woman's house he saw her leave with a dress suit case. He followed her to a railroad station and into a train for Philadelphia. In confronting her, he forced her to tell Lowery's address in this city. That done, he took her back to Wilmington, leaving a guard to see that she did not communicate with Lowery.

Then he came here with another detective. They stationed themselves near a house on North 16th street, where the woman said Lowery was living, and were on guard five hours when the man they wanted came out.

Stepping up to him, Kelleher told Lowery he was under arrest. Lowery was stunned for a moment, but quickly recovered and asked to be permitted to pack his suit case, which he was allowed to do.

Lowery occupied a little third story room, having asked for a room at $1.25 a week when he went to the place two months ago. The landlady said Lowery, whom she knew as "Johnson," usually left the house every morning as if for business, returning in the evening. "All the man's mail came from Wilmington," she said.

Lowery, it is said, agreed to waive all legal technicalities here and accompanied his captor back to Utica without resistance. Kelleher and his prisoner were out of the city before the local police learned of the arrest from the newspapers. Captain of Detectives Souders said that taking a prisoner out of the state without the formality of requisition was equivalent to kidnapping, and he purposed making a thorough investigation.

DISAPPEARED LAST APRIL

UTICA, N. Y., July 19.—J. Howard Lowery disappeared from Utica April 27 last. He had been the note teller in the Utica City National bank, and had been employed for a long time, and was implicitly trusted.

The bank examiner came here and made an examination of the bank, leaving in the afternoon. That night in going over his figures he discovered what he thought was a strange coincidence, and he returned to the bank in the morning.

Soon after he entered the bank Lowery went into another room and thence from the bank, carrying with him, it is alleged, $1000 that he had taken from a drawer on his way out. His absence was not discovered for an hour, and then he could not be traced.

Lowery's alleged shortage was more than $100,000, and his stealings, it is said, had been going on for six years. He lost most of the money, it is believed, in the stock market.

A second warrant was sworn out yesterday by the bank officials, charging Lowery with grand larceny. His case is to come up in the U. S. court.

HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE

MILFORD, N. H., July 19.—Louis Nardin was held last night in $800 bonds on the charge of attacking Annie Broome, 15 years old, near her home here. The girl said that while she was walking up to her home on North street a man stepped out of a dark place along the road and seized her. She says she recognized him as a man she saw standing on the station platform when she left the train and believes he followed her.

The girl declares she screamed and fought him and he finally disappeared in the underbrush. Nardin was arrested yesterday afternoon.

A MOST DASTARDLY AUTOIST

That dastardly autoist who ran down an aged man on the Billerica road Saturday night and left him there to his fate should be severely punished if known. It might have been by accident the man was struck, but it was not by accident he was left there dead for aught the chauffeur knew. It was a cold-blooded, audacious piece of business. The man who did it was afraid of the consequences. Perhaps he thought he had killed a man but he went ahead to escape detection. It is too bad he was not found out that he might be punished as he deserves.

SUNDAY'S DOUBLE DROWNING

Another double drowning occurred in the Concord river on Sunday, making eight drownings during the present month. One of the young men who entered the water could not swim, and although the other made a courageous attempt to rescue him he was unable to do so on account of the death grip secured upon him by the drowning man.

These drownings are a continual object lesson in favor of public baths at which all young people could learn to swim. If we had the public baths few would go to the rivers or canals to bathe, and if everybody could swim there would be little risk of drowning if they did go in bathing in such places.

CANNON AND HIS CLAPTRAP

Speaker Cannon in an address at Kansas City on Saturday delivered one of his customary tirades against the press of the country and undertook to defend the tariff law, stating that it was unfairly criticized because certain schedules were held up as unjust, whereas the law taken as a whole is the best that could be devised.

He says: "The discontent of a people is not measured by complaints in the press. The pocket nerve was never in better condition than today, and that is the real evidence of confidence on the part of the American people in the economic policies of the government."

That is a sample of Cannon's political claptrap. Both statements are false, but perfectly characteristic of Cannon.

Cannon is still as unrepentant and pugnacious as ever. He will fight for anything bearing the label republican. He contends that he is right and that the people who criticize the tariff are wrong, although he admits that in the past thirty-five years he has been wrong as often as a score of times.

The country wants to get rid of Cannon and Cannonism; it wants to get rid of the standpatters and the policy they represent; it wants to get rid of the excessive tariff that has driven up the cost of living to unprecedented figures; it wants to get rid of the alliance between the republican party and the trusts which gives the combinations of capital the power to write their schedules in the tariff law and enables them to control the government of the country. There is little hope of securing these reforms with the republican party in power and, therefore, the remedy is to elect a democratic congress this fall and a democratic president in 1912. The republicans will make a great effort to change the public mind upon these questions during the coming fall, but in spite of the fact that Roosevelt, Taft, Lodge, Cannon, Sherman and a great many other party leaders will be on the stump, we do not believe they will be able to cajole the people into another endorsement of the republican party and its policies.

THE CLEANING UP OF LAWRENCE

The great question under discussion at the present time in Lawrence is how to stop grafting. There is considerable talk as to certain employes of the city who, it is alleged, obtain their places through payment of a certain amount to city officials supposed to have some influence in making the appointments. These matters should be thoroughly investigated by the district attorney so that there may be a general cleaning up and that every guilty official may be punished.

Chief Hamilton of the fire department is under indictment for alleged irregularity in securing his office. It is up to the district attorney to see that Chief Hamilton be speedily tried and that if guilty he be punished with the other officials already convicted.

Chief Hamilton has been the main cause of the trouble which culminated in the conviction of Mayor White, and it is due to the city that he be tried without delay. The chief trouble, however, with the city of Lawrence in the past has been that when indictments were brought they were hung up by the district attorney and never brought to trial. For that reason the city officials assumed that the recent indictments could be turned aside in a somewhat similar way. Public sentiment had grown too strong, however, and the district attorney was forced to bring them to trial.

We are not quite certain whether the people of Lawrence are satisfied with the progress in the direction of reform that has been made since the election of Mayor White on a reform platform. We are of the opinion that the trials that have just taken place and those that are yet to come will do more for reform than has been done in Lawrence for the past ten years. It will teach the people a lesson as to the kind of men they should elect to public office and as to what these men should do as public officials. It will put a stop to grafting and the political turmoil that has been in vogue and that some people think necessary to good government. We are also of the opinion that Lawrence is likely to adopt the commission form of government same as Haverhill so that there will be fewer officials to watch and that a better class of men will be selected for the offices to be filled.

The citizens of Lawrence feel very keenly the disgrace that has come upon them in the conviction of the mayor and other officials, and are likely to adopt radical measures to bring about the desired change not only in the personnel of the city government but in the organic law under which the city is to be governed. Lawrence, we have no doubt, will rise triumphant a cleaner and a better city after the present cleaning up by the courts.

SEEN AND HEARD

"People have the automobilists to thank for the changed attitude of restaurants and hotels toward the put up to take out lunch," said the outing man. "A few years ago any of our swell establishments would have looked askance at anybody who asked to have a lunch put up to take out, but now that it is considered the correct thing the most expensive restaurants, the choice little tea shops and expensive lunching places are all playing tag with one another to get the latest kinks for the put up lunch. They have all sorts of attractively decorated paper plates and cups, napkins and fable cloths that can be used once and then thrown away, and the salads, the sandwiches and the arrangements of cold eggs, fish and meat are wonderful.

Tailors were credited with an excess of religious zeal by the new minister who found them much more willing to advertise in the new church magazines than other tradesmen of the neighborhood.

"It's the kneeling that fetches them," said a wise old trustee. "If you don't believe it just notice the last line of all their advertisements. That says, 'Trousers creased on Mondays for half price.' I never saw a church magazine yet that wasn't popular with the tailors, nine-tenths of whom offer Monday morning bargain rates for creasing trousers.

While walking down a crowded city street the other day
I heard a little urchin to a comrade turn and say,
"Say, Chimmy, lemme tell youse I'd
Be happy as a clam
If I only wuz de feller dat me mudder t'inks I am.

"She t'inks I am a wonder an' she knows her little lad
Could never mix wit' nuthin' dat wuz ugly, mean or bad.
Oh, lots o' times I sit an' t'ink how nice 'twould be, gee whiz!
If a feller wuz de feller dat his mudder t'inks he is!"

My friend, be yours a life of toil or undiluted joy,
You still can learn a lesson from this small, unlettered boy.
Don't aim to be an earthly saint, with eyes fixed on a star.
Just try to be the fellow that your mother thinks you are.

—Will S. Adkin.

Little knots of people stood expectantly outside the eye and ear infirmary.

"What are they waiting for?" some one asked.

"News from an operation on a bad pair of eyes," said a doctor. "Nowhere does news travel faster than in the neighborhood of an eye hospital. Serious operations are not advertised by a brass band, yet somehow the report leaks out that a difficult case is to go under the knife at a certain time and interested persons flock around the gates for news. Real sympathy, not morbidity, is back of that interest. Attendants who are informed as to the progress of an operation are very obliging about passing the news along."

The vacuum cleaner operator tells how he lost a customer.

"The third story left woman comes to me and says she would it be possible to keep the sweepings from her flat separate from other sweepings and return them to her in a jar? I said it would, and when the flat had been swept I emptied the dirt into her little glass jar.

"Next time I called she met me at the door with another jar, bigger than the first. Says she: 'You also sweep the third floor right apartment, do you not?'

"I said I did.

"'Very well,' said she. 'Will you oblige me by emptying their sweepings into this jar and giving it to me?'

"Instinct told me that the woman was laying a trap for somebody and I walked right into it like a fool. Next time I called the third floor right woman gave me my walking papers.

"'What's wrong?' said I.

"'You have betrayed me to the enemy,' said she.

"When I got down stairs the doctor on the first floor told me what she meant by that. Both women had had a standing quarrel for years as to which was the best housekeeper. A comparison of vacuum sweepings gave the prize to the woman who had provided me with the glass jars, so of course her rival had no use for me after that."

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Charles Goodrich Whiting has retired from the place of chief literary editor of The Republican, which he has filled with distinction for some 35 years. He had previously been connected with the local news department of the paper for a considerable period. He is succeeded as chief literary editor by Francis E. Regal, who has been his associate in the work for a long time past, and Mr. Regal is succeeded in turn as associate or assistant literary editor by James Brewer Corcoran, who has been the dramatic editor for a number of years. In retiring from the active work of newspaper making Mr. Whiting will not sever his connection with The Republican. He will continue to contribute both to its literary and editorial columns, but will be relieved from the burden of office work. He is spending most of the summer at his farm in Otis.

Apropos of the near completion of the new Campanile of St. Mark's an interesting ceremony was held in Venice the other day in front of the Porta delle Carta of the Ducal palace, when the four bells which are to be placed in the Campanile were dedicated. These bells are a present from Pope Pius X. There were present at the dedication besides the mayor various members of the Venetian guilds and Cav. Monaretti, who, in collaboration with Barigozzi di Milano, designed and cast the bells in April, 1908. There were also a sprinkling of notables, including the Duca degli Abruzzi, cousin of the king, who is in command of the arsenal at Venice, and Cardinal Cavallari. The ceremony, which was partly religious and partly civic, followed the traditional exercises on similar occasions, with altar, mass, and incense.

THE KING'S OATH

O'Brien to Bring Up American Request

The following despatch appears in the N. Y. World.

LONDON, July 19.—Fourteen million American Catholics, members of the Catholic federation of the United States, have sent a respectful but earnest protest to King George, pointing out that that part of the accession oath which the king takes is insulting to Catholics.

Patrick O'Brien, M. P., one of the Irish nationalist party whips, said yesterday that he would ask Prime Minister Asquith in the house of commons if he knows that this protest has been forwarded to the king.

"I shall also ask Mr. Asquith," said Mr. O'Brien, "what reply has been or will be made to this vast body of people who live under the flag of the most important power in the world which is friendly to Great Britain."

It is not likely that any answer but a formal acknowledgment of its receipt will be given to this protest, but its effect will help the government to pass the bill changing the accession oath.

King George himself, soon after his father's death, informed the ministers that he has an invincible objection to reciting the declaration which he will have to make, unless it is changed meantime, the first time he meets parliament after his accession.

BILLERICA

At a special meeting of the selectmen of the town of Billerica held last night a warrant was prepared for a special town meeting which is to be held in the town hall on August 2. The warrant contains nine articles, the most important being one relative to whether or not the town will vote to borrow nine thousand dollars payable in nine equal instalments and issue town notes therefor on one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight and nine years, and appropriate the proceeds for building a reinforced concrete bridge across the Concord river at Faulkner street, North Billerica, removing the store house of the Faulkner Mfg. Co., standing east of said street and making such changes in said street as may be necessary according to the plans presented by the committee appointed in connection with the building of said bridge." Another article is relative to borrowing the sum of $700 to instal fire escapes on the Pollard school in Billerica Centre.

There will also be an article in the warrant relative to borrowing a sum of money to be used with the amount appropriated at the last annual town meeting to build a walk for foot passengers on the southerly side of Fordway bridge. The sum voted for this work last March was $600, and according to Civil Engineer Worthington of Boston, who was here last week for the purpose of examining the premises it will take $1500 to do a substantial job.

An article relative to macadamizing a portion of River street will also come up for the consideration of the voters.

TYNGSBORO

Mr. and Mrs. Horace T. Bancroft and their daughter Persis joined the Tyngsboro colony at Salisbury beach last Wednesday.

In pursuance to a petition from John O. Heinze of the Lowell Automobile club, the selectmen have issued a call for a public hearing on July 21 at 8 p. m. in the town hall, relative to closing certain highways in the town on Sept. 15, 16 and 17.

The Misses Mansfield who have been stopping at Mrs. Celia Hunter's have returned to their home in Wakefield, Mass.

Rev. N. S. Hoagland and daughter Gladys went Monday to North Weare, N. H.

MR. MILES SURPRISED

Mr. F. Leslie Miles, teacher of piano and organ, was surprised Saturday night when a number of his friends called at his home, 41 Royal street, and presented him a sectional bookcase. The presentation speech was made by F. L. Orrell and Mr. Miles accepted it after thanking the friends and signifying his appreciation. Mr. Miles was also the recipient of a purse of money from his parents.

During the evening games, songs, etc., were enjoyed and at a late hour the party dispersed with many good wishes for Mr. Miles, and a pleasant recollection of the event.

A JAILED MAYOR

QUESTION IS CAN HE STILL HOLD OFFICE

A Springfield exchange published the following on the situation in Lawrence:

Mayor William P. White of Lawrence is now in jail to serve a three-year term on conviction of conspiracy to bribe, and the question agitates that city whether he is still mayor, or can continue to act as mayor during the remainder of the time for which he was elected. It is being pointed out that no state law covers the case. There exists no power in the governor to declare the office vacant. It is contended that under neither the laws of the state nor the charter of the city would impeachment proceedings be against the jailed mayor. The only statute which has so far been found as possibly applicable to the case is section 7, chapter 210, Revised Laws, as follows:

A legislative executive, judicial, county or municipal officer who corruptly requests or accepts a gift or gratuity or a promise to make a gift or to do an act beneficial to him, under an agreement or with the understanding that his vote, opinion or judgment shall be given in any particular manner, or upon a particular side of any question, cause or proceeding, which is or may be by law brought before him in his official capacity or as a consideration for any speech, work or service in connection therewith, or that, in such capacity, he shall make any particular nomination or appointment, shall forfeit his office, be forever disqualified to hold any public office, trust or appointment under the constitution or laws of this commonwealth, and be punished by imprisonment in the state-prison for not more than 10 years or by a fine of not more than $5000 and imprisonment in jail for not more than two years.

It will be seen that this does not fit very closely a case of bribery on the part of such a public officer to secure the removal of another municipal officer; and it was not employed in connection with the conviction and sentence of Mayor White.

There is, however, another statute which has so far not been mentioned in relation to this situation. It is somewhat similar to a provision found in Springfield's city charter and doubtless to be found in the charter of Lawrence. It is section 29, chapter 20 Revised Laws, as follows:

Except as otherwise provided by city charters, upon the death, resignation or absence of the mayor, or of his ability to perform the duties of his office, the chairman or presiding officer of the board of aldermen shall perform such duties; and if there is no such officer, or if he is also absent or unable from any cause to perform such duties, they shall be performed by the president of the common council; or, if there is no such office, by such alderman as the board of aldermen may from time to time elect until the mayor or chairman or presiding officer of the board of aldermen is able to attend to said duties, or until the vacancy is filled as provided by law.

The mayor of Lawrence is undoubtedly, within the meaning of this act, absent from his official post, and he is also doubtless unable to perform the duties of his office within the meaning of the act; and accordingly a vacancy exists whose filling is amply provided for by the statute. Section 30 of the same chapter provides that the person upon whom the mayor's duties devolve shall be called "acting mayor," and "shall possess the powers of mayor only in matters not admitting of delay, but shall have no power to make permanent appointments." These limitations, however, are of no particular consequence. Appointments which need to be made can be made ad interim, and other necessary executive acts can be performed just as if the acting mayor were the regularly elected mayor. It thus seems absurd to suppose Lawrence cannot escape from the official grip of Mayor White until the end of the year and of his official term.

It is to be noted meantime that the people of Lawrence elected this man mayor by a large plurality in full knowledge of the fact that while he was milk inspector of the city in 1893 he was found guilty of attempting to extort money from milkmen and paid a fine of $300. If the statute first quoted above was then in existence, he was plainly disqualified to run for mayor or to hold the office; and it is an amazing fact in any case that a community could be found in this state to elect a man with such a record as that to any office. The people of Lawrence deliberately invited the scandal that now shames the city, and they merit precious little sympathy.—Springfield Republican.

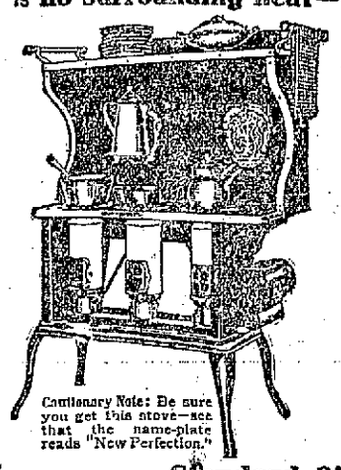

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking — none in outside heating.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat — no smell — no smoke.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

GRAPE FRUIT

IT WAS DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN

Who discovered grape fruit? A writer in Leslie's Weekly says: "Few of the thousands who daily enjoy the wonderful tonic found in those big, buttercup-yellow globules that have become a breakfast necessity to Uncle Sam's discriminating children know that they are indebted to a woman for discovering the value of the once despised fruit as a table delicacy. Not more than fifteen years or so ago the grapefruit was a thing without value—a product interesting because of its decorative appearance. Now the number consumed annually in the United States exceeds 4,000,000 boxes; which means approximately a half a billion grapefruit. About one million of these are grown in Florida, from which comes the story of the grapefruit's bow to the epicurean world. The woman to whom grapefruit growers should take off their hats is Mrs. Frank Leslie. She was on a visit to Henry Plant, the builder of the East Coast railway, in Florida. James E. Ingraham was then, as now, the vice president of the road, and it was in his car that Mrs. Leslie and her party traveled. On reaching the home of Mr. Plant, the travelers were first introduced to the delights of the refreshing citric fruit, which hung in clusters on the trees, bending the branches down almost to the ground. Thousands of bushels lay on the ground under the trees, from which they had fallen. There was no market for them. Only a few of the native Floridians liked them, so the fruit that could not be eaten by Mr. Plant's immediate friends was left where it fell. Nearly every plantation in lower Florida had numbers of the grapefruit trees, and under each one was the same display of golden-yellow balls which had fallen from the branches. Passing one of these plantations, Mrs. Leslie asked the planter what he would take for his crop. 'Why, madam, there is no market for it. Nobody wants grapefruit. Help yourself.' The party helped itself, and grapefruit was thenceforth a regular part of the daily menu. So much did Mrs. Leslie appreciate the fruit that she decided to introduce it to her friends up north. She carried home several boxes, and later Mr. Ingraham sent her forty barrels, which she distributed among her friends, with instructions how to prepare them for the table. Encouraged by the unanimous praise which issued from each recipient of the fruit, Mr. Ingraham had a famous New York physician make an analysis of it and to certify to its remarkable qualities as a tonic, especially in the spring. As a result of this combined effort of Mr. Ingraham and Mrs. Leslie, a demand for grapefruit grew rapidly."

FOSS CLUB FORMED

To Advocate Eugene N. Foss for Governor

A number of prominent democrats met last evening and organized what is supposed to be the first Foss club in the state. The meeting was very enthusiastic, the prevailing sentiment being that with Hon. Eugene N. Foss as the standard bearer, a democratic victory is assured this fall. The claims of other candidates for governor were discussed and while it was believed that some of these might win, owing to general dissatisfaction over the situation, it was urged that all others owed it to the people and the party to withdraw and allow the strongest possible candidate, Congressman Foss, the father of Canadian reciprocity, to make the fight.

John J. Devine, esq., was elected president. Henry F. Carr was elected secretary.

By-laws were adopted, the main features of which are the purpose of the club "to bring about the nomination and election of Hon. Eugene N. Foss as governor of Massachusetts;" and the requisite for membership, which is as follows: "Any voter may become a member by enrolling his name and voting address with the secretary, on a roll provided for that purpose, signifying his desire to become a member of the E. N. Foss club of Lowell."

The enrollment book will be open on Tuesday, July 19, at the store of Secretary Henry F. Carr, 98 Gorham street, and voters may become members of the club by calling there and subscribing their names and addresses or by sending their names by mail.

NEW CITY STABLE

Committee Favors a $25,000 Structure

LOWELL HAS SCHOOL HOUSES FOR SALE

Lands and Buildings Committee Would Sell Them—The Training School May Be Included

If the recommendation of the committee on lands and buildings is adopted by the city council the red flag will fly from at least three of our public schools.

The committee met last night and when the schoolhouse question was broached the committee declared in favor of selling the buildings that are no longer of use to the city for school purposes.

The committee recommended a loan order of $25,000 for the proposed stable on the city lot at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher street.

Mr. Dow said he had talked with Supt. Whitcomb about selling various of the unused schools of the city. Mr. Whitcomb seemed perfectly willing to dispose of the Fayette street school, but didn't want to lose the School street building. He favored disposing of the old Middlesex Village school, although there seems some doubt relative to the right of the city to sell this.

Mr. Qua suggested the sale of the Middlesex Village, Fayette street and old Moody schools, the money to constitute part of a fund for the erection of new schoolhouses. Mr. Byam thought that money might become part of a fund for the annual up-keep of the school furniture.

The chairman thought a communication might be sent to the school board asking the members if they had any objection to the sale of the Fayette street, old Middlesex Village, School street, the old Moody and the Training schools, and if such objection there be to state it. This was embodied in a motion made by Mr. Whittet, and it was so voted.

Mr. Dow spoke of connecting the Central street school with the Chapel street school, by steam pipes. Stoves are now used in the Chapel street school. Mr. Tarrant thought the Chapel street school ought to be closed, and an addition built on the Central street school.

Mr. Dow said the Howard street school, which is now heated by stoves, ought to have a boiler installed. A boiler would cost $150 and this could heat the building properly. It was voted to recommend the appropriation of $150 from the general treasury fund for the purchase of this boiler. Mr. Dow said it would cost more money to heat the Chapel street school than it would for the Howard street school. He considered it better to heat this school separately, rather than to connect it with the Central street school.

Mr. Tarrant moved that $200 be recommended appropriated from the general treasury fund for the purchase of a boiler for the Chapel street school.

Adjourned.

"JIM" CORBETT

Has a Man to Meet Johnson

NEW YORK, July 19.—James J. Corbett has an "unknown" under cover who he hopes will show himself fit to win the title that Jim Jeffries lost to Jack Johnson at Reno.

Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter who staged the fight between Johnson and Tommy Burns, has been sufficiently impressed to put out a challenge in behalf of the unknown, backed by a $5000 forfeit, to be used later as a side bet. If Johnson declines, the offer is open to any other man worthy to be considered a candidate for heavyweight honors.

Corbett refuses to make known the identity of his protege, and there is some doubt in sporting circles that he has anything more specific in mind than a desire to see Johnson whipped.

McIntosh, who is now in New York, says in his challenge:

"The unknown will be named by Jas. J. Corbett and will also be trained by him, the fight to take place in the United States, England or Australia, and I agree to offer a purse, the amount of which will exceed that offered by any other person.

"As an evidence of good faith I am willing to deposit the sum of $5000 as a guarantee that Timothy Sullivan or any other responsible person, the same deposit to go as a side bet if desired.

"The only stipulation I make is that the contest be for 20 rounds or over."

JEWELS STOLEN

DETECTIVES SEARCH FOR BOSTON WOMAN'S GEMS

CHICAGO, Ill., July 19.—Two detectives, a hotel proprietor and an entire hotel force are endeavoring to locate the $5000 worth of jewels stolen from Mrs. Francis Stanton Blake of Boston, who is stopping at De Jonghe's hotel, 45 Monroe street. The jewels have been missing since yesterday afternoon and with them one of the hotel's bell boys.

The disappearance of the valuables was first noted yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Blake, who was formerly Miss Eugenie White of this city, and daughter of Mrs. William F. White, called for the packet she had left in the hotel safe. They were not in the safe nor anywhere in its immediate vicinity.

The police were immediately called in and upon investigation discovered that one of the bell boys had been missing from the hotel since noon.

It is believed that the boy, whose room was found in confusion when visited by detectives, either was the thief or knows the circumstances of the robbery.

"I have nothing to tell you about it," said Dr. De Jonghe. "I will not say whether or not this report of a robbery is true."

THEATRE VOYONS

Notwithstanding the summer is regarded by most amusement managers as the hard season and when they retrench in their programs the management of the Theatre Voyons never finds any hard times and has even increased the expense of presenting its program during the hot season. The theatre is artificially ventilated and pure, cool, fresh air is always to be found in the theatre. A pleasing feature of the week is the talks by Herbert Leroy, who tells the story of the leading dramatic feature in a way that makes plain to everyone the most minute details of the play. His talks are neither tiresome nor poorly prepared, and they meet the approval of everyone who hears him. The feature today, "Out of the Night," written by Rex Beach, is one of the cleverest and most appealing love stories yet given to the public by the noted author. The characters are finely drawn and the story itself holds the interest every minute.

SAVE THE BABIES

Editor Sun:—

The Ascension society makes a move to save babies. Mothers with their little sick ones can spend all day in the pine grove situated in Lakeview Garden at the junction of Tyngsboro road which has been purchased by two women for the purpose of helping to save the little ones who are taken ill. A camp adjoining has been negotiated for by the society and will furnish nourishment free if necessary for mothers who have to remain with their little ones. About ninety house lots in all are now at the disposal of the society. The public will be called upon to aid some in the work. The location is ideal, and it is expected that the electric street railway company will aid in conveying mothers and their little ones at reduced rates. The present cost is very small.

TWO MEN ESCAPE

They Leaped Out From Big Quicksand

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., July 19.—The collapse yesterday of a long excavation on Vernon street and the engulfing of a caisson, with the narrow escape of workmen, have convinced the engineers that this whole section, probably many acres in extent, is underlaid with a quicksand of unusual proportions.

The problem of abolishing the nuisance of a broken sewer on Vernon street, which was ordered by the state board of health, assumed a new phase Friday when the settling of a caisson into 17 feet of quicksand near the old bank of the Connecticut river made it necessary to abandon the scheme to construct a standpipe and carry the South Main street sewage into the Connecticut river as was formerly done before the building of the big dam at Vernon set back the water.

For a number of days workmen had bee constructing a crib eight feet square. A steel caisson about three feet in diameter was being driven down. The pipe reitled three feet during the first night and the presence of a quicksand was recognized.

But before any attempt could be made to sustain the sagging line of sewer, the caisson sank and the crib, which was 17 feet deep, became a boiling pot of quicksand and water. William Pentland, Jr., a plumber, and Thomas Lynch had narrow escapes.

Investigation showed it was not feasible to rescue the caisson or carry out the project.

Yesterday morning men were digging a ditch near the factory of the White River Chair company, 500 feet from the first caisson, to empty the South Main street sewer into this old line with an hydraulic siphon.

Arrangements were made about noon yesterday to test 500 or 600 feet of sewer, when the ditch that had been cribbed suddenly caved in.

Prof. J. W. Votey, consulting engineer of the state board of health, is expected here from Burlington to consult with Civil Engineer Pearson.

SHOT OLD HORSE

Agent Richardson Called to the Case

A decrepit and lame horse, attached to an old weather beaten wagon, driven by an aged man, attracted considerable attention yesterday afternoon as it passed through upper Middlesex street, and word was sent to the police station that the animal was unfit to be used and that the wagon threatened to collapse at any moment and might result in the death of the man.

Patrolman Bagley was notified and he immediately started on the trail of the outfit, but the horse must have got a good start on him for he was unable to reach it before it crossed the city line. The police of North Chelmsford were then notified and Officers James R. Gookin and G. F. Foote were soon on the trail and with the assistance of an automobile came upon the horse, wagon and man in the vicinity of Crystal Lake.

The man gave his name as David Norvitz, his age as 85 years, and said that he was on his way to West Chelmsford to get some hens. He said he was very poor and before yesterday he said the horse had not been out of the stable for three weeks.

The officers stabled the animal in Joe Gaudette's barn and notified Agent Charles F. Richardson of the Lowell Humane society of the case, and Agent Richardson hurried to the lake and talked the matter over with the owner.

Owing to the man's extreme age it was decided not to prosecute him. The owner gave his consent to the killing of his horse, and the animal was shot today.

ANOTHER BATTLE

FOR THE CONTROL OF ZION CITY

CHICAGO, July 19.—Prospects of another battle for power in Zion City are seen with the arrival in Chicago of "King" Dowie, professed brother of the late John Alexander Dowie—"Elijah II"—and claimant to the throne of a South Sea island. It is said to be the intention of the "kink" to overthrow Overseer Voliva. Overseer Voliva said last night that he would ignore the self-styled recent.

"I know of him only what I have heard," said Voliva. "As far as I am aware John Alexander Dowie had no brother."

"King" Dowie is supposed to be located at present on the south side, having arrived from Minneapolis during yesterday. With him is "Pop" Schrader who is in charge of a church in San Francisco.

BOY A DETECTIVE

Saw Men on Roof Before Robbery

NASHUA, N. H., July 19.—Patrolmen Hallisey and Gaudett last night arrested Charles Dickenavitch, who is charged with breaking and entering and larceny of $52 at the home of Peter Yakavitch, 25 Pearson avenue yesterday afternoon. It is alleged Dickenavitch gained entrance through the roof and broke open a trunk.

Dickenavitch and a companion, it is charged, were seen by two boys, who pointed him out to the police in a barroom. When the police entered, it is alleged the man tried to hand a roll of bills to the bartender. The money was seized and was found to be of the same amount and the same denomination as that stolen.

When searched at the police station his pockets were found to contain eight boxes of cigarets, a large quantity of cigars and matches, a box of cartridges and a number of other articles.

PLEADED GUILTY

To Charge of Looting Freight Cars

GREENFIELD, July 19.—Hedley J. Miller of Greenfield, formerly in a position of trust on the Fitchburg road, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of larceny and was sentenced to six months in the house of correction. He was charged with breaking into freight cars and stealing shoes, cloth and other articles.

Edward J. Conway, another railroad man, who also pleaded guilty to larceny, was sent to the house of correction for three months. He was indicted on a charge of breaking and entering but Miller was regarded by the court as more of a leader.

Julius Blasberg of Turners Falls, charged with breaking and entering and also with receiving stolen property, pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property and paid a fine of $150. He was said to have purchased goods at a low price, stolen from the railroad.

William A. Dwyer of East Whately paid a fine of $400 on a liquor charge. The Franklin county law and order league got after Mr. Dwyer some months ago and secured convictions against him in the lower court on various liquor complaints. Affidavits were presented from officials in Whately and elsewhere which stated that the hotel had been burned, that Dwyer is sick, that he has left Whately, etc.

George B. Waterman of Bernardston is on trial charged with assaulting William Deitz, also of Bernardston.

The jury found for the defendant in the civil case of Charles E. Gibbs and others of Orange against Mary A. Cooke of Orange in a case of alleged trespass.

WAS NO WEDDING

Girl Failed to Put In an Appearance

NEW YORK, July 19.—Believing that she was kidnapped by a rival suitor, detectives today are hunting for Mazie Cullen, 17 years old, who disappeared from her home, 10 La Grange street, a few hours before she was to have been married.

Wedding guests had assembled at the Cullen home when word came that Mazie could not be found. Her fiance, John Fernando, of 60 Bushwick street, is distracted.

All day he has urged the police to find her. Search of the hospitals revealed no trace of the missing bride-to-be, and nearby towns have been notified to be on the lookout for a pretty girl with golden hair, dressed in a black and white princess gown.

That she was carried or lured to some house and detained is the general belief. The girl carried no money when she went to St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, Leonard and Maujer streets, two hours before the ceremony was to be performed. She chatted with the priests and seemed in the best of spirits.

Passing around the corner of Leonard street she disappeared.

While the bridegroom waited he was not alarmed until he telephoned to the girl's house and found she was not there.

Wedding guests were thrown into consternation. Immediately searching parties were organized.

There was no word left in the girl's room. Her wedding dress was laid out ready to wear. Several hundred persons were at St. Mary's church. Father Crowley announced that there would be no wedding and these guests also joined in the search.

Fernando sought the aid of Captain Reidy of the Stagg street station.

Mazie and the young man had been sweethearts from childhood. Her parents say they don't know of other suitors. Friends, however, intimate that other young men have long endeavored to pay court to her.

GIFFORD PINCHOT

SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF "INSURGENT" CANDIDATE

OAKLAND, Cal., July 19.—Gifford Pinchot arrived here today to make several speeches in California in behalf of Hiram Johnson, the Lincoln-Roosevelt league candidate for governor and William Kent, "insurgent" candidate for congress. He refused to discuss the report that Secretary Ballinger had been exonerated by the congressional committee investigating the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

Charging that the Pickett bill under the provisions of which President Taft on July 3 withdrew 8,495,731 acres of public land, contained a "joker" Pinchot said:

"The Pickett bill withdraws all this land from entry but leaves it open at all times to exploration, discovery and occupation under the mining laws of the United States so far as the same apply to mineral other than coal, oil, gas and phosphates.

There is nothing to prevent the large corporations from entering this land ostensibly for mining purposes after they have shown that they have found small quantities of gold or other metals."

TRAINS STALLED

BUSINESS AT A STANDSTILL AT BURLINGTON

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 19.—All business was at a standstill in the local freight yards of the Central Vermont railroad today as a result of the strike begun last night by the conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk system of which the Central Vermont road is a part. All freight and express matter is received here "subject to delay." The express company which does business over the Central Vermont road today sent a large part of its shipments to St. Albans by steamer. The train due to leave Burlington for Montreal at 9.20 a. m. was an hour late in starting. It was manned by strike breakers brought here from Pennsylvania, it is said, by a professional strike-breaking contractor. There was a large crowd waiting at the station to board the train but the train pulled out of the yards and through the station without stopping for any passengers. The train scheduled to leave here at 4 a. m. did not make its trip today.

CREWS OF STRIKEBREAKERS

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., July 19.—Manned by crews of strike-breakers, two trains on the Grand Trunk railroad whose conductors and trainmen struck last night, left here on scheduled time early today. The first train to pull out of the station here this morning was the 12.45 express to Montreal, while the other train was the 8 o'clock local for St. Albans. No demonstrations were made when the trains left the station here. It is not expected that there will be any developments made here before noon today, because of the fact that no trains are scheduled to leave this station until after that time.

Anyone who wanted to go to White River Junction or to Windsor, Vt., 11 miles below here, had to walk or go over the roads in carriages or automobile today. The rails between here and Windsor belong to the Central Vermont road, but the trains over this section are operated by the Boston & Maine.

When the south morning train left here the train crew locked all the doors and windows of the cars, and no one was transported to any station on the Central Vermont road by the Boston & Maine trainmen.

NO TRAINS MOVED

TORONTO, Ont., July 19.—There has been no passenger or freight traffic out of this city by the Grand Trunk railroad today. Last night's strike order was promptly obeyed by the 500 employees of the road in this city. Conditions are identical at Hamilton, Stratford and other terminals in Ontario.

FREIGHT IS NOT TIED UP

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 19.—Little freight is tied up here as a result of the strike on the Central Vermont railroad in connection with that on the Grand Trunk lines, but some inconvenience has been caused business houses by the non-arrival of freight. The boat train carrying the mail is the only train which has come through from New London this morning. According to posted notices no passenger trains are to be run until further notice. A number of small towns get their mail through this city and the delay may cause considerable inconvenience.

NO TROUBLE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 19.—The strike of conductors and trainmen on the Grand Trunk railroad, declared last night, had not been felt in this city early today. The Montreal passenger train that left that city last night for Boston arrived here at 8.05 this morning on time. The train came down over the regular route via Grand Trunk and Central Vermont roads by the way of White River Junction. The local officials believe that the two day passenger trains from Boston to Montreal which left here at 9 and 11.30 will go through without any delay. This statement was made following a dispatch received by the local officials that arrangements had been made to that effect.

DANGER OF STRIKE SETTLED

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Unless unforeseen trouble arises the danger of a strike on the Pennsylvania railroad has passed. A settlement of the wage dispute between the company and its trainmen and conductors east of Pittsburg, Buffalo and Erie probably will be effected at a conference here today before a sub-committee of the men and the division superintendents. The terms of settlement being worked out follows the award of the New York Central.

FREIGHT HELD UP

FREIGHT TRAFFIC TIED UP

MONTPELIER, Vt., July 19.—All freight traffic here was tied up tight today by the strike. Some passenger trains were running today but the crews were strike breakers or station agents and office employees. The passenger express due from Montreal at 3 a. m. arrived four and a half hours behind time with strike breakers in charge.

Six freight locomotives were laid up idle at Montpelier junction today and the "subject to delay" provision was imposed on all freight.

LAWRENCE'S MUDDLE

Brown's Appointment a Blow to Mayor White

LAWRENCE, July 19.—By the appointment, confirmation and his assuming the duties of his office yesterday of Jesse F. Brown as master of the house of correction and jail here, wherein Mayor William P. White is confined to serve three years for conspiracy to bribe, it is believed the unfortunate situation of this city's affairs will soon be brought to adjustment in the courts.

Mr. Brown as acting master, pending his permanent appointment, was largely responsible for the order denying Mayor White privileges of conducting city business from the jail. This order is regarded by many as creating "incapacity" in the meaning of the law, thereby creating a necessity for a new head to the city's executive department. Whether the step will be of a friendly nature and merely a legal form will be largely determined by the opinion promised for today by City Solicitor Murphy, who will advise the board of aldermen as to whether, in his opinion, Mayor White's conviction and confinement in jail on charge of misdemeanor deprives him of official capacity.

It has already been intimated an action may be brought in the supreme court and whatever Solicitor Murphy's opinion may be, now that it is assured Mayor White will have no further official privileges as a prisoner, there are strong assurances of an early and positive action which will insure protection to the city's interests in well grounded legal procedure.

With Acting Mayor Jordan at its head, the committee on fire department of the city government assumed the role of peacemaker last night in pouring oil on the troubled waters of that department.

Chief Engineer James A. Hamilton and the two assistant engineers, William F. Macreadie and Edward F. Toye, have been at loggerheads because of the overriding of the latter two by the chief, with the result that the assistants refused to approve a batch of bills, aggregating upward of $1800. Some of these had been authorized by the committee, while others were for "extras" and charges contracted by the chief without consulting his assistants. These bills came before the committee for consideration, in which connection the attitude of Acting Mayor Jordan toward Chief Hamilton, the effort to oust whom hauled Mayor William P. White in the house of correction, was in marked contrast to that of the imprisoned chief executive.

Because a portion of the extra charges incurred by the chief was offset by a saving made in some of the work authorized by the committee was, to the acting mayor's mind, evidence of good faith on the part of Chief Hamilton. The difference was less than $200. "I give him credit for spending the money where it was really needed," was the declaration of the acting mayor.

Assistant Macreadie said that the chief had contracted bills without proper authority and had ignored his associates, although they had asked him repeatedly to keep down expenses. The assistant engineer believed that it was a matter for the government to adjust.

Assistant Engineer Toye refused point blank to sign the vouchers unless the government indorsed the purchases.

Chief Hamilton said the talk of prospect of a big overdraft in the department was all bosh. He urged that the bills be cleared up. The committee groomed the bills which had been contracted by the chief without the sanction of his assistants, and on motion of Alderman Callahan voted to recommend their payment. The alderman explained that his object was to promote harmony among the engineers. He believed the assistants should be consulted by the chief, and he exacted the promise from the latter to do so in the future. "Anything for harmony," was the chief's expression of compliance.

Jordan Assumes Voting Right

Although Acting Mayor Jordan is not a member of the committee by appointment, he assumed the right to exercise the prerogative of the mayor to vote and divided evenly the committee on the question of accepting the new fire alarm system, which was inspected in the afternoon. The award of this contract was reported to have been one of the subjects of consideration by the grand jury which brought the indictments in connection with the manner in which Chief Hamilton is alleged to have received his appointment and the attempt of Mayor White to depose him.

Aldermen Jordan, Scanlon and Callahan and Councilman Dooley voted against acceptance, and Councilmen Keaveny, Taylor, Nugent and Noonan in favor. Councilman Keaveny questioned the right of the presiding officer to vote, but was overruled. President Jordan thought that it would be well to look into the specifications of the contract in detail before accepting the work.

To Start Building Work

The charge of Mayor White's secretary, Matthew De Grey Ripon, that Chief Hamilton employed in the fire alarm department a man who was not a citizen, was refuted by the chief, who produced the naturalization documents of Charles Higgins, showing that his final papers had been issued March 8. Councilman Keaveny moved that the committee censure the mayor's secretary, but President Jordan dismissed the subject, with the remark that it was groundless, as were many of the charges.

Acting Mayor Jordan was authorized to take the initiative toward having a beginning made upon the new ward 5 engine house, which was contracted for last year.

EYES ON MAYOR'S CHAIR

LAWRENCE, July 19.—In the event of Mayor William P. White being disqualified from officiating as chief executive because of his confinement in the house of correction for alleged conspiracy to bribe, there is a possibility of a lively contest being opened up, to succeed him.

Should a special election occur, Dr. John T. Cahill, who was Mayor White's opponent last fall, is an avowed candidate, and there may be others. In discussing the situation Dr. Cahill said he considered himself the candidate of the democratic party until another was nominated, and should seek the position of mayor, if the government is called upon to make a choice.

Michael F. Cronin, who was a candidate in the democratic primaries, was less pronounced in his determination to enter a contest to be decided by the city council, but said he should be a candidate in the fall primaries.

President Thomas M. Jordan of the board of aldermen has his eye on the place and he is inclined to the opinion that it is not mandatory that the city council shall elect a mayor. He considers that the word "shall" as it appears in the section relative to the choice of a mayor by the city council is open to the same interpretation as where it refers to the duty of the mayor to preside over meetings of the board of aldermen. In the latter instance it is claimed by Mayor White's friends that the word is used in directory sense rather than a mandatory one.

So President Jordan sees no reason why he should not go on as acting mayor for the balance of the year.

BROWN BEGINS DUTIES

SALEM, July 19.—Jesse F. Brown, now acting master, succeeds the late Charles A. Stillings as master of the house of correction and jail in Lawrence. He was appointed to the position by Col. Samuel A. Johnson, high sheriff of Essex county, early yesterday afternoon and was qualified by Commissioners James Hale and George R. Lord at the clerk of court's office in this city, and at once assumed his new duties.

Mr. Brown is about 70 years old and served in the Civil war as a private in the 48th Mass. regt. Returning from the war, he served for a time as one of the officers in the house of correction at Ipswich and subsequently was transferred to the penal institution at Lawrence, where he has held varied positions in that institution for forty years. He will receive a salary of $1300 per year with house rent, fuel, etc., free.

There were several applicants for the position.

Mr. Brown has received instructions from Sheriff Johnson to treat Mayor White of Lawrence, who is serving a three years' sentence, the same as any other prisoner. Aside from visitations from counsel, Mayor White will be permitted to receive guests but once each week, according to prison rules.

BROTHERS DROWN

In Sight of Their Friends

NEW YORK, July 19.—Two New Yorkers—Adolph Meyers, 34 years old, of 319 East 92nd street, and his brother Charles, 27, of 204 East 84th street—were drowned yesterday off New Dorp, Staten Island. Two hundred men, women and children, many of them personal friends of the victims, witnessed the accident, but were powerless to give aid.

The brothers had only gone to New Dorp beach on Saturday, bent on spending an enjoyable vacation with friends encamped there. Yesterday at about 4 p. m. Adolph proposed that they don their bathing suits and go out in a rowboat on a fishing excursion. Soon the pair, in a flat bottomed boat, were anchored 500 feet from the beach and busily engaged in their quiet sport. An hour passed, and to the friends on the beach they seemed to be thoroughly enjoying themselves.

Suddenly the swell from a passing steamer hit them and filled their boat. The men were seen to jump into the water, and their terrified friends—who knew neither of the men could swim—saw the boat slowly sink.

Several persons immediately started swimming toward the floundering men, while others shouted encouragement or ran for boats. The brothers were seen to sink, rise again, remain on the surface for a few moments and again disappear.

The police were notified, and late last night a launch was dispatched to the beach with grappling irons. The bodies had not been recovered at midnight.

BIG WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK, July 19.—When the will of Mrs. Mary E. Brinkerhoff, who died in New York last April, and who had a summer home at Irvington-on-Hudson, came up for probate yesterday before Surrogate Millard, of Westchester county, objections were filed by counsel representing Miss Mary Williams, of Lyons, N. Y., who maintained that Mrs. Brinkerhoff, who left $2,500,000 to fifty relatives and friends, had willed away money left in trust for her father, John Williams.

It developed that two heirs had not been served with notice in the Surrogate's court, and Surrogate Millard postponed the hearing until next Monday.

Mrs. Brinkerhoff left $5000 for the care of four horses and gave several thousand dollars each to servants, while some relatives were ignored.

SUNDAY DANCING

IS THE LATEST FAD IN NEWPORT SET

NEWPORT, July 19.—They play golf, tennis and other sports on Sunday in the cottage settlement, and as Saturday and Sunday nights are now about the only nights all the men of the colony can be here dancing was introduced by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas after the musicale at their cottage. It is said that other society folk will give Sunday night dances, and that the practice may be continued in New York this winter.

When golf was first played in Newport a cry was raised by some of the ministers. Now they say nothing about it, and it is not likely that they will protest against dancing, for attendance at the morning church services is larger this summer than for some years past.

When the music at the Thomas cottage was heard by hundreds of young people strolling along Bellevue avenue Sunday night—a summer custom here—Newport beauties and their escorts lingered in front of the cottage and danced on the sidewalk, while the guests within were dancing to Mr. Thomas' recent waltz composition, "La Blanche."

Forest Fires Caused Great Damage in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Man., July 19.—Bushes are again blazing fiercely in the Kootanay district of the Canadian Rockies and have caused five deaths and enormous damage to property. The most serious loss is in the Kaslo district. The town of Whitewater has been destroyed. The Great Northern railway has suffered, bridges and freight cars being burned and $100,000 worth of timber belonging to the company consumed.

Rescue trains dispatched from Kaslo were unable to pass Bear Lake and returned crowded with panic-stricken men, women and children who are being cared for by citizens of Kaslo.

MAYOR'S FRIENDS

Trying to Secure Release of Lawrence's Chief Executive

LAWRENCE, July 19.—A determined effort is being made by the friends of Mayor White to secure his release from the house of correction where he is serving a sentence of three years for conspiracy to bribe. Ex-Attorney General Herbert Parker has taken part in the mayor's case with Attorney Sullivan of Lawrence, it is said. The only visitor allowed to talk with Mayor White today was City Solicitor Murphy who was with him about an hour. J. Frank James was seen entering the institution carrying a weighty satchel. Keeper Brown reiterated his statement that no city business would be transacted at the jail. He said that his orders from the high sheriff would allow no privileges to prisoners such as Mayor White desired to enable him to be an active mayor.

The other three municipal prisoners have been allowed extra privileges to enable them to settle up their business affairs but they will come to an end this week and the prison routine will be enforced in their cases.

PART IN TEARS

Blind Man and Boy Guide Separated

NEW YORK, July 19.—A bright-faced lad of thirteen, clad only in a ragged knit jacket, thin jumper and a pair of much-worn shoes, entered the children's bureau of the charities department yesterday, leading a blind man whose raiment was also much the worse for wear.

After describing himself as Joseph Graff, homeless and without friends, the lad said to Superintendent Bauer of the children's society:

"This man has been caring for me for two months, but he is not able to provide for either of us any longer. He wants to ask you to do something for me."

The man groped about until he felt a hand outstretched to lead him to a chair, and then he said he was William Karrias, of Baltimore.

With his head down over his chest, he said slowly that because the boy had assisted him to cross a street a few weeks ago, and had subsequently taken him out to Canarsie and back to New York again, he had befriended the youngster, but that now he must yield him to the county to be cared for.

"I am 40 years old now," said Karrias, "and I have been blind since infancy. My people are dead, and my last friend left the city a year ago. I have supported myself by soliciting alms along the streets and have lived in a lodging house on West Broadway. I don't know much about the boy, except that he tells me he was unable to live with cruel parents and ran away. He said he had been sleeping along the railroad and in doorways, and I felt sorry for him and took him to lodge with me. He has led me about the city since, and what little we could beg we have divided. But now I must try to get placed in the almshouse or in a home, and I can no longer care for the boy."

Showed Courtesy to Benefactor

Supt. Bauer took Karrias and the boy downstairs to the living quarters of James Browning, the engineer of the building, and Mrs. Browning gave them eggs and coffee. The boy did not start his meal until he had opened and seasoned his companion's eggs and had sweetened his coffee.

Joseph Graveur, chief parole officer of the court of special sessions, listened a while to the tale of Karrias and the boy, and then said he would place the youngster in the Grace Farm school, at Valhalla, N. Y.

He told Karrias how he must go about applying to enter a home for the blind, and then Karrias bid the youngster goodby and asked to be led to the street.

The boy began to cry when Karrias thanked him for brightening his miserable life, and this set Karrias off also. When the pair had recovered the youth asked if he might lead his benefactor to the car, and he was allowed to do so.

EASTERN YACHT CLUB

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 19.—Four schooner yachts of the Eastern Yacht club started on the race from Bar Harbor to Marblehead this noon to compete for the cup offered by Guy Norman of Boston. The Irolite owned by E. Walter Clark crossed the line at Egg rock four miles from Bar Harbor at 12.26, then the Iris, owned by F. M. Whitehouse, then the flagship Emerald, owned by Commodore Clark and the Savarona owned by C. H. Clark, last. There was barely enough wind to gain headway. The Irolite took the lead at once and the Emerald was last.

THE TENDERLOIN

Seven all Night Licenses Revoked

NEW YORK, July 19.—Seven of the most notorious "lobster palaces" in the Tenderloin lost their all night licenses yesterday. This leaves but six of the sixty cafes and restaurants in the Tenderloin and in lower Manhattan which were operating under all night licenses a week ago free to sell liquors after 1 o'clock in the morning.

The mayor revoked all night license permits issued by the state excise department to S. J. Regan, Hotel Sterling, Seventh avenue and 50th street; the abbaye cafe, 110 West 39th street; George Rector, Cafe Madrid, Broadway and 40th street; "Joe" Adams, 156 West 44th street; Maxim's hotel, 110 West 38th street; "Jake" Wolfe's, 156 West 45th street, and Faust's cafe in the Columbus circle.

It is understood that none of the cafes in this list will be allowed to have all night licenses in the future, and the mayor has continued his refusal to issue a permit for a new license of this character to James Churchill for his new resort.

Those retaining their licenses are Furthmann's, "Andy" Horn's and the Bridge Cafe, in Park Row near the Brooklyn bridge; Alexander Hess, in William street; Mike Dowling, at Seventh avenue and Forty-third street, and Jack's, in Sixth avenue. Aside from Jack's, the resorts on the list are saloons, at which men who work during the night congregate. The mayor will probably later on issue new permits to a few of the saloons included in the list of forty-seven licenses revoked last week, which are also kept open for night workers and which have no restaurant attachments.

There was sorrow along the Great White Way last night, as the mayor practically ordered all of the centres of night life in the Tenderloin to close their doors at 1 o'clock in the morning.

While many of the habitues of these resorts are absent from the city at present, the revocation of the licenses will mean large losses to the owners of the resorts, many of whom have catered particularly to a trade which delighted to remain out after everything else was closed for the night.

If the order stands, which many doubt, it will revolutionize life in the Tenderloin next fall and winter, when the theatre season reopens, and will mean great losses to owners of many places in the Broadway district.

JUDGE KINKAID

MAY BE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE IN OHIO

NEW YORK, July 19.—Colonel Roosevelt had a long talk with Judge Kinkaid of Toledo, O., today and it was generally understood that Judge Kinkaid, who spent Sunday with President Taft at Beverly, has been suggested for republican nominee for governor in Ohio, but has indicated a desire to remain on the bench.

MIND UPSET

REVIVAL EXCITEMENT AFFECTED HARTFORD WOMAN

NEW YORK, July 19.—Mrs. Virginia Wilson, forty-seven years old, of 1103 Park street, Hartford, who arrived in New York yesterday with the avowed intention of converting the city, was resting comfortably in Bellevue psychopathic ward last night.

Mrs. Wilson, according to her family, became excited mentally over religion during the revival meetings in Hartford four years ago. Once before she left home in the hope of converting wicked New Yorkers, but her family got her back without publicity. Since then they have watched her carefully, and she had never been able to get away until yesterday.

She left Hartford on the 8.29 train, arriving at the Grand Central station shortly after 11 o'clock. She had telephoned Rev. Dr. John Emerson Zeiter, pastor of the Warren Street Methodist church (her former pastor in Hartford), to meet her at the station. He did so, and Mrs. Wilson informed him how she had come to New York to show New Yorkers the error of their ways and convert them.

Dr. Zeiter, seeing at once that the woman was of unsound mind, called Patrolman Daggett to his assistance. Between them they persuaded her to go to the East Fifty-first street station. She repeated her story to the lieutenant, and was then taken to Bellevue. At her home in Hartford last night it was said that her husband, who is a well-to-do contractor, would probably allow her to remain in the hospital for a few days, in order that her condition may be observed and an effort made to learn just how badly her mind is disordered. Her husband arrived in this city last night.

WOMAN INSANE

She Was Found a Raving Maniac — Child Found Dead in Her Room — Had Been Dead About Three Days

The residents of Gorham street, in the vicinity of the court house, were rudely aroused from their slumbers early this morning by the cries of a woman in apparent distress. She appeared at a window and was wildly excited. The people who occupied the same premises, 259 Gorham street, offered her assitance, but when they arrived they found the woman a raving maniac. Upon further investigation, a two days' old baby was discovered in her room.

The dead body of the child was removed to the undertaking rooms of M. H. McDonough & Sons, and the woman was taken to the city hospital.

From the facts that could be gathered by the police it seems that the woman has been in this city for the past three months. She belongs in the town of Leominster, and as the authorities assert has a husband living there by the name of Jesse Moody.

Dr. Meigs made a superficial examination of the body and said the child had been dead about three days, probably from birth. He would not make any further statement without an autopsy.

THE RIVET CASE

Lawyer William H. Bent, senior counsel for Napoleon J. Rivet, convicted of having murdered Joseph Gailloux, returned to Lowell yesterday and is now busily engaged in making preparations for taking further steps in order to save Rivet from the electric chair.

In conversation with a representative of The Sun this morning he said that he had just received Governor Draper's letter relative to the petition for a re-trial and had not had time to examine it very closely. He said that he would take the matter up at once and after a conference with Mr. J. H. Guillet, associate counsel, he would make another appeal to the court.

CONDITION CRITICAL

Little Boy Fell a Distance of Forty Feet

Thomas Fox, 18 months old son of Joseph Fox of 27 Rogers street, is lying at the point of death at the home of his parents, as a result of his falling from the piazza on the third story in the rear of the building and striking on his head on the concrete pavement below.

The accident happened last Saturday and the child is still unconscious, suffering from a concussion of the brain, partial paralysis and probably internal injuries.

SKETCH SHOWING WHERE THE LITTLE ONE FELL

Dr. J. B. O'Connor, who has been attending the child, has done everything in his power for the little one and entertains hope for its recovery.

The accident was a peculiar one. The Fox family occupies the third floor of the building at 27 Rogers street, close to the Concord river. The railing on the piazza in the rear of the tenement occupied by the Fox family was loose and carpenters were sent to the place by the owner of the house to make repairs. One of the slats in the railing which was broken was removed by the carpenters and before it was replaced the child managed to make his way to the place and crawl through.

He fell to the ground, striking on the concrete walk in the rear yard. Several women rushed to the yard and found the boy in an unconscious condition. He was picked up and carried to the tenement occupied by his parents. Dr. O'Connor was summoned.

THREE WOMEN

Saved the Life of One Man

NEW YORK, July 19.—At Lake Hopatcong, N. J., yesterday three young women saved the life of a Brooklyn man and tried to get to another man, also in the water. They failed to reach him in time. The rescue and drowning were the outcome of an attempt by the two men to change positions in a canoe. The men were A. H. Schroeder, aged 23, and A. Rolfs of Brooklyn.

The accident occurred at the lower end of the lake. The men were members of a vacation party and had been out in the canoe almost daily for a week. It was near Corinthian Cottage that they attempted to change places in their canoe yesterday. Their craft turned over.

Rolfs could swim a little, and when he came up reached the canoe. Schroeder was some distance away. Rolfs swam toward him, but finding his own strength giving way, he turned back and then found the breeze had carried the canoe out beyond his reach.

In a rowboat some distance away were Miss T. A. Weber, of Bay Ridge, Brooklyn; Miss M. A. Klatt, of Granton, N. J., and Mrs. Van Nortwick, of Brooklyn. They said there was a motor boat nearer to the overturned canoe than they were, but that its occupants paid no heed to the imperilled men. The women rowed to the spot where Rolfs was as quickly as possible. He could give no aid in the task of dragging him over the stern of his rescuers' boat.

As soon as they had him on board the women sought Schroeder, but he was no longer above the water.

After rowing about for a time they began to fear that Rolfs, who was unconscious, might die, so they put ashore. Dr. B. C. Welden, of Netcong, revived him. Searchers found Schroeder's body.

STRIKE DECLARED

Grand Trunk Conductors and Trainmen Quit Work

MONTREAL, Que., July 19.—Conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont railways to the number of 2500 obeyed an automatic strike order at 9.30 o'clock last night.

On Sunday when the members of the strike committee left here each man carried a sealed envelope to be opened at that hour calling a strike unless a telegram had previously been received which, upon comparison with a copy enclosed in the envelope stated otherwise.

No such telegram was sent and the strike became effective at 9.30.

Under the terms of the strike order trains which began their runs before 9.30 are to be taken through to the terminal by the men in charge.

After that the company is expected to look after its own interests.

Offered 18 Per Cent

The happenings of the day previous to the strike becoming effective were explained as follows in a statement issued by the company at 6 o'clock:

"Messrs. Berry and Murdock, with a committee representing the Grand Trunk trainmen and yardmen, met the officers of the company this morning and advised that they had received the authority of a large majority of our trainmen to order a strike in the event a settlement was not reached with the company.

"A general discussion of the situation took place, during which we advised them that we were not in a position to do more than had been offered in our former proposition, giving the men an increase of approximately 18 per cent, with the further promise that they should be given the same standard rate of pay as the Canadian Pacific as soon as the Grand Trunk, through its relation with the Grand Trunk Pacific, is in a position to participate in the higher rates obtaining on traffic in the northwest.

"By reason of the completion of that road and the obtaining of through rail connections between the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific, which should be accomplished within two years, it was explained that if there was any question of indefiniteness as to the date when the standardization was to take effect, we would agree that it should be not later than Jan. 1, 1913, or earlier if the board of railway commissioners, upon hearing of the facts in the case, should so determine.

"This was not considered satisfactory, and, the conference was adjourned until the afternoon, when we were handed the schedule of rates of pay and rules which are practically the eastern standard.

"This reply was made that we could do no better than what had already been offered, and we had no further proposition to make.

"Should a strike be ordered we feel confident that it will be found that many of the employees of the company in the train service will disregard such strike and will continue service with the company. We have a large number of applications from other parties desirous of obtaining employment, and shall also recruit largely from our own forces in other departments.

Will Close All Shops

"In the meantime, we shall make effective the rules and rates of pay offered the employees. Pending settlement of matters all shops on the system will be closed."

To this President Hays added:

"We have done the best we can, having regard to the interests of the shareholders and of the men themselves. We have offered substantial increases in wages. For instance, we give conductors between Montreal and Portland an increase from $110 to $135; between Montreal and Brockville from $90 to $140 a month; between Montreal and Toronto from $110 to $140, and baggagemen from $70 to $85, and brakemen from $55 and $60 to $80.

"On mileage rates conductors of through trips are to be raised from 2.90 to 3.36 cents a mile, and brakemen from 1.90 to 2.25 cents.

"On the runs between Montreal and Ottawa conductors are to be raised from $110 to $140 a month; baggagemen from $75 to $85, and so on.

"When I put this to the men I said further that this was a very large increase, but that if they did not think it satisfactory there was still another alternative. I said I was willing in such case to go to the arbitration of a board of expert railway men as to whether or not the proposition was fair and would be willing to abide by their decision.

"Further, I said to the representatives of the men: 'Suppose a strike is brought on, with all its disturbance of conditions and business. What shall we do eventually but settle it as I have proposed? You will have displaced a great many men, created great losses all over, and got no further ahead.' But they refused to listen to this."

Trainmen's Side of Controversy

Vice-President James Murdock of the Brotherhood of Trainmen said, in explaining their side of the case:

"We met Mr. Hays today, when he elaborated somewhat upon his original offer to the extent of saying he meant by it the award of the board of conciliation, and that the standard wage for the territory should be adopted by January, 1913.

"Mr. Hayes was told that the subcommittee and other officers could not believe that they had the right to set aside the strongly expressed position of the men, even if they were inclined to do so.

"With this the conference adjourned until the afternoon, when the sub-committee and officers presented to Mr. Hays the lowest possible basis of settlement that could be considered. That proposed to put into effect a temporary modification of the standard until January 1, 1911, in the territory east of the Detroit and St. Clair rivers.

"Mr. Hays took that under advisement and called the sub-committee back at 5.30, when he presented the company's proposition, which he said was their estimate of the award of the board of conciliation.

"The committee at a glance found that it was very far from being anything like the board's award and that in the great majority of cases where rates had been specified these rates are very much below those suggested by the board.

"For instance: On the Portland-Montreal runs we find Mr. Hays offering $2.25 per 100 miles to a passenger conductor, instead of $2.45 8-10, as filed in the board's award. We find in Montreal-Toronto passenger runs he offers conductors $2.31 per 100 miles, instead of the board's award of $2.45 8-10. The minimum standard monthly salary for a passenger conductor in the territory is $125 a month; the board recommended $101 a month. Mr. Hays suggests very many runs at $100 a month and some as low as $80 a month. The minimum monthly pay for a passenger brakeman recommended by the board was $56; Mr. Hays offers in many cases $55, a monthly increase of $5 on a $50 salary.

"Further, in his proposition Mr. Hayes ignored entirely the board's recommendation to standardize conditions on the Grand Trunk and its recommendation to put into effect the mileage basis of pay in either passenger or local freight service. Instead, he proposes to perpetuate existing conditions and in some ways to make them much more objectionable, since there would be greater inequalities than in the past.

"Therefore, we positively refused to accept his propositions on behalf of the men, who had left us our instructions with power to act. As a result, the men left the service at 9.30 this evening."

Trainmen Have $1,000,000 Fund

Asked as to what backings the international unions would have for such an extensive strike, Mr. Murdock said:

"There is a protective fund of $1,000,000 back of us now, and there will be no difficulty in getting $350,000 a month to keep the strike going. The full protective features of both the conductors' and trainmen's unions will be given with payment of strike pay of $50 a month to members of the Order of Railway Conductors and $35 a month to members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen."

The Central Vermont, which is controlled by the Grand Trunk made an effort to prevent its men going out by appealing to Washington under the terms of the Erdman act. Vice President Murdock of the trainmen yesterday afternoon received a telegram signed by Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, and Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, stating that the railway had made this application and expressing their willingness to use their offices in the direction desired. To this Mr. Murdock replied:

"Our organization always is willing to accept your friendly offices, but situation is such, considering attitude of the company, as to leave small hope for settlement as a result of mediation. Men leave this service this evening."

The order closing the shops all along the lines of the Grand Trunk will affect over 5000 men, of whom about 700 are in Montreal. It is understood that a considerable number will be offered the chance to take the place of striking conductors and trainmen, some of them being qualified by experience on the road.

Shopmen Seek Arbitration

In addition to the Montreal shops, the Grand Trunk has shops at Toronto, Stratford, Battle Creek, Mich.; Port Huron, Mich.; Gorham, Me., and Portland, Me. The men in the local shops yesterday afternoon were engaged in signing a petition to the city council, asking that body to petition to the government to appoint a board of arbitration under the Mulock act. This act preceded the Lemieux act, under which sat the board of conciliation whose award the men refused to accept, although it was signed by their representative on the board.

The Mulock act does not, however, go as far as the Lemieux act, inasmuch as it imposes no penalties whatever, but simply provides for an inquiry to be made in the matters at issue, provision being made for the appointment of an arbitrator should one of the parties refuse to name one.

The Grand Trunk made application to the minister of labor for the appointment of a board of arbitration under this act, but the minister declined, considering the reference under the Lemieux act sufficient. Under the Mulock act a municipality affected may make application for the appointment of arbitrators and the intention is to make the city council, if possible, repeat the demand which the minister of labor already has refused in the application of the railway company.

The report of a second board of arbitration could not affect the company's position and might strengthen it. The only passenger trains to leave Bonaventure depot after the strike order went into effect, the Toronto express and local, pulled out without any delay due to strike. The express was manned by a crew of French Canadians, old employes of the company, not members of the Brotherhood. A number of strikers watched it depart, but there was no demonstration of any kind.

125 QUIT WORK

DURAND, Mich., July 19.—Although at least 125 trainmen and conductors on the Grand Trunk railroad here went on strike last night, conditions are normal today. There have been no disturbances. It is understood strike breakers are operating the trains which appear to be running on schedule time.

HAVE EMERGENCY CREWS

ST. ALBANS, Vt., July 19.—The strike on the Central Vermont railroad, a branch of the Grand Trunk system, was making its power felt throughout Vermont today. Some of the passenger trains from this city started on time equipped with emergency crews recruited from railroad offices and shops. The engineers and firemen are not concerned in the strike, consequently there was no lack of motive power. The morning train from the south, due here at 5 a. m., was more than four hours late in reaching this city.

During the forenoon the railroad officials had nothing to say regarding the movement of freight. It was expected that a statement bearing upon this phase of the strike might be issued later.

NO FREIGHT TRAINS

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—Although passenger trains on the Grand Trunk railroad in and out of Portland were running practically on time this forenoon, no freight trains were moving. The principal business of the railroad on this division is the freight traffic.

NO CANDIDATE ENDORSED

HELENA, Mont., July 19.—The democratic state committee last night turned down all propositions looking to the endorsement by the state committee of any democratic candidate for United States senator and set the convention for Sept. 8 at Livingston.

Gas Works of His Airship Co. Blown Up Today

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 19.—The gas works of the Zeppelin Airship Co. were demolished by an explosion today. Seven persons were injured.

The cause of the accident has not been ascertained. Shortly before noon the gasometer burst and the surrounding walls were blown to a great distance. Nearby cottages fell in heaps of ruins while other buildings lost windows and doors. The explosion caused a panic on the opposite side of Lake Constance.

IDENTIFIED AS BANDITS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 19.—Two men giving their names as James C. Brown and Charles Dunbar, who were arrested by a constable here last night for horse stealing, have been identified as the bandits who held up and robbed the Japan fast mail on the Southern Pacific at Goodyear on April 17. The numbers on the revolvers led to their identification. They had been stolen from a Riverside store shortly before the train robbery. Dunbar, aside from answering the general description of the train crew as to appearance, has a gold tooth as did the smaller train robber.

BODIES FOUND FLOATING

NEW YORK, July 19.—The bodies of two men, believed to be members of the crew of the freight steamer H. F. Dimock, plying between here and Boston which was badly damaged during the pier fire of the Metropolitan S. S. Co., Saturday, were found floating in the North river at the foot of Fulton street today. The bodies apparently were those of a fireman about 35 years of age and of a deckhand or longshoreman about 28 years old.

FALSE HAIR HARMFUL

Now that so much artificial hair is the fashion, it is more necessary than ever that women should keep their scalps thoroughly cleansed because the present style of hairdressing is very heating and irritating to the scalp. The result is that dandruff forms, the scalp itches and the hair falls out. To guard against this condition, the scalp and hair should be washed frequently with Birt's Head Wash, a delicately perfumed preparation which has the formula printed on every package. If there is any doubt in your mind about the formula being good, ask your doctor what he thinks of it. Here it is: Refined Soap, Salicylic Acid, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil and Glycerin. MRS. H. H. ROGERS SCARED

PITTSFIELD, July 19.—Mrs. Henry H. Rogers narrowly escaped a serious accident on West Stockbridge mountain Sunday night. She was being driven with a party of friends in a big touring car over the crest of one of the steep hills at a high rate of speed on a very narrow highway.

Going up to the other side of the mountain was a motor car owned by George Cox of New York, who is spending the summer at his country place in New Lebanon, N. Y. Cox's chauffeur saw the rush of the Rogers car over the summit and pulled out into the extreme edge of the narrow road, but not far enough to avoid a collision with the Rogers car, which was badly damaged.

A protecting knoll in the road prevented the Rogers car from being overturned. All of Mrs. Rogers' party were badly frightened at the collision.

INJURED BY FALL OF A CLOCK IN CAR

Dr. C. E. French met with a painful accident Sunday night while riding on an electric car which was passing through Centralville. He occupied the front seat and was struck on the head by a register clock which became dislodged probably by the swaying of the car.

The clock struck the doctor a glancing blow on the head. He was stunned for a time, but soon recovered. He was attended by Dr. Carolin and will require to keep quiet for a few days. He is now resting at Gloucester.

COL. ROOSEVELT

To Take Stump For His Nephew

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 19.—Ex-President Roosevelt yesterday issued his first formal statement written with his own hand since he returned from abroad a month ago yesterday.

It concerned the political future of his nephew, Theodore Douglas Robinson, who, Mr. Roosevelt hopes, will be elected to congress, if nominated, from the 27th New York district, comprising Herkimer and Oneida counties. This is Mr. Roosevelt's statement:

"I distinctly state that I will not take part in any fight for any congressional nomination."

After the nominations are made, however, Col. Roosevelt says he may have a good many things to say. He will speak for many of the candidates he favors and may speak against others.

As an evidence of his interest in the congressional fight and also as outlining his attitude, the former president issued a formal statement as follows:

"My brother-in-law, Douglas Robinson, and his son, my nephew Theodore Robinson, were down to see me. My brother-in-law, who has a big farm in Herkimer county which he inherited from his mother and which has been in his family for generations, is a member of the Herkimer county grange, which is arranging for the grange picnic to be held in Utica at the end of August, and he came to extend me the committee's invitation to speak at the picnic. I have accepted.

"My nephew, Theodore Robinson, is a candidate for the congressional nomination in the 27th district, comprising Herkimer and Oneida counties. He told me that he did not desire me to take any part whatever in the nomination, because he especially desired this matter should be settled by his neighbors in Herkimer and Oneida absolutely without interference of any kind, but he desired to know whether in the event of his nomination I would come up and speak for him. I told him that of course I would, for I have long hoped that he would go into active politics, because I have a high regard for his judgment and ability and he and I are in accord in our views on public questions."

Robinson is making his canvass on a progressive platform. His opponent has the support of the Sherman-Wheeler republicans of Oneida and the Strobel following of Herkimer. Robinson declares that he represents the principles advocated by Gov. Hughes.

When Col. Roosevelt was questioned regarding the interview given by Odell, in which it was set forth with more or less sarcasm that now that Roosevelt is back the city, state and nation can rest easy, as they will be taken care of, the colonel laughed heartily.

What he said in response was not for publication. When pressed to make some public reply, he said that persons throughout the country would have to become very personal and hit hard before he would make any response.

The colonel showed great interest in the speech of Uncle Joe Cannon on the defeat of Bryan and an interview by John W. Kern. He wishes to study Bryan's predicament thoroughly before expressing any opinion. As regards the situation in Indiana he may have something to say as to the relative standing of insurgents and regulars within a few days.

Col. Roosevelt expressed great interest in the question of the New York governorship and a possible candidate for the senatorship, but believes it as yet too early to announce what position he will take.

HORSE DISEASES

Advice As to Treatment of Them

Azoturia, poisoning by Albuminoids, really a liver disease, but affects the urine to such an extent that it may be said to combine both liver and kidneys and is caused by high feeding of nitrogenized food, full feeding, keeping in stall without exercise. This disease is never seen in the horse at pasture. It shows itself only after the horse is put to work, say driven a hundred yards. The animal goes down behind, though in mild form it may be seen simply in one limb, showing lameness. The lining of the eyes and nose is seen to be dusky brown in color. The severe form of this disease usually comes on after a couple of days of rest, with heavy feeding, heaving flanks, dilated nostrils, face expression pinched, sweating and trembling. The muscles become rigid and swelled, causing the animal to move stiffly. Hence many call this trouble "Stiffs" but it is only a few moments before the animal is down. The urine if voided is highly colored, red, black or dark brown. Proper treatment will usually effect a cure, but delays and carelessness lead to tardy recovery and partial paralysis of the hind quarters ensues, while the muscles up the front of the stifle, waste and atrophy.

To prevent this sort of trouble look after and reduce the feed when the animal is not worked and never allow the horse once having had this ill to be left a single day without exercise and a warm bran mash or a laxative of half pound Glauber salts.

Mild attacks may be treated by giving a laxative, light exercise, an ounce of saltpeter and a tonic powder. In severe cases give a physic with about 4 drams of bromide potassium and one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, hot fomentations to the loins. Rub the limbs well to stimulate circulation, continue feed and treatment for a laxative condition.

Spasms of the neck of the bladder are caused in the main by hard and continuous driving, cold storms, draughts when perspiring or fatigued, diuretics, stone in the bladder, etc., indicated by stretching and straining with little or no voiding but slight dribbling in vain efforts of pain and groans, with many symptoms of colic. The position of fore legs extended forward and hind legs stretched backwards is indicative of the animal suffering from bladder troubles of this sort. This is often coupled with impaction of the bowel as well. In such cases use a catheter when possible. Otherwise spread clean straw or litter under the animal. Pour water in a small stream from one pail to another establishing sympathetic action. Rub the abdomen with wisps of straw and give warm, soapy water enemas. Have the water quite blood warm. Paralysis of the bladder may follow or exist with spasms of the neck of the same. Occur from tetanus, rheumatism, hemeplegia, disease of the posterior and of the spinal marrow, broken back, palsy of the tail and hind limbs shown by constant dribbling, when the neck is included, running down the thighs. If the neck is not involved the urine is retained, until the bladder is largely extended, when it is voided in a gush, though the bladder is not emptied. Suppression of urine is caused by stone obstruction, consequently this confusion should be overcome by actual examination along the whole course of the duct. Treatment is of avail only in certain cases. Sprains of the back or disease of the spinal cord, which are remediable, should have proper treatment, and the catheter frequently used. If the bladder trouble exists after recovery of the spinal trouble, apply mustard and water or a good stimulating liniment to the back part of the belly in front of the udder, until the hair stands on end. In the horse apply same between the thighs, well up and downward. Warm water enemas and a laxative condition, tonic the system and as an experiment electricity may be tried.

NEW MOTH PEST

Has Appeared in the Vicinity of Medford

Medford's latest moth pest may yet be the worst. Although the smallest as an individual, he bids fair to become the biggest in numbers and the most dangerous in his depredations. He may be the insect that will damage hte American forests more seriously than any other pests that have preceded him. He is a miner and works inside of the leaves.

From the fact that there is no known way of attacking the caterpillar without destroying the trees, he is a particularly difficult proposition to deal with. Fortified by his position during his whole working life against the attacks of birds or other parasites and also against the weather or any poisonous spray that may be directed at him, he is safe from ordinary assault.

The new caterpillar and moth are practically unknown. Whether they bear a name or not cannot be stated. They were discovered two years ago this spring by Gen. Samuel C. Lawrence in his woods, eating away at the inside pulp of the leaves of some small oak undergrowth. Since then they have spread over many acres of his estate and the adjoining Fells reservation, and now there are more millions of them in the woods than there were persons found by the United States enumerators in the whole 1910 census.

The caterpillar in question is from 1-8 to 3-16 of an inch long, a little flat, translucent creature of a yellowish green or darker color that eats his way between the upper and under epidermis or skin of the leaf. What he devours is the parenchyma or soft pulp of the leaf. Wherever he works, his traces are visible in the rapidly spreading brown spots on the green leaf which gradually curls up as the life is sucked or eaten out of it. As many as 100 of these tiny caterpillars have been counted in a single oak leaf which goes to show the plentifulness of the insect.

The oak shrubs seems to be the first infested. Then the pest spreads up into the trees, working his way toward the top. He seems to have a special fondness for red and white oaks, but walnut and linden trees have also been found infested.

As the worm is inside of the leaf it can readily be appreciated why the arsenate of lead that is spraved on the outside of the leaves apparently has no effect on them. This fact also explains his impregnable position so far as the birds and various other parasites are concerned. The insect is a "miner" and works all the time below the surface.

About May 20 last the big tower on Ram's Head hill and the adjacent trees were fairly covered with a shower of the little white millers of this particular insect. About that time the eggs must have been laid,—nobody knows where,—and later the little caterpillars must have come into existence. During the last four weeks their presence has been noticed with an ever increasing spread till now there are hundreds of trees the leaves of which are entirely brown.

Splitting open the brown spotted leaf, you will find half a dozen or several score of the tiny caterpillars under the thin upper skin. Just now the caterpillars are mostly full grown, a large portion of them are pupating and a few have transformed into flying millers. In two months the cycle from miller to miller has been completed. How many cycles take place in the season will be known later.

Under the microscope the full grown caterpillar apears to be something less than 3-16 of an inch in length. Except for his flat appearance,—his width being four or five times his thickness and one-fifth of his length,—he looks like the rattler of a microscopic rattlesnake. There are 11 of these articles or rattles with a sharp little head at one end and a dark little tail at the other. As the caterpillar matures he seems to grow darker. When in the pupa state he is something like the color of iron rust or a little redder. This pupa is encased in a small film of white silk like the finest waxed paper which is attached to the inside of the heavier underskin of the leaf. This white film or cocoon is circular in form and about one quarter inch in diameter.

In the same leaf this week may be seen a large number of crawling caterpillars, also pupae in all stages, including some where the wings are fast developing. Some of the youngest caterpillars are almost as colorless as small shrimp. Minute spots, apparently of black excrement, are scattered about on the lower thickness of the leaf.

To see the creature at work you must get your leaf and split it open by lifting off the thin upper skin,—a trick which is easily done, thanks to the skill and thoroughness with which the insect does his work.

It may be that some device may be arranged to destroy the multitudes of millers that will soon be flying and thus bring about a reduction in the possible numbers of the next generation. But the problem is not an easy one.

These little miners are not the only new moth pests that have been discovered in the Fells. Last year and this year it was found that the tops of some of the red oaks on the Lawrence estate were being defoliated. Gen. Lawrence took a large quantity of the caterpillars to the state forester who sent them to William E. Fiske, the entomologist at the Melrose parasite station. Mr. Fiske has given considerable study to these caterpillars and found that there were 12 varieties among the specimens submitted. Just what they were he was unable to state, but whatever their names they are exceedingly hardy and voracious, too.

On July 9 of this year some strange caterpillars were found on the big elm tree in front of Gen. Lawrence's stable. As they were entirely unlike any caterpillars that the men had seen before a large number of specimens were sent to the Melrose parasite station. A single twig one foot long contained 135 caterpillars. At Melrose they were recognized as the "morning cloak butterfly" caterpillars, which are common in the western states, where they are extremely partial to willow trees, but are seldom seen in the east. They were more than one inch in length and had two rows of horns or spines extending along their back with 11 in each row.

PRESIDENT TAFT

Paid a Visit to Eastport, Me., Today

EASTPORT, Me., July 19.—When the presidential yacht Mayflower pointed her way up the Lubec narrows this morning a president of the United States for the first time in history reached the northeast corner of the country. Eastport was appropriately excited. Flags and bunting were displayed along the waterfront and the entire population was early astir in getting the little town in readiness for the coming of the distinguished guest. Soon after 8 o'clock people from the surrounding villages began to arrive. Some came in farm wagons, some in automobiles. The Mayflower was not due to arrive until 11 o'clock and the president was not expected ashore until 2 p. m., but Water street and the docks were thronged by 9 o'clock. From the moment the Mayflower reached the open sea she became the target for inspection by passengers and crew of every passing vessel. The yacht arrived off Eastport early this morning but loitered in the open sea while the party breakfasted.

ANOTHER FIGHT

BETWEEN JEFFRIES AND JOHNSON SEEMS LIKELY

CHICAGO, July 19.—Plans for another battle between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson were outlined in a letter by Joe Choynski. "I'm so firmly convinced that Jeffries can whip Johnson the best day he ever lived, that I'm advising him to bet $50,000 of his own money and then challenge Johnson, the winner to get the entire receipts and the side bet," declared Joe last night. "Jeffries' defeat is told in two words—'mental collapse.' True, he was in excellent condition physically, but his mind and heart were affected and when he entered the ring his brain refused to act. For weeks and weeks before the fight Jeffries received hundreds of letters daily from admirers imploring him to whip Johnson," continued Joseph. "They told him that he was 'the hope of the white race.' That preyed on his mind. He did not confide his troubles to his camp associates and the weight on his mind simply unnerved him."

FUNERALS

McCUSKER—The funeral of the late Joseph McCusker, one of the young men who was drowned Sunday, took place this morning at 8 o'clock from the home of his uncle, Mr. Michael Broderick, 26 Moore street, and was very largely attended. The funeral cortege proceeded to the Sacred Heart church, where at 9 o'clock a solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Lawrence Tighe, O. M. I. The sanctuary choir sang the Gregorian mass. THE SMOKE LAW

Inspector Greenleaf Gets After the Mills

He Charges Violations and Says He Means Business — He is Without Office or Help From the City, But Will Enforce the Law

Despite the fact that the city council has refused to appropriate $200 for necessaries and that he is denied an office at the city hall, Roy M. Greenleaf, Lowell's smoke inspector, is going right ahead and is determined to do business. There is no pay attached to the job of smoke inspector and it became known today that Mr. Greenleaf was paying rent on a typewriter at home.

"Yes, it's true that I am paying rent for a typewriter with which to do the city's work. Mr. Dowling, clerk of committees, very kindly suggested that I might use his typewriter, but I do not want to put him to that trouble and the chances are that when I would want it he would be using it.

"I think it is pretty small potatoes on the part of the city council to delay the appropriation of $200 for the few things that I require. The mayor recommended to the city council that the money be appropriated, but it would seem that the board of aldermen is not in sympathy with the mayor. They do not take kindly to his suggestions. I suppose that's what you call petty politics, isn't it. The fate of the appropriation suggested by the mayor is now in the hands of the committee on appropriations and it remains to be seen what disposition will be made of it.

"The only encouragement I receive on the job comes from Mayor Meehan. I had a talk with him this morning and told him what I was doing and intended to do. I told him that I had communicated with and received letters from mill agents and that I intended to enforce the smoke law. He told me to be sure that I was right and when convinced that I was right, to go ahead. He said he would stand back of me."

Mr. Greenleaf then referred to correspondence he had with mill officials. He wrote to Agent Wadleigh of the Merrimack mills advising that official that the smoke inspector had noted a violation of the smoke nuisance at the Merrimack mills. The following reply was sent the inspector by Mr. Wadleigh:

Lowell, Mass., July 1, 1910.

Mr. Roy W. Greenleaf, Office of Smoke Inspector, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: I have your letter of June 27th in which you specify dates on which this company violated chapter 102, sections 122 and 126 of revised laws, as regards smoke nuisance. We are very much surprised to note the extent of violation and do not see how we can possibly agree with your letter. We have had a custom in vogue here for years of comparing our smoke every half hour with the Ringelmann chart and noting same. Record of June first taken by Ringelmann chart, does not agree with your letter. We might possibly have a better understanding of the matter if we understood your method of observation. At your convenience, would you mind calling at the office, either to see the writer or our chief engineer, Mr. Pilkington, and compare notes as to methods used, etc. I will say that frequently this company is blamed for black smoke, when in reality it come from a chimney almost in direct line with ours, but immediately back of it, and owned by another concern. I assume that you are entirely familiar with the Lowell chimneys, and it could not have been a mistake in your report based on the wrong chimney.

Yours truly,
J. C. Wadleigh, Agent.

Inspector Greenleaf's Reply

Lowell, Mass., July 11, 1910.

Mr. J. C. Wadleigh, Agent, Merrimack Manufacturing Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of July 1st, questioning the correctness of my observations of your chimney on June 1st, I am very glad to explain my method of observing up to the present time. In the near future I intend to adopt a closer system of grading smoke for use in which I shall employ an instrument which is being designed by a Boston gentleman.

All of my observations have been made from the city hall tower, where I can have unobstructed view of all chimneys; and in the absence of a Ringelmann chart, for which I have sent but have not as yet received, I have graded smoke as of but three densities—gray, dense gray, and dark gray being equivalent to No. 2, or 40 per cent, dense being equivalent to No. 3, or 60 per cent, and dark being equivalent to No. 4, or 80 per cent black of the Ringelmann chart.

ROY M. GREENLEAF
Smoke Inspector

It is not the policy of this office to persistently worry or badger any corporation or concern by unnecessary or unwarranted demands, but to require and expect compliance with the requirements of the law by whatever method they see fit, tending to the reduction and final elimination of the smoke nuisance as it exists at the present time. No suggestions are offered other than a flue gas analyzer or C O 2 recorder would prove a revelation as to coal waste.

I am familiar with the chimney to which you refer and I assure you that I have not overlooked it or mistaken it for your own at any time.

I shall be pleased to accept your invitation to call at an early date, and I thank you for the opportunity.

Very truly yours,
Roy M. Greenleaf,
Inspector.

The following letter from Agent Southworth of the Massachusetts mills to the smoke inspector is self explanatory:

Lowell, July 6, 1910.

Mr. Roy W. Greenleaf, Smoke Inspector, City Hall.

Dear Sir:

I received from you several weeks ago a copy of the smoke laws, and although I have not been notified that the Massachusetts chimneys are offenders, I think I may as well explain to you the situation.

We are just about to start on the foundation of a new steel frame boiler house and coal bunker, with chimney stack, adjoining. The boilers we are to install for the relief of our present boilers will be equipped with stokers and will be very nearly smokeless, and the starting of them up which I am afraid will not be much before next spring, will relieve our old boilers which have no stokers so that they will smoke less than they do.

Under these circumstances we must either smoke as we are doing for some months to come, or shut down our mills. If you will let me know whether you have marked our chimneys as offenders, I will apply for a permit until next May.

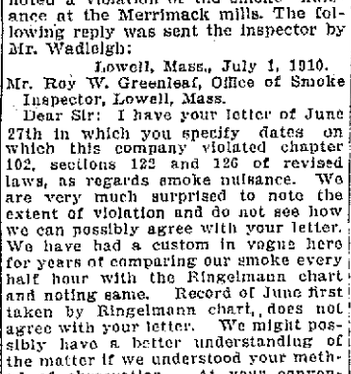

Yours truly,
W. S. Southworth, Agent.

Mr. Greenleaf has not replied to Mr. Southworth's letter but will do so in a few days.

Since Inspector Greenleaf addressed his communication to Agent Wadleigh of the Merrimack mills he has received a Ringelmann chart from Washington, D. C., and he is thoroughly familiar with it. He is a firm believer in the abatement of the smoke nuisance and to say that he is well posted on the question is putting it mildly. He is posted on scientific investigations and called the reporter's attention to the following item in the New England Engineer:

"Scientific investigations in Leeds, England, made by a professor of the University of Leeds, show that in the business section about 300 tons of soot per square mile reached the ground."

Mr. Greenleaf claims that the United States Geological survey claims that 90,000,000 tons of coal are used on 51,000 locomotives in the United States. Of this coal 40,371,000 tons are wasted. It is estimated that 10,080,000 tons are lost by the smoke.

EXPULSION OF JEWS

At the Rate of Forty-Five a Day From Kiev

KIEV, Russia, July 19.—The expulsion of Jews from Kiev is at the rate of forty-five individuals a day. From July 4 until July 15, 497 were expelled by what is known as the second method. That is they were actually forced to leave town. During the same period 1121 persons were expelled by the first method, which in effect is a warning for their departure but permits them to remain for a settlement of private affairs.

During the twelve days mentioned there were 166 expulsions from Solomenka and 151 from Demieffka. Since May 14 when the imperial decree ordering that all Jews who could not establish a legal right of residence elsewhere should be returned within the pale of the restricted district of the Polish provinces and the Ukraine became effective, there have been expelled from this city, Solomenka and Demieffka 3001 persons by the second method and 3641 by the first method. However, in making this total of 6642 allowance must be made for a large percentage of duplications in the count. Many have been expelled only to return and be sent away again while the expulsions from Solomenka and Demieffka are largely composed of those who were originally expelled from this city. Officers of the Jewish relief committee of Kiev stated today that, roughly estimated, seven hundred families had been already sent out of the city and four hundred families were still subject to such treatment. The larger figures furnished day by day indicate the mobility of the expelled, many of whom persistently return to Kiev to face repeated expulsion.

In the case of the latter the authorities have adopted drastic measures, the returning ones frequently being accompanied from the city by gendarmes and in many cases banishment by "etappe" has been resorted to. This system provides for the shipment of batches of Jews to their final destination under escort of relays of guards.

MAN ADRIFT IN DORY

HIGHLAND LIGHT, July 19.—A man adrift in a dory was picked up off Pamet river at 9 a. m. today by the steam yacht Sagamore, bound from Boston to Vineyard Haven. The men is believed by shore observers to have been a fisherman. The dory was drifting toward the breakers when the yacht was seen to pick it up.

GIRL WAS DROWNED

CASTINE, Me., July 19.—Miss Beulah McIntyre, an 18-year-old girl, was drowned in Castine harbor last night. Miss McIntyre was canoeing with Thomas Hahn when the canoe was accidentally upset and the young woman sank.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE

Autoists Fatally Injured Two Men and Left Them to Die

LINCOLN, R. I., July 19.—The body of James O'Rourke, 55, a laborer, employed at the Lonsdale bleachery, was found early today on Lonsdale avenue, while on the other side of the road James Larkin, 35, another laborer, was found probably fatally injured. Both men had evidently been struck by an automobile, the occupants of which had stopped and laid the victims by the roadside and left them there to die. It is believed the auto was going in the direction of Woonsocket and the police of that city and the intervening towns have been asked to look out for the car.

6 O'CLOCK

Were Aired in Police Court This Morning

In police court this morning was a light docket, and the court's time was taken up with a number of domestic disputes and family troubles. William J. Lally was before the court for the non-support of his better half, and Judge Pickman after quite an investigation, decided that William was guilty, and advised him to lead a different life. The sentence imposed by the judge was a suspended one of six months in jail, and during that time he will be in the custody of the probation officer.

Rather Go to Jail

George F. Drolette was also given a suspended sentence of six months for non-support of his wife, but he said he would rather serve three months than live with her again and the court granted his request. There was a conference afterwards which may result in a better understanding.

Sent to Jail

Stephen Shaughnessy was in a very bad condition, and the court thought he ought to have a rest at the Lowell jail for the term of 10 days.

A Milk Case

Mrs. C. A. Frost was charged with keeping milk under the standard and she pleaded not guilty, and said she had no intention of doing anything wrong. Inspector of milk and vinegar Masters testified as to the analyzation of the samples, and Deputy Inspector James E. Hill told the court just how he received the samples. The court took the matter under consideration.

The Drunks

Charles H. Crocker, Sarah A. Donahue, Joseph Dupuis, Edward Bonley, and George Watson were respectively fined six dollars, and the court after hearing the testimony in Watson's case, revoked the sentence and gave him in charge of the probation officer.

There were seven $2 fines, and seven released by the probation officer.

SENSATIONAL BREAK IN COTTON

NEW YORK, July 19.—The sensational advance in July cotton culminating at 16.55 yesterday was followed by as sensational a break during today's trading. Between the recent urgent buying of contracts and the heavy shipments of cotton in this direction from Liverpool and the south it looked as if the July shorts had secured cover and when some cotton was offered today the price suffered severely. After selling at 16.41 early July gradually worked off to 15.95 and from that price broke to 16.65 without a single sale while only a few thousand bales changed hands during the entire morning. August sold at a net loss of 39 points and the new crop broke anywhere from 20 to 22 points.

FORTY WERE INJURED

DUBLIN, July 19.—Forty persons were injured in an accident on the Great Southern railroad at Roscrea, in the northwestern part of Tipperary county today. None was killed.

TO ADJUST FRIEGHT RATES

WASHINGTON, July 19.—An adjustment of the eastern freight rates situation probably will be made within a few hours. The plan involves a voluntary suspension for several months by the railways of the advanced rates.

STEAMER ON FIRE

COPENHAGEN, July 19.—Fire broke out today on the German tank steamship Standard in the harbor with a cargo of petroleum from Philadelphia. The oil was soon blazing fiercely. The shipping is prepared to quit port at a moment's notice. The Standard on June 30 was in collision with the White Star liner Baltic.

PLAYING GREAT BALL

Lowell Adds Another Victory to Its Credit

BROCKTON, July 19.—Lowell batted Sweeney, the Brockton pitcher, hard in the game yesterday and won 8 to 1. Nine of the 14 hits made by the visitors were recorded in the third and fifth innings when the scoring was all done. Yount held Brockton down to four hits. The score:

DIAMOND NOTES

The Fall River Herald gives this report of repartee which took place in that city the other day, when Worcester was playing there: "Balk," cried Page, the second baseman for Worcester. "Guess not," replied Rorty. "Balks apply only to base runners." Page got a couple of players to take sides with him and insisted that he was right. He got so huffy about it that Burkett could stand it no longer. "Aw, what are you giving us?" shouted Burkett across the diamond. "You're wrong, Page, and the umpire is right. Go out and spend a dime for a rule book before you start to tell us anything about rules." Page subsided, but he holds to the opinion that the umpire was wrong.

Haverhill fans think that Cain looks the goods at third corner. In the last two games he has had seven chances, which he has accepted without a miscue. He also has made four runs, three hits for a total of four.

Pipe artists in Pittsburg have sent out the story that Detroit is to replace the Pirates in the National league as representatives of the Smoketown men beginning with the season of 1911. Just plain bunk, because the Pirates have not yet hit their stride.

A Fall River newspaperman says that Manager O'Brien is to have a conference with Tom McCarthy, scout for the Cincinnati National team, and talk over the Bedient deal. The last time Cincinnati was in Boston, the business manager of the team, Frank Bancroft, said that Mr. McCarthy was not scouting for his club. He was last season, but his services closed with the season in October.

Provoked by the action of Johnny Evers when the Trojan kicked himself out of the double header on the west side, Chicago, thereby disorganizing to a large degree the veteran machine work of the club, Manager Chance last night promised a fine of $100 for the next member of his team to be ordered from a game. He says he is going to break up the habit among his players of rearing at every decision, and will himself, hereafter, do all the talking.

The New Bedford Standard says: "It seems peculiar how some club series go. Manager O'Brien over in Fall River can dress anything up in a uniform, bring it over here and have better than an even chance of winning, although New Bedford is ahead in every other series. Up in Haverhill they can dress any kind of an amateur up and trim Lowell, Haverhill having won seven out of nine this year against Gray's team, and having lost every other series."

A dispatch from Washington says: So far as the catching department is concerned it is already assured that the Nationals will be better fortified behind the bat next spring than they have ever been before. Charley Street has never had good assistants to help him out, and this has thrown the bulk of the work on his shoulders. Not since he came here has he had any one who could come anywhere near filling his shoes. But next spring Street will have Ainsmith and Henry to help him out, two willing youngsters of ability. This thing of carrying a lot of has-beens on the catching staff does not help any team, and the Nationals have been fortunate indeed in not having Street out of the game with any serious injury.

Mathewson of New York has 83 strikeouts to his credit, and Earl Moore of Philadelphia, 77. Moren of the Quakers has 75 and Rucker comes next with 65. Fred W. Walker, former university of Chicago star pitcher, yesterday signed with the New York Giants and joined the team at Pittsburg. "Buggs" Raymond says Walker will develop into a "wonder." Johnson struck out thirteen men in eight innings against St. Louis, just before the senators left for Detroit, but the game was called with the score a tie on account of rain. The Browns tied the score on a wild throw by Johnson.

ACCUSED PASTOR

ARRAIGNED ON CHARGE OF ABDUCTING GIRL

SCHENECTADY, July 19.—The Rev Clintin DeWitt Sharpe, abductor of pretty fourteen-year-old Eunice Whittaker, of South Schenectady, was arraigned here yesterday before Justice of the Peace Siegel. The court room was crowded, most of the spectators being women. When Sheriff Hathaway appeared with Sharpe shouts of "Tar and feather him!" "Horsewhip him!" "Lynch him!" arose. The preacher appeared unconcerned. As he was being led before the justice he leisurely turned and gazed at the spectators, and then at Asa Whittaker, father of the abducted girl. Although he is frail in build, he showed no nervousness and answered all questions with distinct voice.

"Have you engaged counsel?" was the first question asked. "No, sir. It is not necessary. I intend to fight my own battles," was the quick reply of the minister.

The charge was then read, and Sharpe answered "Not guilty." When asked if he wanted an examination, he replied he did not, and that he would waive examination and await the action of the grand jury.

Hoping to clear the room of its excited crowds, Sharpe was led back to his cell, and after a majority of the spectators had left he was again brought before the court and asked the customary questions by the district attorney. The grand jury does not meet again until September 26, and as no bail was fixed, Sharpe must remain in jail until then. The penalty for his crime is from five to fifty years in state's prison.

FEW TRAINS RUNNING

Strike Has Left Grand Trunk Practically Idle

MONTREAL, July 19.—The strike order issued on the Grand Trunk road at 9.30 last night and instantly obeyed by fully 3500 conductors and trainmen, whose demands for wage increases had not been met by President Hayes of the railroad at the final conference yesterday, caused practically complete paralysis of the freight movement throughout the greater part of the system today and few if any passenger trains were put out.

All suburban trains on the Grand Trunk railroad running into Montreal were cancelled this morning. Thousands of business men and others were compelled to find other means of reaching the city. Milk trains were also cancelled and a large section of the city is threatened with a milk famine.

When the 1500 employes of the Grand Trunk shops at Point St. Charles reported for work today they found the shops surrounded by a cordon of 350 policemen and notices posted that the shops were closed in consequence of the strike of conductors and trainmen which started last night. The men returned to their homes peacefully or gathered in groups discussing the situation.

Union officials here say that the object of the Grand Trunk in closing its shops is to force the shop employes, many of whom are old trainmen, to take the strikers' places. The union officials say that if this is the intention it will not succeed.

PARTLY TIED UP

BUFFALO, July 19.—As a result of the Grand Trunk strike the Wabash railroad is partially tied up. Wabash train number 1, a fast express for St. Louis, which arrived at 2 o'clock this morning from the east, did not get away for nearly seven hours. Other trains were delayed but not seriously. J. J. Mossman, general agent for the Wabash along the Niagara frontier today said: "The strike on the Wabash is the result of the Grand Trunk strike and we were powerless to prevent. On its line from Buffalo to Windsor the Wabash is operated in connection with the Grand Trunk and we are bound with the Grand Trunk agreements so there was no choice about the matter."

SOME TRAINS CANCELLED

MONTREAL, July 19.—Shortly before noon today the Grand Trunk officials claimed that the strike of conductors and trainmen inaugurated over its lines last night had not had the effect of tying up its service, but admitted that some local trains had been cancelled and that freight traffic had been practically compelled to come to a standstill. They insisted that all important passenger and mail trains were moving as usual. The International Limited from Montreal to Chicago, the company's most important day train, left Bonaventure station here as usual at 9 o'clock this morning in charge of a non-union crew.

The company expects to replace the strikers by recruits from the shops.

The strike embraces all the company's lines from Portland, Maine, to Chicago. It involves nearly 5000 trainmen and conductors. In addition the action of the company in closing its various shops throughout Canada and Michigan throws probably 10,000 additional workers out of employment.

The strikers state that they are less concerned in the stopping of passenger traffic than in tying up the freight traffic important in crop carrying, and this, they say, they have succeeded in doing completely.

Both sides appear to be out for a determined struggle. The union officials say they will acept nothing less than the wages and conditions prescribed in the standardization rules and the company says it cannot meet any such conditions.

The company is congratulating itself on the eleventh hour settlement made with the telegraph operators yesterday which removes that branch of the service from the participation in the trouble.

The principal points involved in the strike are, in addition to Montreal, London and Stratford, Ont. and Port Huron and Battle Creek, Mich., in all of which places the company has workshops.

Appeal has been made by the men employed in the shops at Montreal to the mayor and city council for arbitration under the Mulock law. These city officials will tender their offices to both sides today but it is not believed that it will have any result.

The Grand Trunk early posted notices at Bonaventure station that all local trains had been cancelled. Another notice warned all persons not having business on the premises to leave.

PRACTICALLY IDLE

BOSTON, July 19.—Some 700 miles of railroad in the New England states was made practically idle today by the strike of conductors and trainmen declared last night throughout the entire Grand Trunk railroad system. This 700 miles in the strike here is merely New England's small share in a strike of 3500 employees on 4700 miles of trackage composing the great Grand Trunk system.

The strike in New England affects 166 miles of the main line of the Grand Trunk road, extending from Portland, Me., across the northern portion of New Hampshire and a small piece of northeastern Vermont to the Quobec boundary line where it continues to Montreal. In the Central Vermont and New London and Northern roads, which are controlled by the Grand Trunk, there are 536 miles of track extending through Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The number of trainmen on strike on the New London and Northern and the Central Vermont branches of the system is about 360. Another hundred may be on strike on the main line of the main road between Portland and Montreal.

Because of the strike the railroad shops at St. Albans, Vt., where 150 men are employed were closed this afternoon. The shop employees before closing time adopted a resolution condemning the strike of the trainmen.

Freight traffic was tied up generally throughout the New England states where the Grand Trunk and its allied lines operate. Passenger traffic was moved more or less regularly though generally passengers, like perishable freight, were "subject to delay."

Some of the passenger trains were manned by strike breakers while others were taken care of by station agents and clerks from the offices of the company. Others had their crews recruited from the company's shops.

All of the through trains were delayed anywhere from half an hour to four or five hours. Local passenger trains ran nearer to schedule although far from their customary regularity.

Montpelier, Burlington and Island Pond felt the strike keenly. At Island Pond the strikers were joined by the men who worked in the railroad shops. St. Albans was in better shape, from the company's standpoint, than any other place in Vermont. The trains in St. Albans, although manned by emergency crews, ran on almost the usual time with some slight delays.

Freight was not moved at all today. This was due, it was said by railroad officials, not so much on account of the strike on the Central Vermont line, as because there was no freight being received from western points over the Grand Trunk lines.

MOTHER SAVED HIM

FLINT, Mich. July 19.—The brakeman on a westbound Grand Trunk passenger train which passed through Flint this morning was attacked by strikers here. They threatened taking him off the train and rushed for the car which he was on. Just as they were mounting the steps a woman who said she was his mother stepped on to the platform and shouted that before they could touch her son they must deal with her. The strikers retreated and the train pulled out. As it left the mother stepped off.

MAY BE ARBITRATED

MONTREAL, July 19.—A new turn was given in the situation of the strike of the Grand Trunk conductors and trainmen here shortly after noon by the receipt of a despatch from the minister of labor at Ottawa offering on behalf of the government to appoint a board of arbitration to act on the trouble between the company and its employes, the finding to be binding on both and the government to bear all expenses in connection therewith.

The offer was submitted in the form of a letter to President Hays of the Grand Trunk and the head officials of the unions involved.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon both sides to accept. It is thought that from the fact that President Hays has already made an offer to arbitrate the difficulty that the company will accede to the proposal.

Except for this offer the morning developed nothing new in the situation. Advices from all divisional points of the Grand Trunk in Canada and from Port Huron and Detroit indicate the company is having greater difficulty in keeping its trains moving than was at first apparent. At some points no tickets are being sold because of the inability of the company to guarantee a complete journey. The train which left Stratford, Ont., for Buffalo at 10.45 this morning carried no passengers. At Hamilton, a great centre of trades unionism, trouble is feared as soon as strikebreakers begin to appear and the police precautions have been redoubled.

Freight jams are reported at Hamilton and Toronto, large industrial centres, while the yards of Montreal are full. An official of the company predicts that the entire train service will be resumed within 48 hours, basing his prediction, he said, upon the company's apparent ability to secure all the new men it wants.

Union officials bitterly denounce the company for closing the shops at this time and thereby forcing 10,000 men into idleness.

The latest calculation of the number of men rendered idle by the strike and lockout runs to 16,000.

SIX MORE BATHS

To be Installed at the Eliot School

Six more baths are to be installed in the basement of the Eliot school. This conclusion was arrived at yesterday, and the playground committee of the Middlesex Women's club will pay the freight. Boys and even girls resort to and flounder about in the mud pond on the common. Almost everything imaginable is thrown into that pond and it is unsanitary. The supervisors and the committee talked the matter over and yesterday the committee consulted with the park commission and the school authorities with the result that the baths will be installed at once and it is hoped that some plan can be devised whereby the girls can use the showers at stated times.

Says Do it Now

Mr. Whitcomb, superintendent of schools, calls attention to the fact that it is never too early to vaccinate the pupils who are now on their vacation. Mr. Whitcomb never called the attention of parents to this matter so early in the year, but he thinks it is well that they should have it in mind. He says that the law demands that the child shall be vaccinated and quite frequently they come to school at the close of the holidays without being vaccinated and that means that they will lose anywhere from two weeks to a month with sore arms.

SCOTLAND YARD

Has a Clue in the Crippen Murder Case

LONDON, July 19.—Scotland Yard today obtained what is believed to be a clue to the disposition of the bones with which the flesh unearthed in the cellar in Hilldrop Crescent once formed the body of Belle Elmore, wife of Dr. Hawley Crippen. The detectives ran across a woman who said that Miss Leneve had been her friend and had talked to her in confidence about the mysterious visits paid by Dr. Crippen to the neighborhood of Regents park. The theory of the police is that the bones of the murdered woman may have been carried in some small parcels to Regents park and deposited in the Regents canal. This development has strengthened the belief of Miss Leneve's friends that she is innocent of any knowledge of the crime. At the inquest yesterday the physicians testified that the flesh had been carefully and skilfully carved from the skeleton. It has been deemed of great importance to discover the missing members, including the head, hands and feet, in order to complete the body and thus establish legally the case of murder.

With the evidence at hand the police have not as yet been able to determine so much as the sex of the victim. The authorities today offered a reward of $1250 for information leading to the arrest of Dr. Crippen. He left his office at 1 p. m. on July 9, since which time no positive trace of his whereabouts has been discovered. Supt. Forest of Scotland Yard does not admit that any important discovery has been made.

There is still hope that the fugitive pair may be found aboard the Red Star liner Kroonland.

FAMILY STARVING

Found in Sad Condition Under a Pier at Coney Island

NEW YORK, July 19.—Ordered by the doctor at a public dispensary to take her sick babies to the seashore or lose them, Mrs. Fannie Glunstein, 39 years old, of 268 Cherry street, has been living in the sand under a pier at Kensington Walk and the ocean at Coney Island for eight days with her five children; Isador, 7 years; Hostel, 5 years; Rachel 3½ years; Philip, 2 years, and Catalin, 2 months old.

There they were found last night on the verge of starvation by Sergeant Daniel O'Connell, known as "Handsome Dan," who was formerly connected with the Chinatown precinct, and who has a heart as big as a watermelon.

Mrs. Glunstein had had almost nothing to eat in the eight days she and her children had spent on the sand. When O'Connell asked her to stand up last night, she attempted to do so and collapsed. The children are little more than living skeletons.

Their father is a cloakmaker in a Manhattan sweatshop, who, when he had employment, worked from 15 to 17 hours a day for small pay. Recently he was thrown out of employment by the cloakmakers' strike, and the family has had only what the father could beg to eat.

When Sergeant O'Connell came upon the little family at 8 o'clock last night Mrs. Glunstein and her brood were huddled together in an effort to keep warm. A stiff wind was blowing in upon them from the ocean.

"We came here a week ago Saturday night," she said. "We live in a couple of rooms at 268 Cherry street, and Phillip and the baby, Catalin, have been very sick. I took them to a dispensary and the doctor said that unless they were sent to the seashore they would die. The hot weather was killing them.

"We had no money. My husband, Abrahim, was then working in a sweatshop fifteen or seventeen hours a day. He went to work at 5 a. m. and came home about 9 in the evening. I waited until he came home and told him what the doctor had said. 'Well,' he said, 'I don't know what we can do. We have no money.' I sat up all that night thinking.

"When my husband got up at 4 o'clock to go to work I told him I would take the children to Coney Island to get the fresh air. I could not remain in those two rooms and see my children die before my eyes. So off we went to the island, and we found a fairly comfortable place under the pier here. My husband came down that night with some bread for us. I told him I would remain in that spot until the children got better.

"My husband had to work very hard. It was midnight every night before he came down to see us. He brought whatever he could get for us to eat. He got no sleep, for he had to report for work at 5 o'clock in the morning. He was nearly worn out himself when the cloakmakers' strike threw him out of employment.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

"Master and Man," at Lakeview theatre is pleasing every one who has seen the play, for it is perhaps one of the best plays of its kind ever written.

In it Mr. James Thatcher, the leading man, plays the role of "O'Neil, the Sailor," and his interpretation of the part could not be better. The other member of the company are all cast so that every one will have the role best suited to his talents and the whole makes a play of exceptional strength, admirably staged and well acted.

The curtain at the matinee rises at 2.30 and in the evening at 8.15, thereby giving every one a chance to see the fine attraction that is being offered this week.

ADVERTISING CLUBS MEET

OMAHA, Neb., July 19.—The convention of Associated Advertising clubs of America got down to business today.

Thirteen addresses, five in the forenoon and eight in the afternoon, were scheduled for today, chief among them being the address of former Vice President Fairbanks.

P. H. McDonald of Methuen, formerly of Lowell, was a visitor in the city today.

MAN WAS KILLED

In South End Lodging House in Boston Last Night

Alleged Assailant Raved After the Death Shot and Called For Morphine—The Victim Sought Interview Due to Wife's Story

BOSTON, July 19.—James F. Farrell, 42 years old, married and living at 906 Washington street, corner of Broadway extension, South End, where he conducts a lodging house with his wife, shot and killed James H. Lawson, 28 years old, in the house at the address named above, at 8 o'clock last night.

Farrell was almost immediately arrested by Patrolman Thomas P. Healey of the Lagrange street station, but not without a battle in which he drew his revolver.

Patrolman Thomas P. Healey was pulling in a duty call at box 26 at the corner of Washington street and Broadway extension at 8.02 o'clock when he heard two revolver shots. Screams of women followed and Patrolman Healey instantly located the cries in the lodging house. He ran to the doorway at 906 Washington street and hurried up the stairs.

When he entered a room on the third floor he found a man upon the floor bleeding from the ears, nose and mouth and another man sitting disconsolate upon the side of a bed, and two women wringing their hands, weeping and screaming.

Patrolman Healey grabbed the man who was seated upon the bed and started down the dark stairway and to the box with him.

When the policeman and his prisoner reached the second landing, which was dark, the prisoner stopped and began to resist the officer. He managed to reach his hip pocket and draw his revolver.

With a quick blow of his fist, Patrolman Healey knocked the revolver out of Farrell's hand and he then secured the weapon and put it in his own pocket. He went to the box and sent in a call for an ambulance and the patrol wagon.

When they arrived he sent the prisoner to the station house in charge of the wagon men and went back to the house. Lawson was taken to the City hospital.

Lawson was dead when he was picked up from the floor and after the ambulance arrived at the hospital the body was sent to the morgue. Lawson died from an internal hemorrhage.

Mark for Two Bullets

Lawson was struck by two bullets.

The first one lodged in his left jaw toward the point of the chin.

The second bullet passed through the right arm and into the arm pit, severing an artery and causing an internal hemorrhage.

Every exit to the house was promptly guarded by the police following the shooting and the witnesses detained. All of the witnesses were taken to the Lagrange street police station and were separated from each other so that they could not discuss the facts in the case among themselves.

Chief Inspector Joseph Dugan was sent for and arrived at the station house in a short time.

In the meantime, Farrell, booked on the charge of murder, was raving like a madman in his cell.

He begged for cigarettes and morphine. In the opinion of the police he was under the influence of drugs. He was sallow, haggard and his eyes had a wild stare and the pupils were much distended.

"O, officers, get me some morphine and some cigarettes and I will be satisfied," he shouted. "I will not care about anything else."

Like a Man in a Trance

Farrell behaved like a man in a trance when he was brought into Deputy Supt. Lawrence Cain's office to be interviewed by Chief Inspector Dugan. He wore a gray summer sack suit, a Panama hat, a high collar and a white four-in-hand tie. He has a sandy mustache, sandy hair and large blue eyes. He is a French Canadian and came from Ottawa, Can., a year ago.

Farrell begged again for drugs, but when somewhat calmed, he said:

"Mrs. Lawson is my wife's niece. On Sunday night I had to call in two policemen to throw two men out of my house. They were making bother and attacking me.

"I bought a revolver today to protect myself with. I feared Lawson would kill me because I had trouble with him on Sunday night.

"Tonight Lawson came into my room and began to abuse and upbraid me about his wife. He told me that if I had any arguments with her that I must have them in his presence. Then he struck me. Then I drew my revolver and shot him and the women came into the room and then the policeman. I do not remember any more. I was afraid he was going to kill me."

Mrs. Lawson, who was the first witness to tell her story to Chief Inspector Dugan, said:

"Mr. Farrell came into my room Sunday night and began to upbraid me and he struck me in the face. I told my husband about it. Tonight my husband went to Mr. Farrell's room to talk to him about it and to ask him to tell his troubles to him and not to me.

"I tried to persuade him not to go, but he was offended at the manner in which Mr. Farrell had treated me and he insisted upon going. He went and I soon started to follow him upstairs.

"Mr. Farrell's room is on the third floor. When I reached the landing outside the door I heard a revolver shot and a scream. I hurried and I also heard Mrs. Farrell, my aunt, coming upstairs behind me.

"Just as I entered the room, Mr. Farrell fired the second shot and I saw my husband fall to the floor. In a moment Mrs. Farrell entered the room and we screamed and wept. Then the policeman came and took Mr. Farrell away and others came and removed my husband."

The Trouble on Sunday Night

One other witness, a young man who is a lodger in the house, told of the trouble on Sunday night, and he also said that he heard loud words between Lawson and Farrell last night, and that later he heard the two revolver shots and saw the results of what happened.

The revolver taken from Farrell by Patrolman Healey is a new 38-caliber five-barrel affair. Three cartridges remained in the weapon and the shells of two that had been discharged.

Farrell also had a small paper box filled with morphine tablets in his pocket when he was arrested. He had evidently taken some of them previous to the shooting.

Farrell is employed as a piano tuner and polisher, and Lawson was employed in an Atlantic avenue shipping office. Lawson came from Nashville, Tenn.

The scene at station 4 was a most pathetic one last night while the investigation was in progress. The women did not know the shooting was fatal until Lieut. Goodwin and Sergt. Martin King found it necessary to break the news to Mrs. Lawson. She is a tall young woman of comely appearance. When told of the death of her husband she almost fainted.

Mrs. Farrell walked the floor of the guardroom constantly, weeping and wringing her hands. She said Lawson was a good man, industrious and sober at all times. She begged to be permitted to go to the hospital to see him, and when she was finally told he was dead she was almost prostrated.

Preparing Case Against Farrell

The witnesses were permitted to return to their home after the investigation, but Sergt. King and Patrolmen John Moran and Patrick Healey went out in search of two who left the house immediately after the shooting.

Farrell will be brought to police headquarters this morning to be re-examined and to be photographed and measured. He will be arraigned in court later and his case will be continued for an investigation and the preparation of the case by the police.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the vicinity as a result of the shooting and a throng of men, women and children gathered in the streets.

Patrolman P. J. Healey was congratulated by his superiors last night for his work in arresting Farrell and in securing the witnesses to the shooting.

MOTHER ANGRY

THAT HER BABY WAS OVERLOOKED AT SHOW

The recent baby show held at Lakeview park has left a sting and baby shows ought not to have any stings. A woman carrying a baby in her arms called at this office last evening and asked to see the editor. The auto editor answered the summons, but when he found out that the visitor wanted to talk babies he referred her to the baseball editor, who is considered a splendid judge of babies and who has been known to lecture on prepared milk. He smiled on the fond and gracious mother, tickled the baby under the chin and declared him to be the prettiest baby boy he had seen for ages. "I don't think so," said the fond and gracious mother. "I know he is not the prettiest baby in the world, but, just the same, he should have been awarded a prize at the baby show at Lakeview park. He would have received a prize, too, but for the fact that that Mr. Gage thought he was the whole shooting match. The women who were appointed didn't have a word to say about the babies—Mr. Gage said it all. It was a case of race prejudice, so it was, and if they will hold another baby show I will give to the woman who will present a baby of my baby's age and weighing as much and looking as well as my baby, $5 in gold."

Even the baby laughed at the baseball editor he looked so helpless. When first called he thought perhaps that an anxious mother had called with a sick baby to have him instruct her as to the use of prepared milk. He was not prepared for a charge of race prejudice, but he told the lady, on his word of honor, that he would do all in his power to bring about another baby show, at which the judges would be men who can tell a handsome baby when they see one.

HELD IN $2,000

In Connection With "White Slave" Case

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—Charged with bringing Cora Conrad, a pretty young girl, here from New York and then forcing her to live a "white slave," John Bureas, a swarthy young man picked up in the police crusade to prevent starting of traffic in girls in this city, was held under $2000 bonds by Acting Recorder Grove yesterday and placed in jail to await the action of the October grand jury.

The girl, who was found in a tenderloin resort by Detective Herbert, made a pitiful plea for protection from Bureas, whom she claimed lured her from New York with tales of gay and jolly times at the shore.

The police are still holding the girl as a witness against the man and will endeavor to find her parents, who reside in a New England town, which the girl refuses to name because of the disgrace to her family.

SAILOR IS SAFE

CREW HAD MOURNED HIM AS DEAD

BOSTON, July 19.—When the fishing schooner Walter P. Goulart warped into a berth on the north side of T wharf late yesterday afternoon her colors were at half mast and there was mourning on board for one of the crew who was believed to have been lost.

Capt. Goulart and his crew learned, however, that the missing man had been picked up and brought here and was now safe at his home in Gloucester. The flag was quickly lowered and all hands went forward to learn the story of the rescue.

The Goulart was on Georges July 10, and the men were out hauling trawls. A heavy blanket of fog shut in and all the men hurried back to the vessel except Joe Robert, a Portuguese fisherman, who lost his way. The schooner cruised about in the vicinity all that day and night, burning torches and sounding her fog horn, but the missing man could not be located.

Robert, it appears, rowed in the opposite direction from the vessel and, after being three days and nights in the open dory, was picked up off Matinicus by one of the Maine steamers and taken to Rockland. He was afterward brought here and sent to his home in Gloucester.

The Goulart brought in 60,000 pounds of fish.

BETRAYED BY WOMAN

Bank Teller Arrested on Charge of Stealing $100,000

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Eluding the police of several cities and private detectives for more than two months, J. Howard Lowery, alias James H. Johnson, wanted in Utica, N. Y., on a charge of embezzling more than $100,000 from the Utica City National bank, was betrayed into the hands of a detective here yesterday by a woman and taken out of the city to New York state before the local authorities were aware of what was going on.

His arrest is the reward of perseverance on the part of Daniel J. Kelleher, a detective in the New York office of the American Bankers association. Lowery was a note teller in the bank and disappeared last April while an examiner was going over the bank's books.

When the police and private detectives started to look for the missing man they had nothing on which to work, but at last Kelleher got a clue that led to several cities and then to Wilmington, Del. He learned that a woman was in correspondence with the former teller and he spent many days in Delaware city before he learned her address, and then kept watch of her for nearly a week.

Sunday night the detective's vigil was rewarded. As he was standing in an alley near the woman's house he saw her leave with a dress suit case. He followed her to a railroad station and into a train for Philadelphia. In confronting her, he forced her to tell Lowery's address in this city. That done, he took her back to Wilmington, leaving a guard to see that she did not communicate with Lowery.

Then he came here with another detective. They stationed themselves near a house on North 16th street, where the woman said Lowery was living, and were on guard five hours when the man they wanted came out.

Stepping up to him, Kelleher told Lowery he was under arrest. Lowery was stunned for a moment, but quickly recovered and asked to be permitted to pack his suit case, which he was allowed to do.

Lowery occupied a little third story room, having asked for a room at $1.25 a week when he went to the place two months ago. The landlady said Lowery, whom she knew as "Johnson," usually left the house every morning as if for business, returning in the evening. "All the man's mail came from Wilmington," she said.

Lowery, it is said, agreed to waive all legal technicalities here and accompanied his captor back to Utica without resistance. Kelleher and his prisoner were out of the city before the local police learned of the arrest from the newspapers. Captain of Detectives Souders said that taking a prisoner out of the state without the formality of requisition was equivalent to kidnapping, and he purposed making a thorough investigation.

DISAPPEARED LAST APRIL

UTICA, N. Y., July 19.—J. Howard Lowery disappeared from Utica April 27 last. He had been the note teller in the Utica City National bank, and had been employed for a long time, and was implicitly trusted.

The bank examiner came here and made an examination of the bank, leaving in the afternoon. That night in going over his figures he discovered what he thought was a strange coincidence, and he returned to the bank in the morning.

Soon after he entered the bank Lowery went into another room and thence from the bank, carrying with him, it is alleged, $4000 that he had taken from a drawer on his way out. His absence was not discovered for an hour, and then he could not be traced.

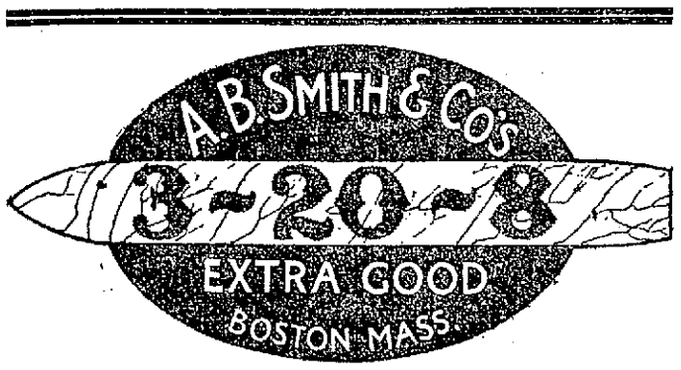

Lowery's alleged shortage was more than $100,000, and his stealings, it is said, had been going on for six years. He lost most of the money, it is believed, in the stock market.

A second warrant was sworn out yesterday by the bank officials, charging Lowery with grand larceny. His case is to come up in the U. S. court.

HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE

MILFORD, N. H., July 19.—Louis Nardin was held last night in $500 bonds on the charge of attacking Annie Broome, 15 years old, near her home here. The girl said that while she was walking up to her home on North street a man stepped out of a dark place along the road and seized her. She says she recognized him as a man she saw standing on the station platform when she left the train and believes he followed her.

The girl declares she screamed and fought him and he finally disappeared in the underbrush. Nardin was arrested yesterday afternoon.

A MOST DASTARDLY AUTOIST

That dastardly autoist who ran down an aged man on the Billerica road Saturday night and left him there to his fate should be severely punished if known. It might have been by accident the man was struck, but it was not by accident he was left there dead for aught the chauffeur knew. It was a cold-blooded, audacious piece of business. The man who did it was afraid of the consequences. Perhaps he thought he had killed a man but he went ahead to escape detection. It is too bad he was not found out that he might be punished as he deserves.

SUNDAY'S DOUBLE DROWNING

Another double drowning occurred in the Concord river on Sunday, making eight drownings during the present month. One of the young men who entered the water could not swim, and although the other made a courageous attempt to rescue him he was unable to do so on account of the death grip secured upon him by the drowning man.

These drownings are a continual object lesson in favor of public baths at which all young people could learn to swim. If we had the public baths few would go to the rivers or canals to bathe, and if everybody could swim there would be little risk of drowning if they did go in bathing in such places.

CANNON AND HIS CLAPTRAP

Speaker Cannon in an address at Kansas City on Saturday delivered one of his customary tirades against the press of the country and undertook to defend the tariff law, stating that it was unfairly criticized because certain schedules were held up as unjust, whereas the law taken as a whole is the best that could be devised.

He says: "The discontent of a people is not measured by complaints in the press. The pocket nerve was never in better condition than today, and that is the real evidence of confidence on the part of the American people in the economic policies of the government."

That is a sample of Cannon's political claptrap. Both statements are false, but perfectly characteristic of Cannon.

Cannon is still as unrepentant and pugnacious as ever. He will fight for anything bearing the label republican. He contends that he is right and that the people who criticize the tariff are wrong, although he admits that in the past thirty-five years he has been wrong as often as a score of times.

The country wants to get rid of Cannon and Cannonism; it wants to get rid of the standpatters and the policy they represent; it wants to get rid of the excessive tariff that has driven up the cost of living to unprecedented figures; it wants to get rid of the alliance between the republican party and the trusts which gives the combinations of capital the power to write their schedules in the tariff law and enables them to control the government of the country. There is little hope of securing these reforms with the republican party in power and, therefore, the remedy is to elect a democratic congress this fall and a democratic president in 1912. The republicans will make a great effort to change the public mind upon these questions during the coming fall, but in spite of the fact that Roosevelt, Taft, Lodge, Cannon, Sherman and a great many other party leaders will be on the stump, we do not believe they will be able to cajole the people into another endorsement of the republican party and its policies.

THE CLEANING UP OF LAWRENCE

The great question under discussion at the present time in Lawrence is how to stop grafting. There is considerable talk as to certain employes of the city who, it is alleged, obtain their places through payment of a certain amount to city officials supposed to have some influence in making the appointments. These matters should be thoroughly investigated by the district attorney so that there may be a general cleaning up and that every guilty official may be punished.

Chief Hamilton of the fire department is under indictment for alleged irregularity in securing his office. It is up to the district attorney to see that Chief Hamilton be speedily tried and that if guilty he be punished with the other officials already convicted.

Chief Hamilton has been the main cause of the trouble which culminated in the conviction of Mayor White, and it is due to the city that he be tried without delay. The chief trouble, however, with the city of Lawrence in the past has been that when indictments were brought they were hung up by the district attorney and never brought to trial. For that reason the city officials assumed that the recent indictments could be turned aside in a somewhat similar way. Public sentiment had grown too strong, however, and the district attorney was forced to bring them to trial.

We are not quite certain whether the people of Lawrence are satisfied with the progress in the direction of reform that has been made since the election of Mayor White on a reform platform. We are of the opinion that the trials that have just taken place and those that are yet to come will do more for reform than has been done in Lawrence for the past ten years. It will teach the people a lesson as to the kind of men they should elect to public office and as to what these men should do as public officials. It will put a stop to grafting and the political turmoil that has been in vogue and that some people think necessary to good government. We are also of the opinion that Lawrence is likely to adopt the commission form of government same as Haverhill so that there will be fewer officials to watch and that a better class of men will be selected for the offices to be filled.

The citizens of Lawrence feel very keenly the disgrace that has come upon them in the conviction of the mayor and other officials, and are likely to adopt radical measures to bring about the desired change not only in the personnel of the city government but in the organic law under which the city is to be governed. Lawrence, we have no doubt, will rise triumphant a cleaner and a better city after the present cleaning up by the courts.

SEEN AND HEARD

"People have the automobilists to thank for the changed attitude of restaurants and hotels toward the put up to take out lunch," said the outing man. "A few years ago any of our swell establishments would have looked askance at anybody who asked to have a lunch put up to take out, but now that it is considered the correct thing the most expensive restaurants, the choice little tea shops and expensive lunching places are all playing tag with one another to get the latest kinks for the put up lunch. They have all sorts of attractively decorated paper plates and cups, napkins and table cloths that can be used once and then thrown away, and the salads, the sandwiches and the arrangements of cold eggs, fish and meat are wonderful.

Tailors were credited with an excess of religious zeal by the new minister who found them much more willing to advertise in the new church magazines than other tradesmen of the neighborhood.

"It's the kneeling that fetches them," said a wise old trustee. "If you don't believe it just notice the last line of all their advertisements. That says, "Trousers creased on Mondays for half price." I never saw a church magazine yet that wasn't popular with the tailors, nine-tenths of whom offer Monday morning bargain rates for creasing trousers.

While walking down a crowded city street the other day
I heard a little urchin to a comrade turn and say,
"Say, Chimmy, lemme tell youse t'ing
Be happy as a clam
If I only wuz de feller dat me mudder t'inks I am.

"She t'inks I am a wonder an' she knows her little lad
Could never mix wit' nuthin' dat wuz ugly, mean or bad.
Oh, lots o' times I sit an' t'ink how nice 'twould be, gee whiz!
If a feller wuz de feller dat his mudder t'inks he is!"

My friend, be yours a life of toil or undiluted joy,
You still can learn a lesson from this small, unlettered boy.
Don't aim to be an earthly saint, with eyes fixed on a star,
Just try to be the fellow that your mother thinks you are.

—Will S. Adkin.

Little knots of people stood expectantly outside the eye and ear infirmary.

"What are they waiting for?" some one asked.

"News from an operation on a bad pair of eyes," said a doctor. "Nowhere does news travel faster than in the neighborhood of an eye hospital. Serious operations are not advertised by a brass band, yet somehow the report leaks out that a difficult case is to go under the knife at a certain time and interested persons flock around the gates for news. Real sympathy, not morbidity, is back of that interest. Attendants who are informed as to the progress of an operation are very obliging about passing the news along."

The vacuum cleaner operator tells how he lost a customer.

"The third story left woman comes to me and says she would it be possible to keep the sweepings from her flat separate from other sweepings and return them to her in a jar? I said it would, and when the flat had been swept I emptied the dirt into her little glass jar.

"Next time I called she met me at the door with another jar, bigger than the first. Says she: 'You also sweep the third floor right apartment, do you not?'

"I said I did.

"'Very well,' said she. 'Will you oblige me by emptying their sweepings into this jar and giving it to me?'

"Instinct told me that the woman was laying a trap for somebody and I walked right into it like a fool. Next time I called the third floor right woman gave me my walking papers.

"'What's wrong?' said I.

"'You have betrayed me to the enemy,' said she.

"When I got down stairs the doctor on the first floor told me what she meant by that. Both women had had a standing quarrel for years as to which was the best housekeeper. A comparison of vacuum sweepings gave the prize to the woman who had provided me with the glass jars, so of course her rival had no use for me after that."

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Charles Goodrich Whiting has retired from the place of chief literary editor of The Republican, which he has filled with distinction for some 35 years. He had previously been connected with the local news department of the paper for a considerable period. He is succeeded as chief literary editor by Francis E. Regal, who has been his associate in the work for a long time past, and Mr. Regal is succeeded in turn as associate or assistant literary editor by James Brewer Corcoran, who has been the dramatic editor for a number of years. In retiring from the active work of newspaper making Mr. Whiting will not sever his connection with The Republican. He will continue to contribute both to its literary and editorial columns, but will be relieved from the burden of office work. He is spending most of the summer at his farm in Otis.

Apropos of the near completion of the new Campanile of St. Mark's an interesting ceremony was held in Venice the other day in front of the Porta delle Carta of the Ducal palace, when the four bells which are to be placed in the Campanile were dedicated. These bells are a present from Pope Pius X. There were present at the dedication besides the mayor various members of the Venetian guilds and Cav. Monaretti, who, in collaboration with Barigozzi di Milano, designed and cast the bells in April, 1909. There were also a sprinkling of notables, including the Duca degli Abruzzi, cousin of the king, who is in command of the arsenal at Venice, and Cardinal Cavallari. The ceremony, which was partly religious and partly civic, followed the traditional exercises on similar occasions, with altar, mass, and incense.

THE KING'S OATH

O'Brien to Bring Up American Request

The following despatch appears in the N. Y. World.

LONDON, July 19.—Fourteen million American Catholics, members of the Catholic federation of the United States, have sent a respectful but earnest protest to King George, pointing out that that part of the accession oath which the king takes is insulting to Catholics.

Patrick O'Brien, M. P., one of the Irish nationalist party whips, said yesterday that he would ask Prime Minister Asquith in the house of commons if he knows that this protest has been forwarded to the king.

"I shall also ask Mr. Asquith," said Mr. O'Brien, "what reply has been or will be made to this vast body of people who live under the flag of the most important power in the world which is friendly to Great Britain."

It is not likely that any answer but a formal acknowledgment of its receipt will be given to this protest, but its effect will help the government to pass the bill changing the accession oath.

King George himself, soon after his father's death, informed the ministers that he has an invincible objection to reciting the declaration which he will have to make, unless it is changed meantime, the first time he meets parliament after his accession.

BILLERICA

At a special meeting of the selectmen of the town of Billerica held last night a warrant was prepared for a special town meeting which is to be held in the town hall on August 2. The warrant contains nine articles, the most important being one relative to whether or not the town will vote to borrow nine thousand dollars payable in nine equal instalments and issue town notes therefor on one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight and nine years, and appropriate the proceeds for building a reinforced concrete bridge across the Concord river at Faulkner street, North Billerica, removing the store house of the Faulkner Mfg. Co., standing east of said street and making such changes in said street as may be necessary according to the plans presented by the committee appointed in connection with the building of said bridge." Another article is relative to borrowing the sum of $700 to instal fire escapes on the Pollard school in Billerica Centre.

There will also be an article in the warrant relative to borrowing a sum of money to be used with the amount appropriated at the last annual town meeting to build a walk for foot passengers on the southerly side of Fordway bridge. The sum voted for this work last March was $600, and according to Civil Engineer Worthington of Boston, who was here last week for the purpose of examining the premises it will take $1500 to do a substantial job.

An article relative to macadamizing a portion of River street will also come up for the consideration of the voters.

TYNGSBORO

Mr. and Mrs. Horace T. Bancroft and their daughter Persis joined the Tyngsboro colony at Salisbury beach last Wednesday.

In pursuance to a petition from John O. Heinze of the Lowell Automobile club, the selectmen have issued a call for a public hearing on July 21 at 8 p. m. in the town hall, relative to closing certain highways in the town on Sept. 15, 16 and 17.

The Misses Mansfield who have been stopping at Mrs. Celia Hunter's have returned to their home in Wakefield, Mass.

Rev. N. S. Hoagland and daughter Gladys went Monday to North Weare, N. H.

MR. MILES SURPRISED

Mr. F. Leslie Miles, teacher of piano and organ, was surprised Saturday night when a number of his friends called at his home, 41 Royal street, and presented him a sectional bookcase. The presentation speech was made by F. L. Orrell and Mr. Miles accepted it after thanking the friends and signifying his appreciation. Mr. Miles was also the recipient of a purse of money from his parents.

During the evening games, songs, etc., were enjoyed and at a late hour the party dispersed with many good wishes for Mr. Miles, and a pleasant recollection of the event.

A JAILED MAYOR

QUESTION IS CAN HE STILL HOLD OFFICE

A Springfield exchange published the following on the situation in Lawrence:

Mayor William P. White of Lawrence is now in jail to serve a three-year term on conviction of conspiracy to bribe, and the question agitates that city whether he is still mayor, or can continue to act as mayor during the remainder of the time for which he was elected. It is being pointed out that no state law covers the case. There exists no power in the governor to declare the office vacant. It is contended that under neither the laws of the state nor the charter of the city would impeachment proceedings be against the jailed mayor. The only statute which has so far been found as possibly applicable to the case is section 7, chapter 210, Revised Laws, as follows:

A legislative executive, judicial, county or municipal officer who corruptly requests or accepts a gift or gratuity or a promise to make a gift or to do an act beneficial to him, under an agreement or with the understanding that his vote, opinion or judgment shall be given in any particular manner, or upon a particular side of any question, cause or proceeding, which is or may be by law brought before him in his official capacity or as a consideration for any speech, work or service in connection therewith, or that, in such capacity, he shall make any particular nomination or appointment, shall forfeit his office, be forever disqualified to hold any public office, trust or appointment under the constitution or laws of this commonwealth, and be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than 10 years or by a fine of not more than $5000 and imprisonment in jail for not more than two years.

It will be seen that this does not fit very closely a case of bribery on the part of such a public officer to secure the removal of another municipal officer; and it was not employed in connection with the conviction and sentence of Mayor White.

There is, however, another statute which has so far not been mentioned in relation to this situation. It is somewhat similar to a provision found in Springfield's city charter and doubtless to be found in the charter of Lawrence. It is section 20, chapter 26 Revised Laws, as follows:

Except as otherwise provided by city charters, upon the death, resignation or absence of the mayor, or of his ability to perform the duties of his office, the chairman or presiding officer of the board of aldermen shall perform such duties; and if there is no such officer, or if he is also absent or unable from any cause to perform such duties, they shall be performed by the president of the common council; or, if there is no such office, by such alderman as the board of aldermen may from time to time elect until the mayor or chairman or presiding officer of the board of aldermen is able to attend to said duties, or until the vacancy is filled as provided by law.

The mayor of Lawrence is undoubtedly, within the meaning of this act, absent from his official post, and he is also doubtless unable to perform the duties of his office within the meaning of the act; and accordingly a vacancy exists whose filling is amply provided for by the statute. Section 30 of the same chapter provides that the person upon whom the mayor's duties devolve shall be called "acting mayor," and "shall possess the powers of mayor only in matters not admitting of delay, but shall have no power to make permanent appointments." These limitations, however, are of no particular consequence. Appointments which need to be made can be made ad interim, and other necessary executive acts can be performed just as if the acting mayor were the regularly elected mayor. It thus seems absurd to suppose Lawrence cannot escape from the official grip of Mayor White until the end of the year and of his official term.

It is to be noted meantime that the people of Lawrence elected this man mayor by a large plurality in full knowledge of the fact that while he was milk inspector of the city in 1893 he was found guilty of attempting to extort money from milkmen and paid a fine of $300. If the statute first quoted above was then in existence, he was plainly disqualified to run for mayor or to hold the office; and it is an amazing fact in any case that a community could be found in this state to elect a man with such a record as that to any office. The people of Lawrence deliberately invited the scandal that now shames the city, and they merit precious little sympathy.—Springfield Republican.

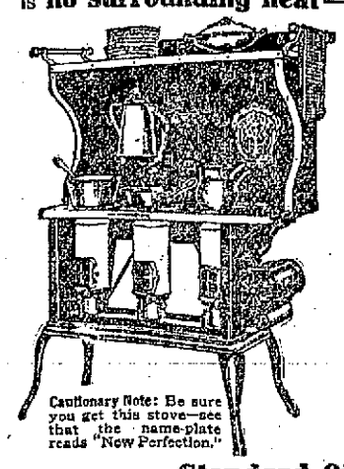

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking — none in outside heating.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

GRAPE FRUIT

IT WAS DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN

Who discovered grape fruit? A writer in Leslie's Weekly says: "Few of the thousands who daily enjoy the wonderful tonic found in these big, buttercup-yellow globules that have become a breakfast necessity to Uncle Sam's discriminating children know that they are indebted to a woman for discovering the value of the once despised fruit as a table delicacy. Not more than fifteen years or so ago the grapefruit was a thing without value—a product interesting because of its decorative appearance. Now the number consumed annually in the United States exceeds 4,000,000 boxes, which means approximately a half a billion grapefruit. About one million of these are grown in Florida, from which comes the story of the grapefruit's bow to the epicurean world. The woman to whom grapefruit growers should take off their hats is Mrs. Frank Leslie. She was on a visit to Henry Plant, the builder of the East Coast railway, in Florida. James E. Ingraham was then, as now, the vice president of the road, and it was in his car that Mrs. Leslie and her party traveled. On reaching the home of Mr. Plant, the travelers were first introduced to the delights of the refreshing citric fruit, which hung in clusters on the trees, bending the branches down almost to the ground. Thousands of bushels lay on the ground under the trees from which they had fallen. There was no market for them. Only a few of the native Floridans liked them, so the fruit that could not be eaten by Mr. Plant's immediate friends was left where it fell. Nearly every plantation in lower Florida had numbers of the grapefruit trees, and under each one was the same display of golden-yellow balls which had fallen from the branches. Passing one of these plantations, Mrs. Leslie asked the planter what he would take for his crop. 'Why, madam, there is no market for it. Nobody wants grapefruit. Help yourself.' The party helped itself, and grapefruit was thenceforth a regular part of the daily menu. So much did Mrs. Leslie appreciate the fruit that she decided to introduce it to her friends up north. She carried home several boxes, and later Mr. Ingraham sent her forty barrels, which she distributed among her friends, with instructions how to prepare them for the table. Encouraged by the unanimous praise which issued from each recipient of the fruit, Mr. Ingraham had a famous New York physician make an analysis of it and to certify to its remarkable qualities as a tonic, especially in the spring. As a result of this combined effort of Mr. Ingraham and Mrs. Leslie, a demand for grapefruit grew rapidly."

FOSS CLUB FORMED

To Advocate Eugene N. Foss for Governor

A number of prominent democrats met last evening and organized what is supposed to be the first Foss club in the state. The meeting was very enthusiastic, the prevailing sentiment being that with Hon. Eugene N. Foss as the standard bearer, a democratic victory is assured this fall. The claims of other candidates for governor were discussed and while it was believed that some of these might win, owing to general dissatisfaction over the situation, it was urged that all others owed it to the people and the party to withdraw and allow the strongest possible candidate, Congressman Foss, the father of Canadian reciprocity, to make the fight.

John J. Devine, esq., was elected president. Henry F. Carr was elected secretary.

By-laws were adopted, the main features of which are the purpose of the club "to bring about the nomination and election of Hon. Eugene N. Foss as governor of Massachusetts;" and the requisite for membership, which is as follows: "Any voter may become a member by enrolling his name and voting address with the secretary, on a roll provided for that purpose, signifying his desire to become a member of the E. N. Foss club of Lowell."

The enrollment book will be open on Tuesday, July 19, at the store of Secretary Henry F. Carr, 98 Gorham street, and voters may become members of the club by calling there and subscribing their names and addresses, or by sending their names by mail.

LOWELL HAS SCHOOL HOUSES FOR SALE

Lands and Buildings Committee Would Sell Them—The Training School May Be Included

If the recommendation of the committee on lands and buildings is adopted by the city council the red flag will fly from at least three of our public schools.

The committee met last night and when the schoolhouse question was broached the committee declared in favor of selling the buildings that are no longer of use to the city for school purposes.

The committee recommended a loan order of $25,000 for the proposed stable on the city lot at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher street.

Mr. Dow said he had talked with Supt. Whitcomb about selling various of the unused schools of the city. Mr. Whitcomb seemed perfectly willing to dispose of the Fayette street school, but didn't want to lose the School street building. He favored disposing of the old Middlesex Village school, although there seems some doubt relative to the right of the city to sell this.

Mr. Qua suggested the sale of the Middlesex Village, Fayette street and old Moody schools, the money to constitute part of a fund for the erection of new schoolhouses. Mr. Byam thought that money might become part of a fund for the annual up-keep of the school furniture.

The chairman thought a communication might be sent to the school board asking the members if they had any objection to the sale of the Fayette street, old Middlesex Village, School street, the old Moody and the Training schools, and if such objection there be to state it. This was embodied in a motion made by Mr. Whittet, and it was so voted.

Mr. Dow spoke of connecting the Central street school with the Chapel street school, by steam pipes. Stoves are now used in the Chapel street school. Mr. Tarrant thought the Chapel street school ought to be closed, and an addition built on the Central street school.

Mr. Dow said the Howard street school, which is now heated by stoves, ought to have a boiler installed. A boiler would cost $150 and this could heat the building properly. It was voted to recommend the appropriation of $150 from the general treasury fund for the purchase of this boiler. Mr. Dow said it would cost more money to heat the Chapel street school than it would for the Howard street school. He considered it better to heat this school separately, rather than to connect it with the Central street school.

Mr. Tarrant moved that $200 be recommended appropriated from the general treasury fund for the purchase of a boiler for the Chapel street school.

Adjourned.

"JIM" CORBETT

Has a Man to Meet Johnson

NEW YORK, July 19.—James J. Corbett has an "unknown" under cover who he hopes will show himself fit to win the title that Jim Jeffries lost to Jack Johnson at Reno.

Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter who staged the fight between Johnson and Tommy Burns, has been sufficiently impressed to put out a challenge in behalf of the unknown, backed by a $5000 forfeit, to be used later as a side bet. If Johnson declines, the offer is open to any other man worthy to be considered a candidate for heavyweight honors.

Corbett refuses to make known the identity of his protege, and there is some doubt in sporting circles that he has anything more specific in mind than a desire to see Johnson whipped.

McIntosh, who is now in New York, says in his challenge:

"The unknown will be named by Jas. J. Corbett and will also be trained by him, the fight to take place in the United States, England or Australia, and I agree to offer a purse, the amount of which will exceed that offered by any other person.

"As an evidence of good faith I am willing to deposit the sum of $5000 as a guarantee that Timothy Sullivan or any other responsible person, the same deposit to go as a side bet if desired.

"The only stipulation I make is that the contest be for 20 rounds or over."

THEATRE VOYONS

Notwithstanding the summer is regarded by most amusement managers as the hard season and when they retrench in their programs the management of the Theatre Voyons never finds any hard times and has even increased the expense of presenting its program during the hot season. The theatre is artificially ventilated and pure, cool, fresh air is always to be found in the theatre. A pleasing feature of the week is the talks by Herbert Leroy, who tells the story of the leading dramatic feature in a way that makes plain to everyone the most minute details of the play. His talks are neither tiresome nor poorly prepared, and they meet the approval of everyone who hears him. The feature today, "Out of the Night," written by Rex Beach, is one of the cleverest and most appealing love stories yet given to the public by the noted author. The characters are finely drawn and the story itself holds the interest every minute.

SAVE THE BABIES

Editor Sun:—

The Ascension society makes a move to save babies. Mothers with their little sick ones can spend all day in the pine grove situated in Lakeview Garden at the junction of Tyngsboro road which has been purchased by two women for the purpose of helping to save the little ones who are taken ill. A camp adjoining has been negotiated for by the society and will furnish nourishment free if necessary for mothers who have to remain with their little ones. About ninety house lots in all are now at the disposal of the society. The public will be called upon to aid some in the work. The location is ideal, and it is expected that the electric street railway company will aid in conveying mothers and their little ones at reduced rates. The present cost is very small.

BRYAN ENDORSES METCALF

LINCOLN, Neb., July 19.—W. J. Bryan in a statement yesterday gives his unqualified endorsement to the candidacy of Richard L. Metcalf who recently filed nomination papers for United States senator from Nebraska. It is the first time since Mr. Bryan's entrance into Nebraska politics that he has given a personal endorsement.

TWO MEN ESCAPE

They Leaped Out From Big Quicksand

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., July 19.—The collapse yesterday of a long excavation on Vernon street and the engulfing of a caisson, with the narrow escape of workmen, have convinced the engineers that this whole section, probably many acres in extent, is underlaid with a quicksand of unusual proportions.

The problem of abolishing the nuisance of a broken sewer on Vernon street, which was ordered by the state board of health, assumed a new phase Friday when the settling of a caisson into 17 feet of quicksand near the old bank of the Connecticut river made it necessary to abandon the scheme to construct a standpipe and carry the South Main street sewage into the Connecticut river as was formerly done before the building of the big dam at Vernon set back the water.

For a number of days workmen had bee constructing a crib eight feet square. A steel caisson about three feet in diameter was being driven down. The pipe settled three feet during the first night and the presence of a quicksand was recognized.

But before any attempt could be made to sustain the sagging line of sewer, the caisson sank and the crib, which was 17 feet deep, became a boiling pot of quicksand and water. William Pentland, Jr., a plumber, and Thomas Lynch had narrow escapes.

Investigation showed it was not feasible to rescue the caisson or carry out the project.

Yesterday morning men were digging a ditch near the factory of the White River Chair company, 500 feet from the first caisson, to empty the South Main street sewer into this old line with an hydraulic siphon.

Arrangements were made about noon yesterday to test 500 or 600 feet of sewer, when the ditch that had been cribbed suddenly caved in.

BOY A DETECTIVE

Saw Men on Roof Before Robbery

NASHUA, N. H., July 19.—Patrolmen Hallisey and Gaudett last night arrested Charles Dickenavitch, who is charged with breaking and entering and larceny of $62 at the home of Peter Yakavitch, 25 Pearson avenue yesterday afternoon. It is alleged Dickenavitch gained entrance through the roof and broke open a trunk.

Dickenavitch and a companion, it is charged, were seen by two boys, who pointed him out to the police in a barroom. When the police entered, it is alleged the man tried to hand a roll of bills to the bartender. The money was seized and was found to be of the same amount and the same denomination as that stolen.

When searched at the police station his pockets were found to contain eight boxes of cigarets, a large quantity of cigars and matches, a box of cartridges and a number of other articles.

PLEADED GUILTY

To Charge of Looting Freight Cars

GREENFIELD, July 19.—Hedley J. Miller of Greenfield, formerly in a position of trust on the Fitchburg road, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of larceny and was sentenced to six months in the house of correction. He was charged with breaking into freight cars and stealing shoes, cloth and other articles.

Edward J. Conway, another railroad man, who also pleaded guilty to larceny, was sent to the house of correction for three months. He was indicted on a charge of breaking and entering but Miller was regarded by the court as more of a leader.

Julius Blasberg of Turners Falls, charged with breaking and entering and also with receiving stolen property, pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property and paid a fine of $150. He was said to have purchased goods at a low price, stolen from the railroad.

William A. Dwyer of East Whately paid a fine of $400 on a liquor charge. The Franklin county law and order league got after Mr. Dwyer some months ago and secured convictions against him in the lower court on various liquor complaints. Affidavits were presented from officials in Whately and elsewhere which stated that the hotel had been burned, that Dwyer is sick, that he has left Whately, etc.

George B. Waterman of Bernardston is on trial charged with assaulting William Deitz, also of Bernardston.

SHOT OLD HORSE

Agent Richardson Called to the Case

A decrepit and lame horse, attached to an old weather beaten wagon, driven by an aged man, attracted considerable attention yesterday afternoon as it passed through upper Middlesex street, and word was sent to the police station that the animal was unfit to be used and that the wagon threatened to collapse at any moment and might result in the death of the man.

Patrolman Bagley was notified and he immediately started on the trail of the outfit, but the horse must have got a good start on him for he was unable to reach it before it crossed the city line. The police of North Chelmsford were then notified and Officers James R. Gookin and G. F. Foote were soon on the trail and with the assistance of an automobile came upon the horse, wagon and man in the vicinity of Crystal Lake.

The man gave his name as David Norvitz, his age as 85 years, and said that he was on his way to West Chelmsford to get some hens. He said he was very poor and before yesterday he said the horse had not been out of the stable for three weeks.

The officers stabled the animal in Joe Gaudette's barn and notified Agent Charles F. Richardson of the Lowell Humane society of the case, and Agent Richardson hurried to the lake and talked the matter over with the owner.

Owing to the man's extreme age it was decided not to prosecute him. The owner gave his consent to the killing of his horse, and the animal was shot today.

ANOTHER BATTLE

FOR THE CONTROL OF ZION CITY

CHICAGO, July 19.—Prospects of another battle for power in Zion City are seen with the arrival in Chicago of "King" Dowie, professed brother of the late John Alexander Dowie—"Elijah II"—and claimant to the throne of a South Sea Island. It is said to be the intention of the "kink" to overthrow Overseer Voliva. Overseer Voliva said last night that he would ignore the self-styled regent.

"I know of him only what I have heard," said Voliva. "As far as I am aware John Alexander Dowie had no brother."

"King" Dowie is supposed to be located at present on the south side, having arrived from Minneapolis during yesterday. With him is "Pope" Mc Ander who is in charge of a church that Mr. Francisco

JEWELS STOLEN

DETECTIVES SEARCH FOR BOSTON WOMAN'S GEMS

CHICAGO, Ill., July 19.—Two detectives, a hotel proprietor and an entire hotel force are endeavoring to locate the $5000 worth of jewels stolen from Mrs. Francis Stanton Blake of Boston, who is stopping at De Jonghe's hotel, 45 Monroe street. The jewels have been missing since yesterday afternoon and with them one of the hotel's bell boys.

The disappearance of the valuables was first noted yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Blake, who was formerly Miss Eugenie White of this city, and daughter of Mrs. William F. White, called for the packet she had left in the hotel safe. They were not in the safe nor anywhere in its immediate vicinity.

The police were immediately called in and upon investigation discovered that one of the bell boys had been missing from the hotel since noon.

It is believed that the boy, whose room was found in confusion when visited by detectives, either was the thief or knows the circumstances of the robbery.

"I have nothing to tell you about it," said Dr. De Jonghe. "I will not say whether or not this report of a robbery is true."

WAS NO WEDDING

Girl Failed to Put in an Appearance

NEW YORK, July 19.—Believing that she was kidnapped by a rival suitor, detectives today are hunting for Mazie Cullen, 17 years old, who disappeared from her home, 10 La Grange street, a few hours before she was to have been married.

Wedding guests had assembled at the Cullen home when word came that Mazie could not be found. Her fiance, John Fernando, of 69 Bushwick street, is distracted.

All day he has urged the police to find her. Search of the hospitals revealed no trace of the missing bride-to-be, and nearby towns have been notified to be on the lookout for a pretty girl with golden hair, dressed in a black and white princess gown.

That she was carried or lured to some house and detained is the general belief. The girl carried no money when she went to St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, Leonard and Manjer streets, two hours before the ceremony was to be performed. She chatted with the priests and seemed in the best of spirits.

Passing around the corner of Leonard street she disappeared.

While the bridegroom waited he was not alarmed until he telephoned to the girl's house and found she was not there.

Wedding guests were thrown into consternation. Immediately searching parties were organized.

There was no word left in the girl's room. Her wedding dress was laid out ready to wear. Several hundred persons were at St. Mary's church. Father Crowley announced that there would be no wedding and these guests also joined in the search.

Fernando sought the aid of Captain Reidy of the Stagg street station.

Mazie and the young man had been sweethearts from childhood. Her parents say they don't know of other suitors. Friends, however, intimate that other young men have long endeavored to pay court to her.

GIFFORD PINCHOT

SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF "INSURGENT" CANDIDATE

OAKLAND, Cal., July 19.—Gifford Pinchot arrived here today to make several speeches in California in behalf of Hiram Johnson, the Lincoln-Roosevelt league candidate for governor and William Kent, "insurgent" candidate for congress. He refused to discuss the report that Secretary Ballinger had been exonerated by the congressional committee investigating the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

Charging that the Pickett bill under the provisions of which President Taft on July 3 withdrew 8,496,731 acres of public land, contained a "joker" Pinchot said:

"The Pickett bill withdraws all this land from entry but leaves it open at all times to exploration, discovery and occupation under the mining laws of the United States so far as the same apply to mineral other than coal, oil, gas and phosphates.

There is nothing to prevent the large corporations from entering this land ostensibly for mining purposes after they have shown that they have found small quantities of gold or other metals."

It does not cost any more to have The Sun mailed to your vacation address than to have it delivered at your home. Order it sent before going away.

TRAINS STALLED

BUSINESS AT A STANDSTILL AT BURLINGTON

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 19.—All business was at a standstill in the local freight yards of the Central Vermont railroad today as a result of the strike begun last night by the conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk system of which the Central Vermont road is a part. All freight and express matter is received here "subject to delay." The express company which does business over the Central Vermont road today sent a large part of its shipments to St. Albans by steamer. The train due to leave Burlington for Montreal at 9.20 a. m. was an hour late in starting. It was manned by strike breakers brought here from Pennsylvania, it is said, by a professional strike-breaking contractor. There was a large crowd waiting at the station to board the train but the train pulled out of the yards and through the station without stopping for any passengers. The train scheduled to leave here at 4 a. m. did not make its trip today.

CREWS OF STRIKEBREAKERS

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., July 19.—Manned by crews of strikebreakers, two trains on the Grand Trunk railroad whose conductors and trainmen struck last night, left here on scheduled time early today. The first train to pull out of the station here this morning was the 12.45 express to Montreal, while the other train was the 8 o'clock local for St. Albans. No demonstrations were made when the trains left the station here. It is not expected that there will be any developments made here before noon today, because of the fact that no trains are scheduled to leave this station until after that time.

Anyone who wanted to go to White River Junction or to Windsor, Vt., 14 miles below here, had to walk or go over the roads in carriages or automobile today. The rails between here and Windsor belong to the Central Vermont road, but the trains over this section are operated by the Boston & Maine.

NO TRAINS MOVED

TORONTO, Ont., July 19.—There has been no passenger or freight traffic out of this city by the Grand Trunk railroad today. Last night's strike order was promptly obeyed by the 500 employees of the road in this city. Conditions are identical at Hamilton, Stratford and other terminals in Ontario.

FREIGHT IS NOT TIED UP

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 19.—Little freight is tied up here as a result of the strike on the Central Vermont railroad in connection with that on the Grand Trunk lines, but some inconvenience has been caused business houses by the non-arrival of freight. The boat train carrying the mail is the only train which has come through from New London this morning. According to posted notices no passenger trains are to be run until further notice. A number of small towns get their mail through this city and the delay may cause considerable inconvenience.

NO TROUBLE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 19.—The strike of conductors and trainmen on the Grand Trunk railroad, declared last night, had not been felt in this city early today. The Montreal passenger train that left that city last night for Boston arrived here at 8.05 this morning on time. The train came down over the regular route via Grand Trunk and Central Vermont roads by the way of White River Junction. The local officials believe that the two day passenger trains from Boston to Montreal which left here at 9 and 11.30 will go through without any delay. This statement was made following a dispatch received by the local officials that arrangements had been made to that effect.

DANGER OF STRIKE SETTLED

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Unless unforeseen trouble arises the danger of a strike on the Pennsylvania railroad has passed. A settlement of the wage dispute between the company and its trainmen and conductors east of Pittsburg, Buffalo and Erie probably will be effected at a conference here today before a sub-committee of the men and the division superintendents. The terms of settlement being worked out follows the award of the New York Central.

FREIGHT HELD UP

FREIGHT TRAFFIC TIED UP

MONTPELIER, Vt., July 19.—All freight traffic here was tied up tight today by the strike. Some passenger trains were running today but the crews were strike breakers or station agents and office employees. The passenger express due from Montreal at 3 a. m. arrived four and a half hours behind time with strike breakers in charge.

Six freight locomotives were laid up idle at Montpelier junction today and the "subject to delay" provision was imposed on all freight.

LAWRENCE'S MUDDLE

Brown's Appointment a Blow to Mayor White

LAWRENCE, July 19.—By the appointment, confirmation and his assuming the duties of his office yesterday of Jesse F. Brown as master of the house of correction and jail here, wherein Mayor William P. White is confined to serve three years for conspiracy to bribe, it is believed the unfortunate situation of this city's affairs will soon be brought to adjustment in the courts.

Mr. Brown as acting master, pending his permanent appointment, was largely responsible for the order denying Mayor White privileges of conducting city business from the jail. This order is regarded by many as creating "incapacity" in the meaning of the law, thereby creating a necessity for a new head to the city's executive department. Whether the step will be of a friendly nature and merely a legal form will be largely determined by the opinion promised for today by City Solicitor Murphy, who will advise the board of aldermen as to whether, in his opinion, Mayor White's conviction and confinement in jail on charge of misdemeanor deprives him of official capacity.

It has already been intimated an action may be brought in the supreme court and whatever Solicitor Murphy's opinion may be, now that it is assured Mayor White will have no further official privileges as a prisoner, there are strong assurances of an early and positive action which will insure protection to the city's interests in well grounded legal procedure.

With Acting Mayor Jordan at its head, the committee on fire department of the city government assumed the role of peacemaker last night in pouring oil on the troubled waters of that department.

Chief Engineer James A. Hamilton and the two assistant engineers, William F. Macreadie and Edward F. Toye, have been at loggerheads because of the overriding of the latter two by the chief, with the result that the assistants refused to approve a batch of bills, aggregating upward of $1800. Some of these had been authorized by the committee, while others were for "extras" and charges contracted by the chief without consulting his assistants. These bills came before the committee for consideration, in which connection the attitude of Acting Mayor Jordan toward Chief Hamilton, the effort to oust whom landed Mayor William P. White in the house of correction, was in marked contrast to that of the imprisoned chief executive.

Because a portion of the extra charges incurred by the chief was offset by a saving made in some of the work authorized by the committee was, to the acting mayor's mind, evidence of good faith on the part of Chief Hamilton. The difference was less than $200. "I give him credit for spending the money where it was really needed," was the declaration of the acting mayor.

Assistant Macreadie said that the chief had contracted bills without proper authority and had ignored his associates, although they had asked him repeatedly to keep down expenses. The assistant engineer believed that it was a matter for the government to adjust.

Assistant Engineer Toye refused point blank to sign the vouchers unless the government indorsed the purchases.

Chief Hamilton said the talk of prospect of a big overdraft in the department was all bosh. He urged that the bills be cleared up. The committee grouped the bills which had been contracted by the chief without the sanction of his assistants, and on motion of Alderman Callahan voted to recommend their payment. The alderman explained that his object was to promote harmony among the engineers. He believed the assistants should be consulted by the chief, and he exacted the promise from the latter to do so in the future. "Anything for harmony," was the chief's expression of compliance.

Jordan Assumes Voting Right

Although Acting Mayor Jordan is not a member of the committee by appointment, he assumed the right to exercise the prerogative of the mayor to vote and divided evenly the committee on the question of accepting the new fire alarm system, which was inspected in the afternoon. The award of this contract was reported to have been one of the subjects of consideration by the grand jury which brought the indictments in connection with the manner in which Chief Hamilton is alleged to have received his appointment and the attempt of Mayor White to depose him.

Aldermen Jordan, Scanlon and Callahan and Councilman Dooley voted against acceptance, and Councilmen Keaveny, Taylor, Nugent and Noonan in favor. Councilman Keaveny questioned the right of the presiding officer to vote, but was overruled. President Jordan thought that it would be well to look into the specifications of the contract in detail before accepting the work.

To Start Building Work

The charge of Mayor White's secretary, Matthew De Grey Ripon, that Chief Hamilton employed in the fire alarm department a man who was not a citizen, was refuted by the chief, who produced the naturalization documents of Charles Higgins, showing that his final papers had been issued March 8. Councilman Keaveny moved that the committee censure the mayor's secretary, but President Jordan dismissed the subject, with the remark that it was groundless, as were many of the charges.

Acting Mayor Jordan was authorized to take the initiative toward having a beginning made upon the new ward 5 engine house, which was contracted for last year.

EYES ON MAYOR'S CHAIR

LAWRENCE, July 19.—In the event of Mayor William P. White being disqualified from officiating as chief executive because of his confinement in the house of correction for alleged conspiracy to bribe, there is a possibility of a lively contest being opened up to succeed him.

Should a special election occur, Dr. John T. Cahill, who was Mayor White's opponent last fall, is an avowed candidate, and there may be others. In discussing the situation Dr. Cahill said he considered himself the candidate of the democratic party until another was nominated, and should seek the position of mayor, if the government is called upon to make a choice.

Michael F. Cronin, who was a candidate in the democratic primaries, was less pronounced in his determination to enter a contest to be decided by the city council, but said he should be a candidate in the fall primaries.

President Thomas M. Jordan of the board of aldermen has his eye on the place and he is inclined to the opinion that it is not mandatory that the city council shall elect a mayor. He considers that the word "shall" as it appears in the section relative to the choice of a mayor by the city council is open to the same interpretation as where it refers to the duty of the mayor to preside over meetings of the board of aldermen. In the latter instance it is claimed by Mayor White's friends that the word is used in directory sense rather than a mandatory one.

So President Jordan sees no reason why he should not go on as acting mayor for the balance of the year.

BROWN BEGINS DUTIES

SALEM, July 19.—Jesse F. Brown, now acting master, succeeds the late Charles A. Stillings as master of the house of correction and jail in Lawrence. He was appointed to the position by Col. Samuel A. Johnson, high sheriff of Essex county, early yesterday afternoon and was qualified by Commissioners James Hale and George R. Lord at the clerk of court's office in this city, and at once assumed his new duties.

Mr. Brown is about 70 years old and served in the Civil war as a private in the 48th Mass. regt. Returning from the war, he served for a time as one of the officers in the house of correction at Ipswich and subsequently was transferred to the penal institution at Lawrence, where he has held varied positions in that institution for forty years. He will receive a salary of $1300 per year with house rent, fuel, etc., free.

There were several applicants for the position.

Mr. Brown has received instructions from Sheriff Johnson to treat Mayor White of Lawrence, who is serving a three years' sentence, the same as any other prisoner. Aside from visitations from counsel, Mayor White will be permitted to receive guests but once each week, according to prison rules.

BALLOON ASCENSION

PITTSFIELD, July 19.—The balloon Pittsfield with M. H. Arnold of North Adams as pilot and F. S. Hoppin and G. Von Utassy, both of New York, made a flight from here early today. The balloon soon floated out of sight in a southwesterly direction.

NO TIDINGS FROM BALLOON

CINCINNATI, July 19.—No tidings have been received from the balloon Drifter which ascended from Hamilton, O., shortly before 8 o'clock last night with Walter Collins and George Howard of Cincinnati as pilots.

The craft was not seen in this city though when disappearing from Hamilton it had ascended to a great height and was being driven toward the southwest by a thirty mile wind.

PRES. TAFT'S STAY

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—President Taft's stay in Eastport today will be brief according to plans suggested by the president and transmitted to Mayor Garnett in a communication from Secretary Carpenter. The president will go ashore during the afternoon and Mayor Garnett will take him for the motor car ride for an hour and point out places of interest in and around the city. His address will be brief and the formalities likewise.

TRAFFIC DELAYED BY ACCIDENT

BOSTON, July 19.—Traffic from Harrison square to the South station on the New Haven road was delayed for nearly an hour today. The cause of the delay was the derailment of the trucks of a car on the 8.27 morning train from Harrison square.

DIVIDEND TO CREDITORS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—A first dividend of 60 per cent, aggregating $233,000, to the creditors of the National City bank of Cambridge has been authorized by the treasury department. It will be distributed this week.

BROTHERS DROWN

In Sight of Their Friends

NEW YORK, July 19.—Two New Yorkers—Adolph Meyers, 34 years old, of 319 East 92nd street, and his brother Charles, 27, of 204 East 84th street—were drowned yesterday off New Dorp, Staten Island. Two hundred men, women and children, many of them personal friends of the victims, witnessed the accident, but were powerless to give aid.

The brothers had only gone to New Dorp beach on Saturday, bent on spending an enjoyable vacation with friends encamped there. Yesterday at about 4 p. m. Adolph proposed that they don their bathing suits and go out in a rowboat on a fishing excursion. Soon the pair, in a flat bottomed boat, were anchored 500 feet from the beach and busily engaged in their quiet sport. An hour passed, and to the friends on the beach they seemed to be thoroughly enjoying themselves.

Suddenly the swell from a passing steamer hit them and filled their boat. The men were seen to jump into the water, and their terrified friends—who knew neither of the men could swim—saw the boat slowly sink.

Several persons immediately started swimming toward the floundering men, while others shouted encouragement or ran for boats. The brothers were seen to sink, rise again, remain on the surface for a few moments and again disappear.

The police were notified, and late last night a launch was dispatched to the beach with grappling irons. The bodies had not been recovered at midnight.

BIG WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK, July 19.—When the will of Mrs. Mary E. Brinkerhoff, who died in New York last April, and who had a summer home at Irvington-on-Hudson, came up for probate yesterday before Surrogate Millard, of Westchester county, objections were filed by counsel representing Miss Mary Williams, of Lyons, N. Y., who maintained that Mrs. Brinkerhoff, who left $2,500,000 to fifty relatives and friends, had willed away money left in trust for her father, John Williams.

It developed that two heirs had not been served with notice in the Surrogate's court, and Surrogate Millard postponed the hearing until next Monday.

Mrs. Brinkerhoff left $5000 for the care of four horses and gave several thousand dollars each to servants, while some relatives were ignored.

SUNDAY DANCING

IS THE LATEST FAD IN NEWPORT SET

NEWPORT, July 19.—They play golf, tennis and other sports on Sunday in the cottage settlement, and as Saturday and Sunday nights are now about the only nights all the men of the colony can be here dancing was introduced by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas after the musicale at their cottage. It is said that other society folk will give Sunday night dances, and that the practice may be continued in New York this winter.

When golf was first played in Newport a cry was raised by some of the ministers. Now they say nothing about it, and it is not likely that they will protest against dancing, for attendance at the morning church services is larger this summer than for some years past.

When the music at the Thomas cottage was heard by hundreds of young people strolling along Bellevue avenue Sunday night—a summer custom here—Newport beauties and their escorts lingered in front of the cottage and danced on the sidewalk, while the guests within were dancing to Mr. Thomas' recent waltz composition, "La Blanche."

Drilling Through Ledge

The Dutton street sewer is being lowered in order that it may properly serve the property that it is supposed to take care of, and the job of lowering it is not an easy one. The sewer is about ten feet deep at the present time and that depth is to be increased to about 18 feet. Solid ledge has been struck and steam drills will be in operation there tomorrow. The work is rendered all the more difficult by the water coming in from the canal.

Putting in New Mains

Dutton and Merrimack streets in the vicinity of the Merrimack house are pretty busy spots and travel is not very comfortable there. While the sewer department is raising ructions in Dutton street, the gas company is doing a ripping business in Merrimack street. The company is laying a new main from the railroad crossing in Dutton street to Tilden street, preparatory to the smooth paving of Merrimack street.

BRIDGES BURNED

Forest Fires Caused Great Damage in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Man., July 19.—Bushes are again blazing fiercely in the Kootanay district of the Canadian Rockies and have caused five deaths and enormous damage to property. The most serious loss is in the Kaslo district. The town of Whitewater has been destroyed. The Great Northern railway has suffered, bridges and freight cars being burned and $100,000 worth of timber belonging to the company consumed.

Rescue trains dispatched from Kaslo were unable to pass Bear Lake and returned crowded with panic-stricken men, women and children who are being cared for by citizens of Kaslo.

MAYOR'S FRIENDS

Trying to Secure Release of Lawrence's Chief Executive

LAWRENCE, July 19.—A determined effort is being made by the friends of Mayor White to secure his release from the house of correction where he is serving a sentence of three years for conspiracy to bribe. Ex-Attorney General Herbert Parker has taken part in the mayor's case with Attorney Sullivan of Lawrence, it is said. The only visitor allowed to talk with Mayor White today was City Solicitor Murphy who was with him about an hour. J. Frank James was seen entering the institution carrying a weighty satchel. Keeper Brown reiterated his statement that no city business would be transacted at the jail. He said that his orders from the high sheriff would allow no privileges to prisoners such as Mayor White desired to enable him to be an active mayor.

The other three municipal prisoners have been allowed extra privileges to enable them to settle up their business affairs but they will come to an end this week and the prison routine will be enforced in their cases.

CHASED BURGLAR

CHAUFFEUR JUMPED FROM BATHTUB TO GET MAN

GREENWICH, Conn., July 19.—While taking his morning plunge in the bathtub early yesterday, Joseph Burling, chauffeur for Addison G. Hanan, the New York and Boston shoe dealer, who has a summer place at Byram shore, heard a peculiar scraping noise against the side of the house. Jumping from the water and looking out of the window he saw a strange man with a bag in one hand letting himself down from an upper story by a rope.

Burling wrapped a bath towel around his waist and gave chase. The burglar was a pretty good runner, and Burling was somewhat hampered by the sharp stones he had to run over in his bare feet, but he also had the advantage of being unencumbered, while the burglar carried a heavy bag.

After a desperate sprint Burling captured the marauder and returned triumphantly to the Hanan house, one hand on the man's collar and one holding the towel around his waist. He held the man in custody until Officer James Nedley, of the Greenwich force, came and took him to the lock-up. In court the prisoner said he was Sigmond Kopiski and that he lived in Greenwich. He was held by Judge Burns for the next term of high court.

FUNERALS

GIRARD—The funeral of the late Mrs. Delia Girard, a well known and highly respected resident of this city, took place Saturday morning from the family residence, 110 Dummer street, and was very largely attended by relatives and friends. The cortege proceeded to St. Joseph's church, where a high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Graton, O. M. I. and the choir under the direction of Mr. Frank Gourdeau rendered the Gregorian chant. Mr. Joseph A. Bernard presided at the organ.

Present at the services was a delegation consisting of Mrs. A. Blanchette, Misses Marie Bisaillon, Antoinette L. Desaulniers and Eva Dozois, representing Cercle d'Youville of which deceased was a prominent member. The bearers were Messrs. Wilfrid Perreault, Adelard L'Heureux, Amedee Perreault and Joseph Perreault. Interment was in the family lot in St. Patrick's cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Fr. Brullard, O. M. I. Undertaker Archambault had charge of the arrangements. Mrs. Girard was a native of Moore, New York and was a resident of this city for thirty-seven years. She was most devoted to her family and during her illness was a very patient sufferer.

OUTING AT WILLOW DALE

The Children of Mary of St. Peter's church are enjoying an outing at Willow Dale today. Three special cars filled with the members of the organization and accompanied by Rev. W. George Mullin, chaplain of the society, left Merrimack square at 9.30 o'clock this morning.

Upon arriving at the grounds various sports were entered into, games were enjoyed and dinner was served at noon. In the afternoon there was more fun and the merrymakers are scheduled to return to Lowell during the early part of the evening.

About 150 people enjoyed the trip to Revere beach today under the auspices of the Boston & Northern Street Railway Co. Two special cars left Merrimack square at 8.15 o'clock and made a run to the beach on schedule time. Bathing was enjoyed during the morning and at noon the centre of attraction was the hotel where an excellent shore dinner was served. In the afternoon some of the people visited the attractions along the boulevard, while others went to Wonderland.

BIG INCREASE

IN MEMBERSHIP OF THE BARTENDERS' UNION

At the meeting of the bartenders' union Sunday afternoon, 61 candidates were admitted, which brings the total membership in this city up to 251. There are only twenty clerks in the city now, who are not members of the union and it is expected that these will be within the fold before long. James E. Sullivan, the secretary of the local union, was appointed a special agent for this city and it was through his efforts that this great increase in the membership was accomplished. Mr. Sullivan is of the opinion that within a few weeks every man employed as a wine clerk will be enrolled on the books of the union.

She Was Found a Raving Maniac — Child Found Dead in Her Room — Had Been Dead About Three Days

The residents of Gorham street, in the vicinity of the court house, were rudely aroused from their slumbers early this morning by the cries of a woman in apparent distress. She appeared at a window and was wildly excited. The people who occupied the same premises, 259 Gorham street, offered her assitance, but when they arrived they found the woman a raving maniac. Upon further investigation, a two days' old baby was discovered in her room.

The dead body of the child was removed to the undertaking rooms of M. H. McDonough & Sons, and the woman was taken to the city hospital.

From the facts that could be gathered by the police it seems that the woman has been in this city for the past three months. She belongs in the town of Leominster, and as the authorities assert has a husband living there by the name of Jesse Moody.

Dr. Meigs made a superficial examination of the body and said the child had been dead about three days, probably from birth. He would not make any further statement without an autopsy.

THE RIVET CASE

Lawyer William H. Bent, senior counsel for Napoleon J. Rivet, convicted of having murdered Joseph Gailloux, returned to Lowell yesterday and is now busily engaged in making preparations for taking further steps in order to save Rivet from the electric chair.

In conversation with a representative of The Sun this morning he said that he had just received Governor Draper's letter relative to the petition for a re-trial and had not had time to examine it very closely. He said that he would take the matter up at once and after a conference with Mr. J. H. Guillet, associate counsel, he would make another appeal to the court.

MINOR ACCIDENTS

John Lynch, a boy, fell and broke his leg this morning, while attempting to climb an apple tree in Chapel street. He was treated at the Emergency hospital and then sent to his home. The boy resides with his parents in Chapel street.

CONDITION CRITICAL

Little Boy Fell a Distance of Forty Feet

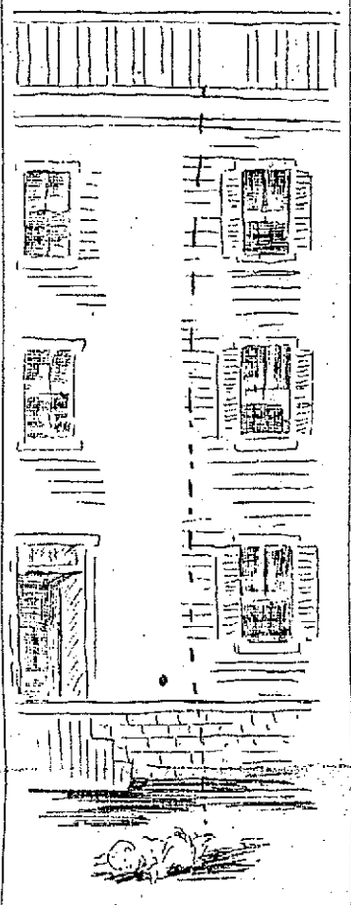

Thomas Fox, 18 months old son of Joseph Fox of 27 Rogers street, is lying at the point of death at the home of his parents, as a result of his falling from the piazza on the third story in the rear of the building and striking on his head on the concrete pavement below.

The accident happened last Saturday and the child is still unconscious, suffering from a concussion of the brain, partial paralysis and probably internal injuries.

Dr. J. B. O'Connor, who has been attending the child, has done everything in his power for the little one and entertains hope for its recovery.

The accident was a peculiar one. The Fox family occupies the third floor of the building at 27 Rogers street, close to the Concord river. The railing on the piazza in the rear of the tenement occupied by the Fox family was loose and carpenters were sent to the place by the owner of the house to make repairs. One of the slats in the railing which was broken was removed by the carpenters and before it was replaced the child managed to make his way to the place and crawl through.

He fell to the ground, striking on the concrete walk in the rear yard. Several women rushed to the yard and found the boy in an unconscious condition. He was picked up and carried to the tenement occupied by his parents. Dr. O'Connor was summoned.

THREE WOMEN

Saved the Life of One Man

NEW YORK, July 19.—At Lake Hoptacong, N. J., yesterday three young women saved the life of a Brooklyn man and tried to get to another man, also in the water. They failed to reach him in time. The rescue and drowning were the outcome of an attempt by the two men to change positions in a canoe. The men were A. H. Schroeder, aged 23, and A. Rolfs of Brooklyn.

The accident occurred at the lower end of the lake. The men were members of a vacation party and had been out in the canoe almost daily for a week. It was near Corinthian Cottage that they attempted to change places in their canoe yesterday. Their craft turned over.

Rolfs could swim a little, and when he came up reached the canoe. Schroeder was some distance away. Rolfs swam toward him, but finding his own strength giving way, he turned back and then found the breeze had carried the canoe out beyond his reach.

In a rowboat some distance away were Miss T. A. Weber, of Bay Ridge, Brooklyn; Miss M. A. Klatt, of Granton, N. J., and Mrs. Van Nortwick, of Brooklyn. They said there was a motor boat nearer to the overturned canoe than they were, but that its occupants paid no heed to the imperilled men. The women rowed to the spot where Rolfs was as quickly as possible. He could give no aid in the task of dragging him over the stern of his rescuers' boat.

As soon as they had him on board the women sought Schroeder, but he was no longer above the water.

After rowing about for a time they began to fear that Rolfs, who was unconscious, might die, so they put ashore, Dr. E. C. Welden, of Netcong, revived him. Searchers found Schroeder's body.

COMPOUND FRACTURE

Charles A. Byard met with a very serious accident at Fletcher's quarry in Westford this noon, and was brought to the office of Dr. J. A. Gage in this city, where it was found that the man had sustained a compound fracture of the jaw. He was removed to the Lowell General hospital, where an operation was performed. He is 56 years of age.

STRIKE DECLARED

Grand Trunk Conductors and Trainmen Quit Work

MONTREAL, Que., July 19.—Conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont railways to the number of 2500 obeyed an automatic strike order at 9.30 o'clock last night.

On Sunday when the members of the strike committee left here each man carried a sealed envelope to be opened at that hour calling a strike unless a telegram had previously been received which, upon comparison with a copy enclosed in the envelope stated otherwise.

No such telegram was sent and the strike became effective at 9.30.

Under the terms of the strike order trains which began their runs before 9.30 are to be taken through to the terminal by the men in charge.

After that the company is expected to look after its own interests.

Offered 18 Per Cent

The happenings of the day previous to the strike becoming effective were explained as follows in a statement issued by the company at 6 o'clock:

"Messrs. Berry and Murdock, with a committee representing the Grand Trunk trainmen and yardmen, met the officers of the company this morning and advised that they had received the authority of a large majority of our trainmen to order a strike in the event a settlement was not reached with the company.

"A general discussion of the situation took place, during which we advised them that we were not in a position to do more than had been offered in our former proposition, giving the men an increase of approximately 18 per cent, with the further promise that they should be given the same standard rate of pay as the Canadian Pacific as soon as the Grand Trunk, through its relation with the Grand Trunk Pacific, is in a position to participate in the higher rates obtaining on traffic in the northwest.

"By reason of the completion of that road and the obtaining of through rail connections between the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific, which should be accomplished within two years, it was explained that if there was any question of indefiniteness as to the date when the standardization was to take effect, we would agree that it should be not later than Jan. 1, 1913, or earlier if the board of railway commissioners, upon hearing of the facts in the case, should so determine.

"This was not considered satisfactory, and the conference was adjourned until the afternoon, when we were handed the schedule of rates of pay and rules which are practically the eastern standard.

"This reply was made that we could do no better than what had already been offered, and we had no further proposition to make.

"Should a strike be ordered we feel confident that it will be found that many of the employees of the company in the train service will disregard such strike and will continue service with the company. We have a large number of applications from other parties desirous of obtaining employment, and shall also recruit largely from our own forces in other departments.

Will Close All Shops

"In the meantime, we shall make effective the rules and rates of pay offered the employees. Pending settlement of matters all shops on the system will be closed."

To this President Hays added:

"We have done the best we can, having regard to the interests of the shareholders and of the men themselves. We have offered substantial increases in wages. For instance, we give conductors between Montreal and Portland an increase from $110 to $135; between Montreal and Brockville from $80 to $140 a month; between Montreal and Toronto from $110 to $140, and baggagemen from $70 to $85, and brakemen from $55 and $60 to $80.

"On mileage rates conductors of through trips are to be raised from 2.90 to 3.36 cents a mile, and brakemen from 1.90 to 2.25 cents.

"On the runs between Montreal and Ottawa conductors are to be raised from $110 to $140 a month; baggagemen from $75 to $85, and so on.

"When I put this to the men I said further that this was a very large increase, but that if they did not think it satisfactory there was still another alternative. I said I was willing in such case to go to the arbitration of a board of expert railway men as to whether or not the proposition was fair and would be willing to abide by their decision.

"Further, I said to the representatives of the men: 'Suppose a strike is brought on, with all its disturbance of conditions and business. What shall we do eventually but settle it as I have proposed? You will have displaced a great many men, created great losses all over, and got no further ahead.' But they refused to listen to this."

Trainmen's Side of Controversy

Vice-President James Murdock of the Brotherhood of Trainmen said, in explaining their side of the case:

"We met Mr. Hays today, when he elaborated somewhat upon his original offer to the extent of saying he meant by it the award of the board of conciliation, and that the standard wage for the territory should be adopted by January, 1913.

"Mr. Hayes was told that the subcommittee and other officers could not believe that they had the right to set aside the strongly expressed position of the men, even if they were inclined to do so.

"With this the conference adjourned until the afternoon, when the sub-committee and officers presented to Mr. Hays the lowest possible basis of settlement that could be considered. That proposed to put into effect a temporary modification of the standard until January 1, 1911, in the territory east of the Detroit and St. Clair rivers.

"Mr. Hays took that under advisement and called the sub-committee back at 5.30, when he presented the company's proposition, which he said was their estimate of the award of the board of conciliation.

"The committee at a glance found that it was very far from being anything like the board's award and that in the great majority of cases where rates had been specified these rates are very much below those suggested by the board.

"For instance: On the Portland-Montreal runs we had Mr. Hays offering $2.25 per 100 miles to a passenger conductor, instead of $2.45 8-10, as filed in the board's award. We find in Montreal-Toronto passenger runs he offers conductors $2.31 per 100 miles, instead of the board's award of $2.45 8-10. The minimum standard monthly salary for a passenger conductor in the territory is $125 a month; the board recommended $101 a month. Mr. Hays suggests very many runs at $100 a month and some as low as $80 a month. The minimum monthly pay for a passenger brakeman recommended by the board was $56; Mr. Hays offers in many cases $55, a monthly increase of $5 on a $50 salary.

"Further, in his proposition Mr. Hayes ignored entirely the board's recommendation to standardize conditions on the Grand Trunk and its recommendation to put into effect the mileage basis of pay in either passenger or local freight service. Instead, he proposes to perpetuate existing conditions and in some ways to make them much more objectionable, since there would be greater inequalities than in the past.

Trainmen Have $1,000,000 Fund

Asked as to what backings the international unions would have for such an extensive strike, Mr. Murdock said:

"There is a protective fund of $1,000,000 back of us now, and there will be no difficulty in getting $350,000 a month to keep the strike going. The full protective features of both the conductors' and trainmen's unions will be given with payment of strike pay of $50 a month to members of the Order of Railway Conductors and $35 a month to members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen."

The Central Vermont, which is controlled by the Grand Trunk made an effort to prevent its men going out by appealing to Washington under the terms of the Erdman act. Vice President Murdock of the trainmen yesterday afternoon received a telegram signed by Martin A. Knapp, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, and Charles P. Neill, commissioner of labor, stating that the railway had made this application and expressing their willingness to use their offices in the direction desired. To this Mr. Murdock replied:

"Our organization always is willing to accept your friendly offices, but situation is such, considering attitude of the company, as to leave small hope for settlement as a result of mediation. Men leave this service this evening."

The order closing the shops all along the lines of the Grand Trunk will affect over 5000 men, of whom about 700 are in Montreal. It is understood that a coisiderable number will be offered the chance to take the place of striking conductors and trainmen, some of them being qualified by experience on the road.

Shopmen Seek Arbitration

In addition to the Montreal shops, the Grand Trunk has shops at Toronto, Stratford, Battle Creek, Mich.; Port Huron, Mich.; Gorham, Me., and Portland, Me. The men in the local shops yesterday afternoon were engaged in signing a petition to the city council, asking that body to petition to the government to appoint a board of arbitration under the Mulock act. This act preceded the Lemieux act, under which sat the board of conciliation whose award the men refused to accept, although it was signed by their representative on the board.

The Mulock act does not, however, go as far as the Lemieux act, inasmuch as it imposes no penalties whatever, but simply provides for an inquiry to be made in the matters at issue, provision being made for the appointment of an arbitrator should one of the parties refuse to name one.

The Grand Trunk made application to the minister of labor for the appointment of a board of arbitration under this act, but the minister declined, considering the reference under the Lemieux act sufficient. Under the Mulock act a municipality affected may make application for the appointment of arbitrators and the intention is to make the city council, if possible, repeat the demand which the minister of labor already has refused in the application of the railway company.

The report of a second board of arbitration could not affect the company's position and might strengthen it. The only passenger trains to leave Bonaventure depot after the strike order went into effect, the Toronto express and local, pulled out without any delay due to strike. The express was manned by a crew of French Canadians, old employes of the company, not members of the Brotherhood. A number of strikers watched it depart, but there was no demonstration of any kind.

125 QUIT WORK

DURAND, Mich., July 19.—Although at least 125 trainmen and conductors on the Grand Trunk railroad here went on strike last night, conditions are normal today. There have been no disturbances. It is understood strike breakers are operating the trains which appear to be running on schedule time.

HAVE EMERGENCY CREWS

ST. ALBANS, Vt., July 19.—The strike on the Central Vermont railroad, a branch of the Grand Trunk system, was making its power full throughout Vermont today. Some of the passenger trains from this city started on time equipped with emergency crews recruited from railroad offices and shops. The engineers and firemen are not concerned in the strike, consequently there was no lack of motive power. The morning train from the south, due here at 5 a. m., was more than four hours late in reaching this city.

During the forenoon the railroad officials had nothing to say regarding the movement of freight. It was expected that a statement bearing upon this phase of the strike might be issued later.

NO FREIGHT TRAINS

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—Although passenger trains on the Grand Trunk railroad in and out of Portland were running practically on time this forenoon, no freight trains were moving. The principal business of the railroad on this division is the freight traffic.

NO CANDIDATE ENDORSED

HELENA, Mont., July 19.—The democratic state committee last night turned down all propositions looking to the endorsement by the state committee of any democratic candidate for United States senator and set the convention for Sept. 8 at Livingston.

IDENTIFIED AS BANDITS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 19.—Two men giving their names as James C. Brown and Charles Dunbar, who were arrested by a constable here last night for horse stealing, have been identified as the bandits who held up and robbed the Japan fast mail on the Southern Pacific at Goodyear on April 17. The numbers on the revolvers led to their identification. They had been stolen from a Riverside store shortly before the train robbery. Dunbar, aside from answering the general description of the train crew as to appearance, has a gold tooth as did the smaller train robber.

BODIES FOUND FLOATING

NEW YORK, July 19.—The bodies of two men, believed to be members of the crew of the freight steamer H. F. Dimock, plying between here and Boston which was badly damaged during the pier fire of the Metropolitan S. S. Co., Saturday, were found floating in the North river at the foot of Fulton street today. The bodies apparently were those of a fireman about 35 years of age and of a deckhand or longshoreman about 28 years old.

FALSE HAIR HARMFUL

Now that so much artificial hair is the fashion, it is more necessary than ever that women should keep their scalps thoroughly cleansed because the present style of hairdressing is very heating and irritating to the scalp. The result is that dandruff forms, the scalp itches and the hair falls out. To guard against this condition, the scalp and hair should be washed frequently with Birt's Head Wash, a delicately perfumed preparation which has the formula printed on every package. If there is any doubt in your mind about the formula being good, ask your doctor what he thinks of it. Here it is: Refined Soap, Salicylic Acid, White of Eggs, Cocoanut Oil and Glycerin. Tubes 25c, jars 50c.

INJURED BY FALL OF A CLOCK IN CAR

Dr. C. E. French met with a painful accident Sunday night while riding on an electric car which was passing through Centralville. He occupied the front seat and was struck on the head by a register clock which became dislodged probably by the swaying of the car.

The clock struck the doctor a glancing blow on the head. He was stunned for a time, but soon recovered. He was attended by Dr. Carolin and will require to keep quiet for a few days. He is now resting at Gloucester.

MRS. H. H. ROGERS SCARED

PITTSFIELD, July 19.—Mrs. Henry H. Rogers narrowly escaped a serious accident on West Stockbridge mountain Sunday night. She was being driven with a party of friends in a big touring car over the crest of one of the steep hills at a high rate of speed on a very narrow highway.

Going up to the other side of the mountain was a motor car owned by George Cox of New York, who is spending the summer at his country place in New Lebanon, N. Y. Cox's chauffeur saw the rush of the Rogers car over the summit and pulled out into the extreme edge of the narrow road, but not far enough to avoid a collision with the Rogers car, which was badly damaged.

A protecting knoll in the road prevented the Rogers car from being overturned. All of Mrs. Rogers' party were badly frightened at the collision.

COL. ROOSEVELT

To Take Stump For His Nephew

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 19.—Ex-President Roosevelt yesterday issued his first formal statement written with his own hand since he returned from abroad a month ago yesterday.

It concerned the political future of his nephew, Theodore Douglas Robinson, who, Mr. Roosevelt hopes, will be elected to congress, if nominated, from the 27th New York district, comprising Herkimer and Oneida counties. This is Mr. Roosevelt's statement:

"I distinctly state that I will not take part in any fight for any congressional nomination."

After the nominations are made, however, Col. Roosevelt says he may have a good many things to say. He will speak for many of the candidates he favors and may speak against others.

As an evidence of his interest in the congressional fight and also as outlining his attitude, the former president issued a formal statement as follows:

"My brother-in-law, Douglas Robinson, and his son, my nephew Theodore Robinson, were down to see me. My brother-in-law, who has a big farm in Herkimer county which he inherited from his mother and which has been in his family for generations, is a member of the Herkimer county grange, which is arranging for the grange picnic to be held in Utica at the end of August, and he came to extend me the committee's invitation to speak at the picnic. I have accepted.

"My nephew, Theodore Robinson, is a candidate for the congressional nomination in the 27th district, comprising Herkimer and Oneida counties. He told me that he did not desire me to take any part whatever in the nomination, because he especially desired this matter should be settled by his neighbors in Herkimer and Oneida absolutely without interference of any kind, but he desired to know whether in the event of his nomination I would come up and speak for him. I told him that of course I would, for I have long hoped that he would go into active politics because I have a high regard for his judgment and ability and he and I are in accord in our views on public questions."

Robinson is making his canvass on a progressive platform. His opponent has the support of the Sherman-Wheeler republicans of Oneida and the Strobel following of Herkimer. Robinson declares that he represents the principles advocated by Gov. Hughes.

When Col. Roosevelt was questioned regarding the interview given by Odell, in which it was set forth with more or less sarcasm that now that Roosevelt is back the city, state and nation can rest easy, as they will be taken care of, the colonel laughed heartily.

What he said in response was not for publication. When pressed to make some public reply, he said that persons throughout the country would have to become very personal and hit hard before he would make any response.

The colonel showed great interest in the speech of Uncle Joe Cannon on the defeat of Bryan and an interview by John W. Kern. He wishes to study Bryan's predicament thoroughly before expressing any opinion. As regards the situation in Indiana he may have something to say as to the relative standing of insurgents and regulars within a few days.

Col. Roosevelt expressed great interest in the question of the New York governorship and a possible candidate for the senatorship, but believes it as yet too early to announce what position he will take.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A well attended meeting of Division 2, A. O. H., was held last evening, with President Dennis Lynch in the chair. Considerable business was transacted, 20 applications for membership being received and 10 initiations conducted. Dennis Lynch and D. J. Murphy were elected delegates to the state convention to be held in August, with John P. Sheehan and John Walsh as alternates. The following were elected as aids to the chief marshal: John B. Clancy, John McOsker, Jr., Edward Mooney, J. Carlin, Jr., T. D. Finnegan, P. Conroy, Philip Harley, T. O'Connor, J. Culliney, F. Carolan, John Daly and Dr. Halloran. Dennis Lynch was elected marshal of the division.

HORSE DISEASES

Advice As to Treatment of Them

Azoturia, poisoning by Albuminoids, really a liver disease, but affects the urine to such an extent that it may be said to combine both liver and kidneys and is caused by high feeding of nitrogenized food, full feeding, keeping in stall without exercise. This disease is never seen in the horse at pasture. It shows itself only after the horse is put to work, say driven a hundred yards. The animal goes down behind, though in mild form it may be seen simply in one limb, showing lameness. The lining of the eyes and nose is seen to be dusky brown in color. The severe form of this disease usually comes on after a couple of days of rest, with heavy feeding, heaving flanks, dilated nostrils, face expression pinched, sweating and trembling. The muscles become rigid and swelled, causing the animal to move stiffly. Hence many call this trouble "Stiffs" but it is only a few moments before the animal is down. The urine if voided is highly colored, red, black or dark brown. Proper treatment will usually effect a cure, but delays and carelessness lead to tardy recovery and partial paralysis of the hind quarters ensues, while the muscles up the front of the stifle, waste and atrophy.

To prevent this sort of trouble look after and reduce the feed when the animal is not worked and never allow the horse once having had this ill to be left a single day without exercise and a warm bran mash or a laxative of half pound Glauber salts.

Mild attacks may be treated by giving a laxative, light exercise, an ounce of saltpeter and a tonic powder. In severe cases give a physic with about 4 drams of bromide potassium and one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, hot fomentations to the loins. Rub the limbs well to stimulate circulation, continue feed and treatment for a laxative condition.

Spasms of the neck of the bladder are caused in the main by hard and continuous driving, cold storms, draughts when perspiring or fatigued, diuretics, stone in the bladder, etc., indicated by stretching and straining with little or no voiding but slight dribbling in vain efforts of pain and groans, with many symptoms of colic. The position of fore legs extended forward and hind legs stretched backwards is indicative of the animal suffering from bladder troubles of this sort. This is often coupled with inflaction of the bowel as well. In such cases use a catheter when possible. Otherwise spread clean straw or litter under the animal. Pour water in a small stream from one pail to another establishing sympathetic action. Rub the abdomen with wisps of straw and give warm, soapy water enemas. Have the water quite blood warm. Paralysis of the bladder may follow or exist with spasms of the neck of the same. Occur from tetanus, rheumatism, hemeplegia, disease of the posterior and of the spinal marrow, broken back, palsy of the tail and hind limbs shown by constant dribbling, when the neck is included, running down the thighs. If the neck is not involved the urine is retained, until the bladder is largely extended, when it is voided in a gush, though the bladder is not emptied. Suppression of urine is caused by stone obstruction, consequently this confusion should be overcome by actual examination along the whole course of the duct. Treatment is of avail only in certain cases. Sprains of the back or disease of the spinal cord, which are remediable, should have proper treatment, and the catheter frequently used. If the bladder trouble exists after recovery of the spinal trouble, apply mustard and water or a good stimulating liniment to the back part of the belly in front of the udder, until the hair stands on end. In the horse apply same between the thighs, well up and downward. Warm water enemas and a laxative condition, tonic the system and as an experiment electricity may be tried.

MILK STREET, BOSTON, MASS

NEW MOTH PEST

Has Appeared in the Vicinity of Medford

Medford's latest moth pest may yet be the worst. Although the smallest as an individual, he bids fair to become the biggest in numbers and the most dangerous in his depredations. He may be the insect that will damage the American forests more seriously than any other pests that have preceded him. He is a miner and works inside of the leaves.

From the fact that there is no known way of attacking the caterpillar without destroying the trees, he is a particularly difficult proposition to deal with. Fortified by his position during his whole working life against the attacks of birds or other parasites and also against the weather or any poisonous spray that may be directed at him, he is safe from ordinary assault.

The new caterpillar and moth are practically unknown. Whether they bear a name or not cannot be stated. They were discovered two years ago this spring by Gen. Samuel C. Lawrence in his woods, eating away at the inside pulp of the leaves of some small oak undergrowth. Since then they have spread over many acres of his estate and the adjoining Fells reservation, and now there are more millions of them in the woods than there were persons found by the United States enumerators in the whole 1910 census.

The caterpillar in question is from 1-8 to 3-16 of an inch long, a little flat, translucent creature of a yellowish green or darker color that eats his way between the upper and under epidermis or skin of the leaf. What he devours is the parenchyma or soft pulp of the leaf. Wherever he works, his traces are visible in the rapidly spreading brown spots on the green leaf which gradually curls up as the life is sucked or eaten out of it. As many as 100 of these tiny caterpillars have been counted in a single oak leaf which goes to show the plentifulness of the insect.

The oak shrubs seems to be the first infested. Then the pest spreads up into the trees, working his way toward the top. He seems to have a special fondness for red and white oaks, but walnut and linden trees have also been found infested.

As the worm is inside of the leaf it can readily be appreciated why the arsenate of lead that is sprayed on the outside of the leaves apparently has no effect on them. This fact also explains his impregnable position so far as the birds and various other parasites are concerned. The insect is a "miner" and works all the time below the surface.

About May 20 last the big tower on Ram's Head hill and the adjacent trees were fairly covered with a shower of the little white millers of this particular insect. About that time the eggs must have been laid,—nobody knows where,—and later the little caterpillars must have come into existence. During the last four weeks their presence has been noticed with an ever increasing spread till now there are hundreds of trees the leaves of which are entirely brown.

Splitting open the brown spotted leaf, you will find half a dozen or several score of the tiny caterpillars under the thin upper skin. Just now the caterpillars are mostly full grown, a large portion of them are pupating and a few have transformed into flying millers. In two months the cycle from miller to miller has been completed. How many cycles take place in the season will be known later.

Under the microscope the full grown caterpillar apears to be something less than 3-16 of an inch in length. Except for his flat appearance,—his width being four or five times his thickness and one-fifth of his length,—he looks like the rattler of a microscopic rattlesnake. There are 11 of these articles or rattles with a sharp little head at one end and a dark little tail at the other. As the caterpillar matures he seems to grow darker. When in the pupa state he is something like the color of iron rust or a little redder. This pupa is encased in a small film of white silk like the finest waxed paper which is attached to the inside of the heavier underskin of the leaf. This white film or cocoon is circular in form and about one quarter inch in diameter.

In the same leaf this week may be seen a large number of crawling caterpillars, also pupae in all stages, including some where the wings are fast developing. Some of the youngest caterpillars are almost as colorless as small shrimp. Minute spots, apparently of black excrement, are scattered about on the lower thickness of the leaf.

To see the creature at work you must get your leaf and split it open by lifting off the thin upper skin,—a trick which is easily done, thanks to the skill and thoroughness with which the insect does his work.

It may be that some device may be arranged to destroy the multitudes of millers that will soon be flying and thus bring about a reduction in the possible numbers of the next generation. But the problem is not an easy one.

These little miners are not the only new moth pests that have been discovered in the Fells. Last year and this year it was found that the tops of some of the red oaks on the Lawrence estate were being defoliated. Gen. Lawrence took a large quantity of the caterpillars to the state forester who sent them to William F. Fiske, the entomologist at the Melrose parasite station. Mr. Fiske has given considerable study to these caterpillars and found that there were 12 varieties among the specimens submitted. Just what they were he was unable to state, but whatever their names they are exceedingly hardy and voracious, too.

On July 9 of this year some strange caterpillars were found on the big elm tree in front of Gen. Lawrence's stable. As they were entirely unlike any caterpillars that the men had seen before a large number of specimens were sent to the Melrose parasite station. A single twig one foot long contained 185 caterpillars. At Melrose they were recognized as the "morning cloak butterfly" caterpillars, which are common in the western states, where they are extremely partial to willow trees, but are seldom seen in the east. They were more than one inch in length and had two rows of horns or spines extending along their back with 11 in each row.

PRESIDENT TAFT

Paid a Visit to Eastport, Me., Today

EASTPORT, Me., July 19.—When the presidential yacht Mayflower pointed her way up the Lubec narrows this morning a president of the United States for the first time in history reached the northeast corner of the country. Eastport was appropriately excited. Flags and bunting were displayed along the waterfront and the entire population was early astir in getting the little town in readiness for the coming of the distinguished guest. Soon after 8 o'clock people from the surrounding villages began to arrive. Some came in farm wagons, some in automobiles. The Mayflower was not due to arrive until 11 o'clock and the president was not expected ashore until 2 p. m., but Water street and the docks were thronged by 9 o'clock. From the moment the Mayflower reached the open sea she became the target for inspection by passengers and crew of every passing vessel. The yacht arrived off Eastport early this morning but loitered in the open sea while the party breakfasted.

ANOTHER FIGHT

BETWEEN JEFFRIES AND JOHNSON SEEMS LIKELY

CHICAGO, July 19.—Plans for another battle between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson were outlined in a letter by Joe Choynski. "I'm so firmly convinced that Jeffries can whip Johnson the best day he ever lived, that I'm advising him to bet $50,000 of his own money and then challenge Johnson, the winner to get the entire receipts and the side bet," declared Joe last night. "Jeffries' defeat is told in two words—'mental collapse.' True, he was in excellent condition physically, but his mind and heart were affected and when he entered the ring his brain refused to act. For weeks and weeks before the fight Jeffries received hundreds of letters daily from admirers imploring him to whip Johnson," continued Joseph. "They told him that he was 'the hope of the white race.' That preyed on his mind. He did not confide his troubles to his camp associates and the weight on his mind simply unnerved him."

THE SMOKE LAW

He Charges Violations and Says He Means Business — He is Without Office or Help From the City, But Will Enforce the Law

Despite the fact that the city council has refused to appropriate $200 for necessaries and that he is denied an office at the city hall, Roy M. Greenleaf, Lowell's smoke inspector, is going right ahead and is determined to do business. There is no pay attached to the job of smoke inspector and it became known today that Mr. Greenleaf was paying rent on a typewriter at home.

"Yes, it's true that I am paying rent for a typewriter with which to do the city's work. Mr. Dowling, clerk of committees, very kindly suggested that I might use his typewriter, but I do not want to put him to that trouble and the chances are that when I would want it he would be using it.

"I think it is pretty small potatoes on the part of the city council to delay the appropriation of $200 for the few things that I require. The mayor recommended to the city council that the money be appropriated, but it would seem that the board of aldermen is not in sympathy with the mayor. They do not take kindly to his suggestions. I suppose that's what you call petty politics, isn't it. The fate of the appropriation suggested by the mayor is now in the hands of the committee on appropriations and it remains to be seen what disposition will be made of it.

"The only encouragement I receive on the job comes from Mayor Meehan. I had a talk with him this morning and told him what I was doing and intended to do. I told him that I had communicated with and received letters from mill agents and that I intended to enforce the smoke law. He told me to be sure that I was right and when convinced that I was right, to go ahead. He said he would stand back of me."

Mr. Greenleaf then referred to correspondence he had with mill officials. He wrote to Agent Wadleigh of the Merrimack mills advising that official that the smoke inspector had noted a violation of the smoke nuisance at the Merrimack mills. The following reply was sent the inspector by Mr. Wadleigh:

Lowell, Mass., July 1, 1910.

Mr. Roy W. Greenleaf, Office of Smoke Inspector, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: I have your letter of June 27th in which you specify dates on which this company violated chapter 102, sections 122 and 126 of revised laws, as regards smoke nuisance. We are very much surprised to note the extent of violation and do not see how we can possibly agree with your letter. We have had a custom in vogue here for years of comparing our smoke every half hour with the Ringelmann chart and noting same. Record of June first taken by Ringelmann chart, does not agree with your letter. We might possibly have a better understanding of the matter if we understood your method of observation. At your convenience, would you mind calling at the office, either to see the writer or our chief engineer, Mr. Pilkington, and compare notes as to methods used, etc. I will say that frequently this company is blamed for black smoke, when in reality it come from a chimney almost in direct line with ours, but immediately back of it, and owned by another concern. I assume that you are entirely familiar with the Lowell chimneys, and it could not have been a mistake in your report based on the wrong chimney.

Yours truly,
J. C. Wadleigh, Agent.

Inspector Greenleaf's Reply

Lowell, Mass., July 11, 1910.

Mr. J. C. Wadleigh, Agent, Merrimack Manufacturing Co., Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of July 1st, questioning the correctness of my observations of your chimney on June 1st, I am very glad to explain my method of observing up to the present time. In the near future I intend to adopt a closer system of grading smoke for use in which I shall employ an instrument which is being designed by a Boston gentleman.

All of my observations have been made from the city hall tower, where I can have unobstructed view of all chimneys; and in the absence of a Ringelmann chart, for which I have sent but have not as yet received, I have graded smoke as of but three densities—gray, dense gray, and dark. gray being equivalent to No. 2, or 40 per cent, dense being equivalent to No. 3, or 60 per cent, and dark being equivalent to No. 4, or 80 per cent black of the Ringelmann chart.

ROY M. GREENLEAF
Smoke Inspector

It is not the policy of this office to persistently worry or badger any corporation or concern by unnecessary or unwarranted demands, but to require and expect compliance with the requirements of the law by whatever method they see fit, tending to the reduction and final elimination of the smoke nuisance as it exists at the present time. No suggestions are offered other than a flue gas analyzer or C O 2 recorder would prove a revelation as to coal waste.

I am familiar with the chimney to which you refer and I assure you that I have not overlooked it or mistaken it for your own at any time.

I shall be pleased to accept your invitation to call at an early date, and I thank you for the opportunity.

Very truly yours,
Roy M. Greenleaf,
Inspector.

The following letter from Agent Southworth of the Massachusetts mills to the smoke inspector is self explanatory:

Lowell, July 6, 1910.

Mr. Roy W. Greenleaf, Smoke Inspector, City Hall.

Dear Sir:

I received from you several weeks ago a copy of the smoke laws, and although I have not been notified that the Massachusetts chimneys are offenders, I think I may as well explain to you the situation.

We are just about to start on the foundation of a new steel frame boiler house and coal bunker with chimney stack adjoining. The boilers we are to install for the relief of our present boilers will be equipped with stokers and will be very nearly smokeless, and the starting of them up which I am afraid will not be much before next spring, will relieve our old boilers which have no stokers so that they will smoke less than they do.

Under these circumstances we must either smoke as we are doing for some months to come, or shut down our mills. If you will let me know whether you have marked our chimneys as offenders, I will apply for a permit until next May.

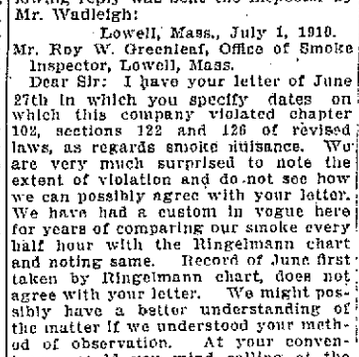

Yours truly,
W. S. Southworth, Agent.

Mr. Greenleaf has not replied to Mr. Southworth's letter but will do so in a few days.

Since Inspector Greenleaf addressed his communication to Agent Wadleigh of the Merrimack mills he has received a Ringelmann chart from Washington, D. C., and he is thoroughly familiar with it. He is a firm believer in the abatement of the smoke nuisance and to say that he is well posted on the question is putting it mildly. He is posted on scientific investigations and called the reporter's attention to the following item in the New England Engineer:

"Scientific investigations in Leeds, England, made by a professor of the University of Leeds, show that in the business section about 300 tons of soot per square mile reached the ground."

Mr. Greenleaf claims that the United States Geological survey claims that 90,000,000 tons of coal are used on 51,000 locomotives in the United States. Of this coal 40,571,000 tons are wasted. It is estimated that 10,080,000 tons are lost by the smoke.

EXPULSION OF JEWS

At the Rate of Forty-Five a Day From Kiev

KIEV, Russia, July 19.—The expulsion of Jews from Kiev is at the rate of forty-five individuals a day. From July 4 until July 15, 497 were expelled by what is known as the second method. That is they were actually forced to leave town. During the same period 1131 persons were expelled by the first method, which in effect is a warning for their departure but permits them to remain for a settlement of private affairs.

During the twelve days mentioned there were 165 expulsions from Solomenka and 151 from Demieffka. Since May 13 when the imperial decree ordering that all Jews who could not establish a legal right of residence elsewhere should be returned within the pale of the restricted district of the Polish provinces and the Ukraine became effective, there have been expelled from this city, Solomenka and Demieffka 3001 persons by the second method and 3641 by the first method. However, in making this total of 6642 allowance must be made for a large percentage of duplications in the count. Many have been expelled only to return and be sent away again while the expulsions from Solomenka and Demieffka are largely composed of those who were originally expelled from this city. Officers of the Jewish relief committee of Kiev stated today that, roughly estimated, seven hundred families had been already sent out of the city and four hundred families were still subject to such treatment. The larger figures furnished day by day indicate the mobility of the expelled, many of whom persistently return to Kiev to face repeated expulsion.

In the case of the latter the authorities have adopted drastic measures, the returning ones frequently being accompanied from the city by gendarmes and in many cases banishment by "etappe" has been resorted to. This system provides for the shipment of batches of Jews to their final destination under escort of relays of guards.

MAN ADRIFT IN DORY

HIGHLAND LIGHT, July 19.—A man adrift in a dory was picked up off Pamet river at 9 a. m. today by the steam yacht Sagamore, bound from Boston to Vineyard Haven. The men is believed by shore observers to have been a fisherman. The dory was drifting toward the breakers when the yacht was seen to pick it up.

GIRL WAS DROWNED

CASTINE, Me., July 19.—Miss Beulah McIntyre, an 18-year-old girl, was drowned in Castine harbor last night. Miss McIntyre was canoeing with Thomas Hahn when the canoe was accidentally upset and the young woman sank.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE

Autoists Fatally Injured Two Men and Left Them to Die

LINCOLN, R. I., July 19.—The body of James O'Rourke, 55, a laborer, employed at the Lonsdale bleachery, was found early today on Lonsdale avenue, while on the other side of the road James Larkin, 35, another laborer, was found probably fatally injured. Both men had evidently been struck by an automobile, the occupants of which had stopped and laid the victims by the roadside and left them there to die. It is believed the auto was going in the direction of Woonsocket and the police of that city and the intervening towns have been asked to look out for the car.

NIGHT EDITION

Were Aired in Police Court This Morning

In police court this morning was a light docket, and the court's time was taken up with a number of domestic disputes and family troubles. William J. Lally was before the court for the non-support of his better half, and Judge Pickman after quite an investigation, decided that William was guilty, and advised him to lead a different life. The sentence imposed by the judge was a suspended one of six months in jail, and during that time he will be in the custody of the probation officer.

Rather Go to Jail

George F. Droletter was also given a suspended sentence of six months for non-support of his wife, but he said he would rather serve three months than live with her again and the court granted his request. There was a conference afterwards which may result in a better understanding.

Sent to Jail

Stephen Shaughnessy was in a very bad condition, and the court thought he ought to have a rest at the Lowell jail for the term of 10 days.

A Milk Case

Mrs. C. A. Frost was charged with keeping milk under the standard and she pleaded not guilty, and said she had no intention of doing anything wrong. Inspector of milk and vinegar Masters testified as to the analyzation of the samples, and Deputy Inspector James E. Hill told the court just how he received the samples. The court took the matter under consideration.

The Drunks

Charles H. Crocker, Sarah A. Donahue, Joseph Dupuis, Edward Bonley, and George Watson were respectively fined six dollars, and the court after hearing the testimony in Watson's case, revoked the sentence and gave him in charge of the probation officer.

There were seven $2 fines, and seven released by the probation officer.

SENSATIONAL BREAK IN COTTON

NEW YORK, July 19.—The sensational advance in July cotton culminating at 16.55 yesterday was followed by as sensational a break during today's trading. Between the recent urgent buying of contracts and the heavy shipments of cotton in this direction from Liverpool and the south it looked as if the July shorts had secured cover and when some cotton was offered today the price suffered severely. After selling at 16.41 early July gradually worked off to 15.95 and from that price broke to 16.65 without a single sale while only a few thousand bales changed hands during the entire morning. August sold at a net loss of 39 points and the new crop broke anywhere from 20 to 22 points.

FORTY WERE INJURED

DUBLIN, July 19.—Forty persons were injured in an accident on the Great Southern railroad at Roscrea, in the northwestern part of Tipperary county today. None was killed.

FEW TRAINS RUNNING

Strike Has Left Grand Trunk Practically Idle

MONTREAL, July 19.—The strike order issued on the Grand Trunk road at 9.30 last night and instantly obeyed by fully 3500 conductors and trainmen, whose demands for wage increases had not been met by President Hayes of the railroad at the final conference yesterday, caused practically complete paralysis of the freight movement throughout the greater part of the system today and few if any passenger trains were put out.

All suburban trains on the Grand Trunk railroad running into Montreal were cancelled this morning. Thousands of business men and others were compelled to find other means of reaching the city. Milk trains were also cancelled and a large section of the city is threatened with a milk famine.

When the 1500 employes of the Grand Trunk shops at Point St. Charles reported for work today they found the shops surrounded by a cordon of 350 policemen and notices posted that the shops were closed in consequence of the strike of conductors and trainmen which started last night. The men returned to their homes peacefully or gathered in groups discussing the situation.

Union officials here say that the object of the Grand Trunk in closing its shops is to force the shop employes, many of whom are old trainmen, to take the strikers' places. The union officials say that if this is the intention it will not succeed.

PARTLY TIED UP

BUFFALO, July 19.—As a result of the Grand Trunk strike the Wabash railroad is partially tied up. Wabash train number 1, a fast express for St. Louis, which arrived at 2 o'clock this morning from the east, did not get away for nearly seven hours. Other trains were delayed but not seriously. J. J. Mossman, general agent for the Wabash along the Niagara frontier today said: "The strike on the Wabash is the result of the Grand Trunk strike and we were powerless to prevent. On its line from Buffalo to Windsor the Wabash is operated in connection with the Grand Trunk and we are bound with the Grand Trunk agreements so there was no choice about the matter."

SOME TRAINS CANCELLED

MONTREAL, July 19.—Shortly before noon today the Grand Trunk officials claimed that the strike of conductors and trainmen inaugurated over its lines last night had not had the effect of tying up its service, but admitted that some local trains had been cancelled and that freight traffic had been practically compelled to come to a standstill. They insisted that all important passenger and mail trains were moving as usual. The International Limited from Montreal to Chicago, the company's most important day train, left Bonaventure station here as usual at 9 o'clock this morning in charge of a non-union crew.

The company expects to replace the strikers by recruits from the shops.

The strike embraces all the company's lines from Portland, Maine, to Chicago. It involves nearly 5000 trainmen and conductors. In addition the action of the company in closing its various shops throughout Canada and Michigan throws probably 10,000 additional workers out of employment.

The strikers state that they are less concerned in the stopping of passenger traffic than in tying up the freight traffic important in crop carrying, and this, they say, they have succeeded in doing completely.

Both sides appear to be out for a determined struggle. The union officials say they will accept nothing less than the wages and conditions prescribed in the standardization rules and the company says it cannot meet any such conditions.

The company is congratulating itself on the eleventh hour settlement made with the telegraph operators yesterday which removes that branch of the service from the participation in the trouble.

The principal points involved in the strike are, in addition to Montreal, London and Stratford, Ont. and Port Huron and Battle Creek, Mich., in all of which places the company has workshops.

Appeal has been made by the men employed in the shops at Montreal to the mayor and city council for arbitration under the Mulock law. These city officials will tender their offices to both sides today but it is not believed that it will have any result.

The Grand Trunk early posted notices at Bonaventure station that all local trains had been cancelled. Another notice warned all persons not having business on the premises to leave.

MOTHER SAVED HIM

FLINT, Mich. July 19.—The brakeman on a westbound Grand Trunk passenger train which passed through Flint this morning was attacked by strikers here. They threatened taking him off the train and rushed for the car which he was on. Just as they were mounting the steps a woman who said she was his mother stepped on to the platform and shouted that before they could touch her son they must deal with her. The strikers retreated and the train pulled out. As it left the mother stepped off.

MAY BE ARBITRATED

MONTREAL, July 19.—A new turn was given in the situation of the strike of the Grand Trunk conductors and trainmen here shortly after noon by the receipt of a despatch from the minister of labor at Ottawa offering on behalf of the government to appoint a board of arbitration to act on the trouble between the company and its employes, the finding to be binding on both and the government to bear all expenses in connection therewith.

The offer was submitted in the form of a letter to President Hays of the Grand Trunk and the head officials of the unions involved.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear upon both sides to accept. It is thought that from the fact that President Hays has already made an offer to arbitrate the difficulty that the company will accede to the proposal.

Except for this offer the morning developed nothing new in the situation. Advices from all divisional points of the Grand Trunk in Canada and from Port Huron and Detroit indicate the company is having greater difficulty in keeping its trains moving than was at first apparent. At some points no tickets are being sold because of the inability of the company to guarantee a complete journey. The train which left Stratford, Ont., for Buffalo at 10.45 this morning carried no passengers. At Hamilton, a great centre of trades unionism, trouble is feared as soon as strikebreakers begin to appear and the police precautions have been redoubled.

Freight jams are reported at Hamilton and Toronto, large industrial centres, while the yards of Montreal are full. An official of the company predicts that the entire train service will be resumed within 48 hours, basing his prediction, he said, upon the company's apparent ability to secure all the new men it wants.

Union officials bitterly denounce the company for closing the shops at this time and thereby forcing 10,000 men into idleness.

The latest calculation of the number of men rendered idle by the strike and lockout runs to 16,000.

STOCK MARKET

WAS FIRM BUT DULL AT THE CLOSE TODAY

Little Buying Because of Hardening of Prices—Declines Were Quite Generally Made Up

NEW YORK, July 19.—Trading in the general list was dull at the opening in the stock market, but there were wide movements in a few cases. Canadian Pacific declined 1 1-4, Reading and Denver and Rio Grande 1 and Great Northern pfd. 5-8. Rock Island pfd. advanced a point. Prices showed a tendency to drop after the opening.

The weakness of C. P. R. had a depressing effect but pressure was not active and the action of prices was wavering and uncertain. Colorado Fuel declined 1.

The Grand Trunk strike caused sympathetic weakness in Canadian Pacific which lost 2 3-4. Reading's decline reached 1 3-4, Rock Island pfd. 1 3-8 and St. Paul, Northern Pacific and Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste Marie pfd 1. There were fractional rallies at noon. Bonds were steady.

Trading came almost to a standstill at a rally extending to a point in some instances.

Prices fluctuated within a very narrow range and the amount of business was trivial. Del. & Hud. declined 1 3-8 and St. Paul rose 1 1-2.

The market closed firm and dull. The slow hardening of prices resulted from the lightest of buying, but declines were quite generally made up.

PART IN TEARS

Blind Man and Boy Guide Separated

NEW YORK, July 19.—A bright-faced lad of thirteen, clad only in a ragged knit jacket, thin jumper and a pair of much-worn shoes, entered the children's bureau of the charities department yesterday, leading a blind man whose raiment was also much the worse for wear.

After describing himself as Joseph Graff, homeless and without friends, the lad said to Superintendent Bauer of the children's society:

"This man has been caring for me for two months, but he is not able to provide for either of us any longer. He wants to ask you to do something for me."

The man groped about until he felt a hand outstretched to lead him to a chair, and then he said he was William Karrias, of Baltimore.

With his head down over his chest, he said slowly that because the boy had assisted him to cross a street a few weeks ago, and had subsequently taken him out to Canarsie and back to New York again, he had befriended the youngster, but that now he must yield him to the county to be cared for.

"I am 40 years old now," said Karrias, "and I have been blind since infancy. My people are dead, and my last friend left the city a year ago. I have supported myself by soliciting alms along the streets and have lived in a lodging house on West Broadway. I don't know much about the boy, except that he tells me he was unable to live with cruel parents and ran away. He said he had been sleeping along the railroad and in doorways, and I felt sorry for him and took him to lodge with me. He has led me about the city since, and what little we could beg we have divided. But now I must try to get placed in the almshouse or in a home, and I can no longer care for the boy."

Showed Courtesy to Benefactor

Supt. Bauer took Karrias and the boy downstairs to the living quarters of James Browning, the engineer of the building, and Mrs. Browning gave them eggs and coffee. The boy did not start his meal until he had opened and seasoned his companion's eggs and had sweetened his coffee.

Joseph Graveur, chief parole officer of the court of special sessions, listened a while to the tale of Karrias and the boy, and then said he would place the youngster in the Grace Farm school, at Valhalla, N. Y.

He told Karrias how he must go about applying to enter a home for the blind, and then Karrias bid the youngster goodby and asked to be led to the street.

The boy began to cry when Karrias thanked him for brightening his miserable life, and this set Karrias off also. When the pair had recovered the youth asked if he might lead his benefactor to the car, and he was allowed to do so.

THE TENDERLOIN

Seven all Night Licenses Revoked

NEW YORK, July 19.—Seven of the most notorious "lobster palaces" in the Tenderloin lost their all night licenses yesterday. This leaves but six of the sixty cafes and restaurants in the Tenderloin and in lower Manhattan which were operating under all night licenses a week ago free to sell liquors after 1 o'clock in the morning.

The mayor revoked all night license permits issued by the state excise department to S. J. Regan, Hotel Sterling, Seventh avenue and 50th street; the abbaye cafe, 110 West 30th street; George Rector, Cafe Madrid, Broadway and 46th street; "Joe" Adams, 156 West 44th street; Maxim's hotel, 110 West 38th street; "Jake" Wolfe's, 158 West 46th street, and Faust's cafe in the Columbus circle.

It is understood that none of the cafes in this list will be allowed to have all night licenses in the future, and the mayor has continued his refusal to issue a permit for a new license of this character to James Churchill for his new resort.

Those retaining their licenses are Furthmann's, "Andy" Horn's and the Bridge Cafe, in Park Row near the Brooklyn bridge; Alexander Hess, in William street; Mike Dowling, at Seventh avenue and Forty-third street, and Jack's, in Sixth avenue. Aside from Jack's, the resorts on the list are saloons, at which men who work during the night congregate. The mayor will probably later on issue new permits to a few of the saloons included in the list of forty-seven licenses revoked last week, which are also kept open for night workers and which have no restaurant attachments.

There was sorrow along the Great White Way last night, as the mayor practically ordered all of the centres of night life in the Tenderloin to close their doors at 1 o'clock in the morning.

While many of the habitues of these resorts are absent from the city at present, the revocation of the licenses will mean large losses to the owners of the resorts, many of whom have catered particularly to a trade which delighted to remain out after everything else was closed for the night.

If the order stands, which many doubt, it will revolutionize life in the Tenderloin next fall and winter, when the theatre season reopens, and will mean great losses to owners of many places in the Broadway district.

SIX MORE BATHS

To be Installed at the Eliot School

Six more baths are to be installed in the basement of the Eliot school. This conclusion was arrived at yesterday, and the playground committee of the Middlesex Women's club will pay the freight. Boys and even girls resort to and flounder about in the mud pond on the common. Almost everything imaginable is thrown into that pond and it is unsanitary. The supervisors and the committee talked the matter over and yesterday the committee consulted with the park commission and the school authorities with the result that the baths will be installed at once and it is hoped that some plan can be devised whereby the girls can use the showers at stated times.

MIND UPSET

REVIVAL EXCITEMENT AFFECTED HARTFORD WOMAN

NEW YORK, July 19.—Mrs. Virginia Wilson, forty-seven years old, of 1103 Park street, Hartford, who arrived in New York yesterday with the avowed intention of converting the city, was resting comfortably in Bellevue psychopathic ward last night.

Mrs. Wilson, according to her family, became excited mentally over religion during the revival meetings in Hartford four years ago. Once before she left home in the hope of converting wicked New Yorkers, but her family got her back without publicity. Since then they have watched her carefully, and she had never been able to get away until yesterday.

She left Hartford on the 8.29 train, arriving at the Grand Central station shortly after 11 o'clock. She had telephoned Rev. Dr. John Emerson Zeller, pastor of the Warren Street Methodist church (her former pastor in Hartford), to meet her at the station. He did so, and Mrs. Wilson informed him how she had come to New York to show New Yorkers the error of their ways and convert them.

Dr. Zeller, seeing at once that the woman was of unsound mind, called Patrolman Daggett to his assistance. Between them they persuaded her to go to the East Fifty-first street station. She repeated her story to the lieutenant, and was then taken to Bellevue. At her home in Hartford last night it was said that her husband, who is a well-to-do contractor, would probably allow her to remain in the hospital for a few days, in order that her condition may be observed and an effort made to learn just how badly her mind is disordered. Her husband arrived in this city last night.

Says Do it Now

Mr. Whitcomb, superintendent of schools, calls attention to the fact that it is never too early to vaccinate the pupils who are now on their vacation. Mr. Whitcomb never called the attention of parents to this matter so early in the year, but he thinks it is well that they should have it in mind. He says that the law demands that the child shall be vaccinated and quite frequently they come to school at the close of the holidays without being vaccinated and that means that they will lose anywhere from two weeks to a month with sore arms.

SCOTLAND YARD

Has a Clue in the Crippen Murder Case

LONDON, July 19.—Scotland Yard today obtained what is believed to be a clue to the disposition of the bones with which the flesh unearthed in the cellar in Hilldrop Crescent once formed the body of Belle Elmore, wife of Dr. Hawley Crippen. The detectives ran across a woman who said that Miss Leneve had been her friend and had talked to her in confidence about the mysterious visits paid by Dr. Crippen to the neighborhood of Regents park. The theory of the police is that the bones of the murdered woman may have been carried in some small parcels to Regents park and deposited in the Regents canal. This development has strengthened the belief of Miss Leneve's friends that she is innocent of any knowledge of the crime. At the inquest yesterday the physicians testified that the flesh had been carefully and skillfully carved from the skeleton. It has been deemed of great importance to discover the missing members, including the head, hands and feet, in order to complete the body and thus establish legally the case of murder.

With the evidence at hand the police have not as yet been able to determine so much as the sex of the victim. The authorities today offered a reward of $1250 for information leading to the arrest of Dr. Crippen. He left his office at 1 p. m. on July 9, since which time no positive trace of his whereabouts has been discovered. Supt. Forest of Scotland Yard does not admit that any important discovery has been made.

There is still hope that the fugitive pair may be found aboard the Red Star liner Kroonland.

FAMILY STARVING

Found in Sad Condition Under a Pier at Coney Island

NEW YORK, July 19.—Ordered by the doctor at a public dispensary to take her sick babies to the seashore or lose them, Mrs. Fannie Giunstein, 30 years old, of 268 Cherry street, has been living in the sand under a pier at Kensington Walk and the ocean at Coney Island for eight days with her five children: Isador, 7 years; Hostel, 5 years; Rachel 3½ years; Philip, 2 years, and Catalin, 2 months old.

There they were found last night on the verge of starvation by Sergeant Daniel O'Connell, known as "Handsome Dan," who was formerly connected with the Chinatown precinct, and who has a heart as big as a watermelon.

Mrs. Giunstein had had almost nothing to eat in the eight days she and her children had spent on the sand. When O'Connell asked her to stand up last night, she attempted to do so and collapsed. The children are little more than living skeletons.

Their father is a cloakmaker in a Manhattan sweatshop, who, when he had employment, worked from 15 to 17 hours a day for small pay. Recently he was thrown out of employment by the cloakmakers' strike, and the family has had only what the father could beg to eat.

When Sergeant O'Connell came upon the little family at 8 o'clock last night Mrs. Giunstein and her brood were huddled together in an effort to keep warm. A stiff wind was blowing in upon them from the ocean.

"We came here a week ago Saturday night," she said. "We live in a couple of rooms at 268 Cherry street, and Phillip and the baby, Catulin, have been very sick. I took them to a dispensary and the doctor said that unless they were sent to the seashore they would die. The hot weather was killing them.

"We had no money. My husband, Abraham, was then working in a sweatshop fifteen or seventeen hours a day. He went to work at 5 a. m. and came home about 9 in the evening. I waited until he came home and told him what the doctor had said. 'Well,' he said, 'I don't know what we can do. We have no money.' I sat up all that night thinking.

"When my husband got up at 4 o'clock to go to work I told him I would take the children to Coney Island to get the fresh air. I could not remain in those two rooms and see my children die before my eyes. So off we went to the island, and we found a fairly comfortable place under the pier here. My husband came down that night with some bread for us. I told him I would remain in that spot until the children got better.

"My husband had to work very hard. It was midnight every night before he came down to see us. He brought whatever he could get for us to eat. He got no sleep, for he had to report for work at 5 o'clock in the morning. He was nearly worn out himself when the cloakmakers' strike threw him out of employment.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE

"Master and Man," at Lakeview theatre is pleasing every one who has seen the play, for it is perhaps one of the best plays of its kind ever written.

In it Mr. James Thatcher, the leading man, plays the role of "O'Neil, the Sailor," and his interpretation of the part could not be better. The other member of the company are all cast so that every one will have the role best suited to his talents and the whole makes a play of exceptional strength, admirably staged and well acted.

The curtain at the matinee rises at 2.30 and in the evening at 8.15, thereby giving every one a chance to see the fine attraction that is being offered this week.

ADVERTISING CLUBS MEET

OMAHA, Neb., July 19.—The convention of Associated Advertising clubs of America got down to business today.

Thirteen addresses, five in the forenoon and eight in the afternoon, were scheduled for today, chief among them being the address of former Vice President Fairbanks.

P. H. McDonald of Methuen, formerly of Lowell, was a visitor in this city today.

MAN WAS KILLED

In South End Lodging House in Boston Last Night

Alleged Assailant Raved After the Death Shot and Called For Morphine—The Victim Sought Interview Due to Wife's Story

BOSTON, July 19.—James F. Farrell, 42 years old, married and living at 906 Washington street, corner of Broadway extension, South End, where he conducts a lodging house with his wife, shot and killed James H. Lawson, 28 years old, in the house at the address named above, at 8 o'clock last night.

Farrell was almost immediately arrested by Patrolman Thomas P. Healey of the Lagrange street station, but not without a battle in which he drew his revolver.

Patrolman Thomas P. Healey was pulling in a duty call at box 26 at the corner of Washington street and Broadway extension at 8.02 o'clock when he heard two revolver shots. Screams of women followed and Patrolman Healey instantly located the cries in the lodging house. He ran to the doorway at 906 Washington street and hurried up the stairs.

When he entered a room on the third floor he found a man upon the floor bleeding from the ears, nose and mouth and another man sitting disconsolate upon the side of a bed, and two women wringing their hands, weeping and screaming.

Patrolman Healey grabbed the man who was seated upon the bed and started down the dark stairway and to the box with him.

When the policeman and his prisoner reached the second landing, which was dark, the prisoner stopped and began to resist the officer. He managed to reach his hip pocket and draw his revolver.

With a quick blow of his fist, Patrolman Healey knocked the revolver out of Farrell's hand and he then secured the weapon and put it in his own pocket. He went to the box and sent in a call for an ambulance and the patrol wagon.

When they arrived he sent the prisoner to the station house in charge of the wagon men and went back to the house. Lawson was taken to the City hospital.

Lawson was dead when he was picked up from the floor and after the ambulance arrived at the hospital the body was sent to the morgue. Lawson died from an internal hemorrhage.

Mark for Two Bullets

Lawson was struck by two bullets.

The first one lodged in his left jaw toward the point of the chin.

The second bullet passed through the right arm and into the arm pit, severing an artery and causing an internal hemorrhage.

Every exit to the house was promptly guarded by the police following the shooting and the witnesses detained. All of the witnesses were taken to the Lagrange street police station and were separated from each other so that they could not discuss the facts in the case among themselves.

Chief Inspector Joseph Dugan was sent for and arrived at the station house in a short time.

In the meantime, Farrell, booked on the charge of murder, was raving like a madman in his cell.

He begged for cigarettes and morphine. In the opinion of the police he was under the influence of drugs. He was sallow, haggard and his eyes had a wild stare and the pupils were much distended.

"O, officers, get me some morphine and some cigarettes and I will be satisfied," he shouted. "I will not care about anything else."

Like a Man in a Trance

Farrell behaved like a man in a trance when he was brought into Deputy Supt. Lawrence Cain's office to be interviewed by Chief Inspector Dugan. He wore a gray summer sack suit, a Panama hat, a high collar and a white four-in-hand tie. He has a sandy mustache, sandy hair and large blue eyes. He is a French Canadian and came from Ottawa, Can., a year ago.

Farrell begged again for drugs, but when somewhat calmed, he said:

"Mrs. Lawson is my wife's niece. On Sunday night I had to call in two policemen to throw two men out of my house. They were making bother and attacking me.

"I bought a revolver today to protect myself with. I feared Lawson would kill me because I had trouble with him on Sunday night.

"Tonight Lawson came into my room and began to abuse and upbraid me about his wife. He told me that if I had any arguments with her that I must have them in his presence. Then he struck me. Then I drew my revolver and shot him and the women came into the room and then the policeman. I do not remember any more. I was afraid he was going to kill me."

Mrs. Lawson, who was the first witness to tell her story to Chief Inspector Dugan, said:

"Mr. Farrell came into my room Sunday night and began to upbraid me and he struck me in the face. I told my husband about it. Tonight my husband went to Mr. Farrell's room to talk to him about it and to ask him to tell his troubles to him and not to me.

"I tried to persuade him not to go, but he was offended at the manner in which Mr. Farrell had treated me and he insisted upon going. He went and I soon started to follow him upstairs.

"Mr. Farrell's room is on the third floor. When I reached the landing outside the door I heard a revolver shot and a scream. I hurried and I also heard Mrs. Farrell, my aunt, coming upstairs behind me.

"Just as I entered the room, Mr. Farrell fired the second shot and I saw my husband fall to the floor. In a moment Mrs. Farrell entered the room and we screamed and wept. Then the policeman came and took Mr. Farrell away and others came and removed my husband."

The Trouble on Sunday Night

One other witness, a young man who is a lodger in the house, told of the trouble on Sunday night, and he also said that he heard loud words between Lawson and Farrell last night, and that later he heard the two revolver shots and saw the results of what happened.

The revolver taken from Farrell by Patrolman Healey is a new 38-caliber five-barrel affair. Three cartridges remained in the weapon and the shells of two that had been discharged.

Farrell also had a small paper box filled with morphine tablets in his pocket when he was arrested. He had evidently taken some of them previous to the shooting.

Farrell is employed as a piano tuner and polisher, and Lawson was employed in an Atlantic avenue shipping office. Lawson came from Nashville, Tenn.

The scene at station 4 was a most pathetic one last night while the investigation was in progress. The women did not know the shooting was fatal until Lieut. Goodwin and Sergt. Martin King found it necessary to break the news to Mrs. Lawson. She is a tall young woman of comely appearance. When told of the death of her husband she almost fainted.

Mrs. Farrell walked the floor of the guardroom constantly, weeping and wringing her hands. She said Lawson was a good man, industrious and sober at all times. She begged to be permitted to go to the hospital to see him, and when she was finally told he was dead she was almost prostrated.

Preparing Case Against Farrell

The witnesses were permitted to return to their home after the investigation, but Sergt. King and Patrolmen John Moran and Patrick Healey went out in search of two who left the house immediately after the shooting.

Farrell will be brought to police headquarters this morning to be re-examined and to be photographed and measured. He will be arraigned in court later and his case will be continued for an investigation and the preparation of the case by the police.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the vicinity as a result of the shooting and a throng of men, women and children gathered in the streets.

Patrolman P. J. Healey was congratulated by his superiors last night for his work in arresting Farrell and in securing the witnesses to the shooting.

HELD IN $2,000

In Connection With "White Slave" Case

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 19.—Charged with bringing Cora Conrad, a pretty young girl, here from New York and then forcing her to live a "white slave," John Bureas, a swarthy young man picked up in the police crusade to prevent starting of traffic in girls in this city, was held under $2000 bonds by Acting Recorder Grove yesterday and placed in jail to await the action of the October grand jury.

The girl, who was found in a tenderloin resort by Detective Herbert, made a pitiful plea for protection from Bureas, whom she claimed lured her from New York with tales of gay and jolly times at the shore.

The police are still holding the girl as a witness against the man and will endeavor to find her parents, who reside in a New England town, which the girl refuses to name because of the disgrace to her family.

MOTHER ANGRY

THAT HER BABY WAS OVERLOOKED AT SHOW

The recent baby show held at Lakeview park has left a sting and baby shows ought not to have any stings. A woman carrying a baby in her arms called at this office last evening and asked to see the editor. The auto editor answered the summons, but when he found out that the visitor wanted to talk babies he referred her to the baseball editor, who is considered a splendid judge of babies and who has been known to lecture on prepared milk. He smiled on the fond and gracious mother, tickled the baby under the chin and declared him to be the prettiest baby boy he had seen for ages. "I don't think so," said the fond and gracious mother. "I know he is not the prettiest baby in the world, but, just the same, he should have been awarded a prize at the baby show at Lakeview park. He would have received a prize, too, but for the fact that that Mr. Gage thought he was the whole shooting match. The women who were appointed didn't have a word to say about the babies—Mr. Gage said it all. It was a case of race prejudice, so it was, and if they will hold another baby show I will give to the woman who will present a baby of my baby's age and weighing as much and looking as well as my baby, $5 in gold."

Even the baby laughed at the baseball editor he looked so helpless. When first called he thought perhaps that an anxious mother had called with a sick baby to have him instruct her as to the use of prepared milk. He was not prepared for a charge of race prejudice, but he told the lady, on his word of honor, that he would do all in his power to bring about another baby show, at which the judges would be men who can tell a handsome baby when they see one.

SAILOR IS SAFE

CREW HAD MOURNED HIM AS DEAD

BOSTON, July 19.—When the fishing schooner Walter P. Goulart warped into a berth on the north side of T wharf late yesterday afternoon her colors were at half mast and there was mourning on board for one of the crew who was believed to have been lost.

Capt. Goulart and his crew learned, however, that the missing man had been picked up and brought here and was now safe at his home in Gloucester. The flag was quickly lowered and all hands went forward to learn the story of the rescue.

The Goulart was on Georges July 10, and the men were out hauling trawls. A heavy blanket of fog shut in and all the men hurried back to the vessel except Joe Robert, a Portuguese fisherman, who lost his way. The schooner cruised about in the vicinity all that day and night, burning torches and sounding her fog horn, but the missing man could not be located.

Robert, it appears, rowed in the opposite direction from the vessel and, after being three days and nights in the open dory, was picked up off Matinicus by one of the Maine steamers and taken to Rockland. He was afterward brought here and sent to his home in Gloucester.

The Goulart brought in 60,000 pounds of fish.

SUGGESTIONS TO PERAMBULATING PARENTS.

BETRAYED BY WOMAN

Bank Teller Arrested on Charge of Stealing $100,000

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Eluding the police of several cities and private detectives for more than two months, J. Howard Lowery, alias James H. Johnson, wanted in Utica, N. Y., on a charge of embezzling more than $100,000 from the Utica City National bank, was betrayed into the hands of a detective here yesterday by a woman and taken out of the city to New York state before the local authorities were aware of what was going on.

His arrest is the reward of perseverance on the part of Daniel J. Kelleher, a detective in the New York office of the American Bankers association. Lowery was a note teller in the bank and disappeared last April while an examiner was going over the bank's books.

When the police and private detectives started to look for the missing man they had nothing on which to work, but at last Kelleher got a clue that led to several cities and then to Wilmington, Del. He learned that a woman was in correspondence with the former teller and he spent many days in Delaware city before he learned her address, and then kept watch of her for nearly a week.

Sunday night the detective's vigil was rewarded. As he was standing in an alley near the woman's house he saw her leave with a dress suit case. He followed her to a railroad station and into a train for Philadelphia. In confronting her, he forced her to tell Lowery's address in this city. That done, he took her back to Wilmington, leaving a guard to see that she did not communicate with Lowery.

Then he came here with another detective. They stationed themselves near a house on North 16th street, where the woman said Lowery was living, and were on guard five hours when the man they wanted came out. Stepping up to him, Kelleher told Lowery he was under arrest. Lowery was stunned for a moment, but quickly recovered and asked to be permitted to pack his suit case, which he was allowed to do.

Lowery occupied a little third story room, having asked for a room at $1.25 a week when he went to the place two months ago. The landlady said Lowery, whom she knew as "Johnson," usually left the house every morning as if for business, returning in the evening. "All the mail's mail came from Wilmington," she said.

Lowery, it is said, agreed to waive all legal technicalities here and accompanied his captor back to Utica without resistance. Kelleher and his prisoner were out of the city before the local police learned of the arrest from the newspapers. Captain of Detectives Souders said that taking a prisoner out of the state without the formality of requisition was equivalent to kidnapping, and he purposed making a thorough investigation.

DISAPPEARED LAST APRIL

UTICA, N. Y., July 19.—J. Howard Lowery disappeared from Utica April 27 last. He had been the note teller in the Utica City National bank, and had been employed for a long time, and was implicitly trusted.

The bank examiner came here and made an examination of the bank, leaving in the afternoon. That night in going over his figures he discovered what he thought was a strange coincidence, and he returned to the bank in the morning.

Soon after he entered the bank Lowery went into another room and thence from the bank, carrying with him, it is alleged, $4000 that he had taken from a drawer on his way out. His absence was not discovered for an hour, and then he could not be traced.

Lowery's alleged shortage was more than $100,000, and his stealings, it is said, had been going on for six years. He lost most of the money, it is believed, in the stock market.

A second warrant was sworn out yesterday by the bank officials, charging Lowery with grand larceny. His case is to come up in the U. S. court.

HELD ON GIRL'S CHARGE

MILFORD, N. H., July 19.—Louis Nardin was held last night in $800 bonds on the charge of attacking Annie Broome, 15 years old, near her home here. The girl said that while she was walking up to her home on North street a man stepped out of a dark place along the road and seized her. She says she recognized him as a man she saw standing on the station platform when she left the train and believes he followed her.

The girl declares she screamed and fought him and he finally disappeared in the underbrush. Nardin was arrested yesterday afternoon.

A MOST DASTARDLY AUTOIST

That dastardly autoist who ran down an aged man on the Billerica road Saturday night and left him there to his fate should be severely punished if known. It might have been by accident the man was struck, but it was not by accident he was left there dead for aught the chauffeur knew. It was a cold-blooded, audacious piece of business. The man who did it was afraid of the consequences. Perhaps he thought he had killed a man but he went ahead to escape detection. It is too bad he was not found out that he might be punished as he deserves.

SUNDAY'S DOUBLE DROWNING

Another double drowning occurred in the Concord river on Sunday, making eight drownings during the present month. One of the young men who entered the water could not swim, and although the other made a courageous attempt to rescue him he was unable to do so on account of the death grip secured upon him by the drowning man.

These drownings are a continual object lesson in favor of public baths at which all young people could learn to swim. If we had the public baths few would go to the rivers or canals to bathe, and if everybody could swim there would be little risk of drowning if they did go in bathing in such places.

CANNON AND HIS CLAPTRAP

Speaker Cannon in an address at Kansas City on Saturday delivered one of his customary tirades against the press of the country and undertook to defend the tariff law, stating that it was unfairly criticized because certain schedules were held up as unjust, whereas the law taken as a whole is the best that could be devised.

He says: "The discontent of a people is not measured by complaints in the press. The pocket nerve was never in better condition than today, and that is the real evidence of confidence on the part of the American people in the economic policies of the government."

That is a sample of Cannon's political claptrap. Both statements are false, but perfectly characteristic of Cannon.

Cannon is still as unrepentant and pugnacious as ever. He will fight for anything bearing the label republican. He contends that he is right and that the people who criticize the tariff are wrong, although he admits that in the past thirty-five years he has been wrong as often as a score of times.

The country wants to get rid of Cannon and Cannonism; it wants to get rid of the standpatters and the policy they represent; it wants to get rid of the excessive tariff that has driven up the cost of living to unprecedented figures; it wants to get rid of the alliance between the republican party and the trusts which gives the combinations of capital the power to write their schedules in the tariff law and enables them to control the government of the country. There is little hope of securing these reforms with the republican party in power and, therefore, the remedy is to elect a democratic congress this fall and a democratic president in 1912. The republicans will make a great effort to change the public mind upon these questions during the coming fall, but in spite of the fact that Roosevelt, Taft, Lodge, Cannon, Sherman and a great many other party leaders will be on the stump, we do not believe they will be able to cajole the people into another endorsement of the republican party and its policies.

THE CLEANING UP OF LAWRENCE

The great question under discussion at the present time in Lawrence is how to stop grafting. There is considerable talk as to certain employes of the city who, it is alleged, obtain their places through payment of a certain amount to city officials supposed to have some influence in making the appointments. These matters should be thoroughly investigated by the district attorney so that there may be a general cleaning up and that every guilty official may be punished.

Chief Hamilton of the fire department is under indictment for alleged irregularity in securing his office. It is up to the district attorney to see that Chief Hamilton be speedily tried and that if guilty he be punished with the other officials already convicted.

Chief Hamilton has been the main cause of the trouble which culminated in the conviction of Mayor White, and it is due to the city that he be tried without delay. The chief trouble, however, with the city of Lawrence in the past has been that when indictments were brought they were hung up by the district attorney and never brought to trial. For that reason the city officials assumed that the recent indictments could be turned aside in a somewhat similar way. Public sentiment had grown too strong, however, and the district attorney was forced to bring them to trial.

We are not quite certain whether the people of Lawrence are satisfied with the progress in the direction of reform that has been made since the election of Mayor White on a reform platform. We are of the opinion that the trials that have just taken place and those that are yet to come will do more for reform than has been done in Lawrence for the past ten years. It will teach the people a lesson as to the kind of men they should elect to public office and as to what these men should do as public officials. It will put a stop to grafting and the political turmoil that has been in vogue and that some people think necessary to good government. We are also of the opinion that Lawrence is likely to adopt the commission form of government same as Haverhill so that there will be fewer officials to watch and that a better class of men will be selected for the offices to be filled.

The citizens of Lawrence feel very keenly the disgrace that has come upon them in the conviction of the mayor and other officials, and are likely to adopt radical measures to bring about the desired change not only in the personnel of the city government but in the organic law under which the city is to be governed. Lawrence, we have no doubt, will rise triumphant a cleaner and a better city after the present cleaning up by the courts.

SEEN AND HEARD

"People have the automobilists to thank for the changed attitude of restaurants and hotels toward the put up to take out lunch," said the outing man. "A few years ago any of our swell establishments would have looked askance at anybody who asked to have a lunch put up to take out, but now that it is considered the correct thing the most expensive restaurants, the choice little tea shops and expensive lunching places are all playing tag with one another to get the latest kinks for the put up lunch. They have all sorts of attractively decorated paper plates and cups, napkins and table cloths that can be used once and then thrown away, and the salads, the sandwiches and the arrangements of cold eggs, fish and meat are wonderful.

Tailors were credited with an excess of religious zeal by the new minister who found them much more willing to advertise in the new church magazines than other tradesmen of the neighborhood.

"It's the kneeling that fetches them," said a wise old trustee. "If you don't believe it just notice the last line of all their advertisements. That says, 'Trousers creased on Mondays for half price.' I never saw a church magazine yet that wasn't popular with the tailors, nine-tenths of whom offer Monday morning bargain rates for creasing trousers.

While walking down a crowded city street the other day,
I heard a little urchin to a comrade turn and say,
"Say, Chimmy, lemme tell youse I'd be happy as a clam
If I only wuz de feller dat me mudder t'inks I am.

"She t'inks I am a wonder an' she knows her little lad
Could never mix wit' nuthin' dat wuz ugly, mean or bad.
Oh, lots o' times I sit an' t'ink how nice 'twould be, gee whiz!
If a feller wuz de feller dat his mudder t'inks he is!"

My friend, be yours a life of toil or undiluted joy,
You still can learn a lesson from this small, unlettered boy.
Don't aim to be an earthly saint, with eyes fixed on a star,
Just try to be the fellow that your mother thinks you are.

—Will S. Adkin.

Little knots of people stood expectantly outside the eye and ear infirmary.

"What are they waiting for?" some one asked.

"News from an operation on a bad pair of eyes," said a doctor. "Nowhere does news travel faster than in the neighborhood of an eye hospital. Serious operations are not advertised by a brass band, yet somehow the report leaks out that a difficult case is to go under the knife at a certain time and interested persons flock around the gates for news. Real sympathy, not morbidity, is back of that interest. Attendants who are informed as to the progress of an operation are very obliging about passing the news along."

The vacuum cleaner operator tells how he lost a customer.

"The third story left woman comes to me and says she would it be possible to keep the sweepings from her flat separate from other sweepings and return them to her in a jar? I said it would, and when the flat had been swept I emptied the dirt into her little glass jar.

"Next time I called she met me at the door with another jar, bigger than the first. Says she: 'You also sweep the third floor right apartment, do you not?'

"I said I did.

"'Very well,' said she, 'Will you oblige me by emptying their sweepings into this jar and giving it to me?'

"Instinct told me that the woman was laying a trap for somebody and I walked right into it like a fool. Next time I called the third floor right woman gave me my walking papers.

"'What's wrong?' said I.

"'You have betrayed me to the enemy,' said she.

"When I got down stairs the doctor on the first floor told me what she meant by that. Both women had had a standing quarrel for years as to which was the best housekeeper. A comparison of vacuum sweepings gave the prize to the woman who had provided me with the glass jars, so of course her rival had no use for me after that."

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Charles Goodrich Whiting has retired from the place of chief literary editor of The Republican, which he has filled with distinction for some 35 years. He had previously been connected with the local news department of the paper for a considerable period. He is succeeded as chief literary editor by Francis E. Regal, who has been his associate in the work for a long time past, and Mr. Regal is succeeded in turn as associate or assistant literary editor by James Brewer Corcoran, who has been the dramatic editor for a number of years. In retiring from the active work of newspaper making Mr. Whiting will not sever his connection with The Republican. He will continue to contribute both to its literary and editorial columns, but will be relieved from the burden of office work. He is spending most of the summer at his farm in Otis.

Apropos of the near completion of the new Campanile of St. Mark's an interesting ceremony was held in Venice the other day in front of the Porta delle Carta of the Ducal palace, when the four bells which are to be placed in the Campanile were dedicated. These bells are a present from Pope Pius X. There were present at the dedication besides the mayor various members of the Venetian guilds and Cav. Monaretti, who, in collaboration with Barigozzi di Milano, designed and cast the bells in April, 1909. There were also a sprinkling of notables, including the Duca degli Abruzzi, cousin of the king, who is in command of the arsenal at Venice, and Cardinal Cavallari. The ceremony, which was partly religious and partly civic, followed the traditional exercises on similar occasions, with altar, mass, and incense.

Later President Butler intends visiting the principal cities in Europe to obtain similar information. On his return to New York he will lay the results of his mission before the Columbia authorities.

THE KING'S OATH

O'Brien to Bring Up American Request

The following despatch appears in the N. Y. World.

LONDON, July 19.—Fourteen million American Catholics, members of the Catholic federation of the United States, have sent a respectful but earnest protest to King George, pointing out that that part of the accession oath which the king takes is insulting to Catholics.

Patrick O'Brien, M. P., one of the Irish nationalist party whips, said yesterday that he would ask Prime Minister Asquith in the house of commons if he knows that this protest has been forwarded to the king.

"I shall also ask Mr. Asquith," said Mr. O'Brien, "what reply has been or will be made to this vast body of people who live under the flag of the most important power in the world which is friendly to Great Britain."

It is not likely that any answer but a formal acknowledgment of its receipt will be given to this protest, but its effect will help the government to pass the bill changing the accession oath.

King George himself, soon after his father's death, informed the ministers that he has an invincible objection to reciting the declaration which he will have to make, unless it is changed meantime, the first time he meets parliament after his accession.

BILLERICA

At a special meeting of the selectmen of the town of Billerica held last night a warrant was prepared for a special town meeting which is to be held in the town hall on August 2. The warrant contains nine articles, the most important being one relative to whether or not the town will vote to borrow nine thousand dollars payable in nine equal instalments and issue town notes therefor on one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight and nine years, and appropriate the proceeds for building a reinforced concrete bridge across the Concord river at Faulkner street, North Billerica, removing the store house of the Faulkner Mfg. Co., standing east of said street and making such changes in said street as may be necessary according to the plans presented by the committee appointed in connection with the building of said bridge." Another article is relative to borrowing the sum of $700 to instal fire escapes on the Pollard school in Billerica Centre.

There will also be an article in the warrant relative to borrowing a sum of money to be used with the amount appropriated at the last annual town meeting to build a walk for foot passengers on the southerly side of Fordway bridge. The sum voted for this work last March was $600, and according to Civil Engineer Worthington of Boston, who was here last week for the purpose of examining the premises it will take $1500 to do a substantial job.

An article relative to macadamizing a portion of River street will also come up for the consideration of the voters.

TYNGSBORO

Mr. and Mrs. Horace T. Bancroft and their daughter Persis joined the Tyngsboro colony at Salisbury beach last Wednesday.

In pursuance to a petition from John O. Heinze of the Lowell Automobile club, the selectmen have issued a call for a public hearing on July 21 at 8 p. m. in the town hall, relative to closing certain highways in the town on Sept. 15, 16 and 17.

The Misses Mansfield who have been stopping at Mrs. Celia Hunter's have returned to their home in Wakefield, Mass.

MR. MILES SURPRISED

Mr. F. Leslie Miles, teacher of piano and organ, was surprised Saturday night when a number of his friends called at his home, 41 Royal street, and presented him a sectional bookcase. The presentation speech was made by F. L. Orrell and Mr. Miles accepted it after thanking the friends and signifying his appreciation. Mr. Miles was also the recipient of a purse of money from his parents.

During the evening games, songs, etc., were enjoyed and at a late hour the party dispersed with many good wishes for Mr. Miles, and a pleasant recollection of the event.

A JAILED MAYOR

QUESTION IS CAN HE STILL HOLD OFFICE

A Springfield exchange published the following on the situation in Lawrence:

Mayor William P. White of Lawrence is now in jail to serve a three-year term on conviction of conspiracy to bribe, and the question agitates that city whether he is still mayor, or can continue to act as mayor during the remainder of the time for which he was elected. It is being pointed out that no state law covers the case. There exists no power in the governor to declare the office vacant. It is contended that under neither the laws of the state nor the charter of the city would impeachment proceedings be against the jailed mayor. The only statute which has so far been found as possibly applicable to the case is section 7, chapter 210, Revised Laws, as follows:

A legislative executive, judicial, county or municipal officer who corruptly requests or accepts a gift or gratuity or a promise to make a gift or to do an act beneficial to him, under an agreement or with the understanding that his vote, opinion or judgment shall be given in any particular manner, or upon a particular side of any question, cause or proceeding, which is or may be by law brought before him in his official capacity or as a consideration for any speech, work or service in connection therewith, or that, in such capacity, he shall make any particular nomination or appointment, shall forfeit his office, be forever disqualified to hold any public office, trust or appointment under the constitution or laws of this commonwealth, and be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than 10 years or by a fine of not more than $5000 and imprisonment in jail for not more than two years.

It will be seen that this does not fit very closely a case of bribery on the part of such a public officer to secure the removal of another municipal officer; and it was not employed in connection with the conviction and sentence of Mayor White.

There is, however, another statute which has so far not been mentioned in relation to this situation. It is somewhat similar to a provision found in Springfield's city charter and doubtless to be found in the charter of Lawrence. It is section 29, chapter 26 Revised Laws, as follows:

Except as otherwise provided by city charters, upon the death, resignation or absence of the mayor, or of his ability to perform the duties of his office, the chairman or presiding officer of the board of aldermen shall perform such duties; and if there is no such officer, or if he is also absent or unable from any cause to perform such duties, they shall be performed by the president of the common council; or, if there is no such office, by such alderman as the board of aldermen may from time to time elect until the mayor or chairman or presiding officer of the board of aldermen is able to attend to said duties, or until the vacancy is filled as provided by law.

The mayor of Lawrence is undoubtedly, within the meaning of this act, absent from his official post, and he is also doubtless unable to perform the duties of his office within the meaning of the act; and accordingly a vacancy exists whose filling is amply provided for by the statute. Section 30 of the same chapter provides that the person upon whom the mayor's duties devolve shall be called "acting mayor," and "shall possess the powers of mayor only in matters not admitting of delay, but shall have no power to make permanent appointments." These limitations, however, are of no particular consequence. Appointments which need to be made can be made ad interim, and other necessary executive acts can be performed just as if the acting mayor were the regularly elected mayor. It thus seems absurd to suppose Lawrence cannot escape from the official grip of Mayor White until the end of the year and of his official term.

It is to be noted meantime that the people of Lawrence elected this man mayor by a large plurality in full knowledge of the fact that while he was milk inspector of the city in 1893 he was found guilty of attempting to extort money from milkmen and paid a fine of $300. If the statute first quoted above was then in existence, he was plainly disqualified to run for mayor or to hold the office; and it is an amazing fact in any case that a community could be found in this state to elect a man with such a record as that to any office. The people of Lawrence deliberately invited the scandal that now shames the city, and they merit precious little sympathy.—Springfield Republican.

A GRAPE FRUIT

IT WAS DISCOVERED BY A WOMAN

Who discovered grape fruit? A writer in Leslie's Weekly says: "Few of the thousands who daily enjoy the wonderful tonic found in those big, buttercup-yellow globules that have become a breakfast necessity to Uncle Sam's discriminating children know that they are indebted to a woman for discovering the value of the once despised fruit as a table delicacy. Not more than fifteen years or so ago the grapefruit was a thing without value—a product interesting because of its decorative appearance. Now the number consumed annually in the United States exceeds 4,000,000 boxes, which means approximately a half a billion grapefruit. About one million of these are grown in Florida, from which comes the story of the grapefruit's bow to the epicurean world. The woman to whom grapefruit growers should take off their hats is Mrs. Frank Leslie. She was on a visit to Henry Plant, the builder of the East Coast railway, in Florida. James E. Ingraham was then, as now, the vice president of the road, and it was in his car that Mrs. Leslie and her party traveled. On reaching the home of Mr. Plant, the travelers were first introduced to the delights of the refreshing citric fruit, which hung in clusters on the trees, bending the branches down almost to the ground. Thousands of bushels lay on the ground under the trees, from which they had fallen. There was no market for them. Only a few of the native Floridans liked them, so the fruit that could not be eaten by Mr. Plant's immediate friends was left where it fell. Nearly every plantation in lower Florida had numbers of the grapefruit trees, and under each one was the same display of golden-yellow balls which had fallen from the branches. Passing one of these plantations, Mrs. Leslie asked the planter what he would take for his crop. 'Why, madam, there is no market for it. Nobody wants grapefruit. Help yourself.' The party helped itself, and grapefruit was thenceforth a regular part of the daily menu. So much did Mrs. Leslie appreciate the fruit that she decided to introduce it to her friends up north. She carried home several boxes, and later Mr. Ingraham sent her forty barrels, which she distributed among her friends, with instructions how to prepare them for the table. Encouraged by the unanimous praise which issued from each recipient of the fruit, Mr. Ingraham had a famous New York physician make an analysis of it and to certify to its remarkable qualities as a tonic, especially in the spring. As a result of this combined effort of Mr. Ingraham and Mrs. Leslie, a demand for grapefruit grew rapidly."

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking — none in outside heating.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat — no smell — no smoke.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

FOSS CLUB FORMED

To Advocate Eugene N. Foss for Governor

A number of prominent democrats met last evening and organized what is supposed to be the first Foss club in the state. The meeting was very enthusiastic, the prevailing sentiment being that with Hon. Eugene N. Foss as the standard bearer, a democratic victory is assured this fall. The claims of other candidates for governor were discussed and while it was believed that some of these might win, owing to general dissatisfaction over the situation, it was urged that all others owed it to the people and the party to withdraw and allow the strongest possible candidate, Congressman Foss, the father of Canadian reciprocity, to make the fight.

John J. Devine, esq., was elected president. Henry F. Carr was elected secretary.

By-laws were adopted, the main features of which are the purpose of the club "to bring about the nomination and election of Hon. Eugene N. Foss as governor of Massachusetts;" and the requisite for membership, which is as follows: "Any voter may become a member by enrolling his name and voting address with the secretary, on a roll provided for that purpose, signifying his desire to become a member of the E. N. Foss club of Lowell."

The enrollment book will be open on Tuesday, July 19, at the store of Secretary Henry F. Carr, 98 Gorham street, and voters may become members of the club by calling there and subscribing their names and addresses, or by sending their names by mail.

NEW CITY STABLE

LOWELL HAS SCHOOL HOUSES FOR SALE

Lands and Buildings Committee Would Sell Them—The Training School May Be Included

If the recommendation of the committee on lands and buildings is adopted by the city council the red flag will fly from at least three of our public schools.

The committee met last night and when the schoolhouse question was broached the committee declared in favor of selling the buildings that are no longer of use to the city for school purposes.

The committee recommended a loan order of $25,000 for the proposed stable on the city lot at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher street.

Mr. Dow said he had talked with Supt. Whitcomb about selling various of the unused schools of the city. Mr. Whitcomb seemed perfectly willing to dispose of the Fayette street school, but didn't want to lose the School street building. He favored disposing of the old Middlesex Village school, although there seems some doubt relative to the right of the city to sell this.

Mr. Qua suggested the sale of the Middlesex Village, Fayette street and old Moody schools, the money to constitute part of a fund for the erection of new schoolhouses. Mr. Byam thought that money might become part of a fund for the annual up-keep of the school furniture.

The chairman thought a communication might be sent to the school board asking the members if they had any objection to the sale of the Fayette street, old Middlesex Village, School street, the old Moody and the Training schools, and if such objection there be to state it. This was embodied in a motion made by Mr. Whittet, and it was so voted.

Mr. Dow spoke of connecting the Central street school with the Chapel street school, by steam pipes. Stoves are now used in the Chapel street school. Mr. Tarrant thought the Chapel street school ought to be closed, and an addition built on the Central street school.

Mr. Dow said the Howard street school, which is now heated by stoves, ought to have a boiler installed. A boiler would cost $150 and this could heat the building properly. It was voted to recommend the appropriation of $150 from the general treasury fund for the purchase of this boiler. Mr. Dow said it would cost more money to heat the Chapel street school than it would for the Howard street school. He considered it better to heat this school separately, rather than to connect it with the Central street school.

Mr. Tarrant moved that $200 be recommended appropriated from the general treasury fund for the purchase of a boiler for the Chapel street school.

Adjourned.

"JIM" CORBETT

Has a Man to Meet Johnson

NEW YORK, July 19.—James J. Corbett has an "unknown" under cover who he hopes will show himself fit to win the title that Jim Jeffries lost to Jack Johnson at Reno.

Hugh McIntosh, the Australian promoter who staged the fight between Johnson and Tommy Burns, has been sufficiently impressed to put out a challenge in behalf of the unknown, backed by a $5000 forfeit, to be used later as a side bet. If Johnson declines, the offer is open to any other man worthy to be considered a candidate for heavyweight honors.

Corbett refuses to make known the identity of his protege, and there is some doubt in sporting circles that he has anything more specific in mind than a desire to see Johnson whipped.

McIntosh, who is now in New York, says in his challenge:

"The unknown will be named by Jas. J. Corbett and will also be trained by him, the fight to take place in the United States, England or Australia, and I agree to offer a purse, the amount of which will exceed that offered by any other person.

"As an evidence of good faith I am willing to deposit the sum of $5000 as a guarantee that Timothy Sullivan or any other responsible person, the same deposit to go as a side bet if desired.

"The only stipulation I make is that the contest be for 20 rounds or over."

JEWELS STOLEN

DETECTIVES SEARCH FOR BOSTON WOMAN'S GEMS

CHICAGO, Ill., July 19.—Two detectives, a hotel proprietor and an entire hotel force are endeavoring to locate the $5000 worth of jewels stolen from Mrs. Francis Stanton Blake of Boston, who is stopping at De Jonghe's hotel, 45 Monroe street. The jewels have been missing since yesterday afternoon and with them one of the hotel's bell boys.

The disappearance of the valuables was first noted yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Blake, who was formerly Miss Eugenie White of this city, and daughter of Mrs. William F. White, called for the packet she had left in the hotel safe. They were not in the safe nor anywhere in its immediate vicinity.

The police were immediately called in and upon investigation discovered that one of the bell boys had been missing from the hotel since noon.

It is believed that the boy, whose room was found in confusion when visited by detectives, either was the thief or knows the circumstances of the robbery.

"I have nothing to tell you about it," said Dr. De Jonghe. "I will not say whether or not this report of a robbery is true."

THEATRE VOYONS

Notwithstanding the summer is regarded by most amusement managers as the hard season and when they retrench in their programs the management of the Theatre Voyons never finds any hard times and has even increased the expense of presenting its program during the hot season. The theatre is artificially ventilated and pure, cool, fresh air is always to be found in the theatre. A pleasing feature of the week is the talks by Herbert Leroy, who tells the story of the leading dramatic feature in a way that makes plain to everyone the most minute details of the play. His talks are neither tiresome nor poorly prepared, and they meet the approval of everyone who hears him. The feature today, "Out of the Night," written by Rex Beach, is one of the cleverest and most appealing love stories yet given to the public by the noted author. The characters are finely drawn and the story itself holds the interest every minute.

SAVE THE BABIES

Editor Sun:—

The Ascension society makes a move to save babies. Mothers with their little sick ones can spend all day in the pine grove situated in Lakeview Garden at the junction of Tyngsboro road which has been purchased by two women for the purpose of helping to save the little ones who are taken ill. A camp adjoining has been negotiated for by the society and will furnish nourishment free if necessary for mothers who have to remain with their little ones. About ninety house lots in all are now at the disposal of the society. The public will be called upon to aid some in the work. The location is ideal, and it is expected that the electric street railway company will aid in conveying mothers and their little ones at reduced rates. The present cost is very small.

TWO MEN ESCAPE

They Leaped Out From Big Quicksand

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., July 19.—The collapse yesterday of a long excavation on Vernon street and the engulfing of a caisson, with the narrow escape of workmen, have convinced the engineers that this whole section, probably many acres in extent, is underlaid with a quicksand of unusual proportions.

The problem of abolishing the nuisance of a broken sewer on Vernon street, which was ordered by the state board of health, assumed a new phase Friday when the settling of a caisson into 17 feet of quicksand near the old bank of the Connecticut river made it necessary to abandon the scheme to construct a standpipe and carry the South Main street sewage into the Connecticut river as was formerly done before the building of the big dam at Vernon set back the water.

For a number of days workmen had bee constructing a crib eight feet square. A steel caisson about three feet in diameter was being driven down. The pipe settled three feet during the first night and the presence of a quicksand was recognized.

But before any attempt could be made to sustain the sagging line of sewer, the caisson sank and the crib, which was 17 feet deep, became a boiling pot of quicksand and water. William Pentland, Jr., a plumber, and Thomas Lynch had narrow escapes.

Investigation showed it was not feasible to rescue the caisson or carry out the project.

Yesterday morning men were digging a ditch near the factory of the White River Chair company, 500 feet from the first caisson, to empty the South Main street sewer into this old line with an hydraulic siphon.

Arrangements were made about noon yesterday to test 500 or 600 feet of sewer, when the ditch that had been cribbed suddenly caved in.

Prof. J. W. Votey, consulting engineer of the state board of health, is expected here from Burlington to consult with Civil Engineer Pearson.

SHOT OLD HORSE

Agent Richardson Called to the Case

A decrepit and lame horse, attached to an old weather beaten wagon, driven by an aged man, attracted considerable attention yesterday afternoon as it passed through upper Middlesex street, and word was sent to the police station that the animal was unfit to be used and that the wagon threatened to collapse at any moment and might result in the death of the man.

Patrolman Bailey was notified and he immediately started on the trail of the outfit, but the horse must have got a good start on him for he was unable to reach it before it crossed the city line. The police of North Chelmsford were then notified and Officers James R. Gookin and G. F. Foote were soon on the trail and with the assistance of an automobile came upon the horse, wagon and man in the vicinity of Crystal Lake.

The man gave his name as David Norvitz, his age as 85 years, and said that he was on his way to West Chelmsford to get some hens. He said he was very poor and before yesterday he said the horse had not been out of the stable for three weeks.

The officers stabled the animal in Joe Gaudette's barn and notified Agent Charles F. Richardson of the Lowell Humane society of the case, and Agent Richardson hurried to the lake and talked the matter over with the owner.

Owing to the man's extreme age it was decided not to prosecute him. The owner gave his consent to the killing of his horse, and the animal was shot today.

ANOTHER BATTLE

FOR THE CONTROL OF ZION CITY

CHICAGO, July 19.—Prospects of another battle for power in Zion City are seen with the arrival in Chicago of "King" Dowie, professed brother of the late John Alexander Dowie—"Elijah II"—and claimant to the throne of a South Sea island. It is said to be the intention of the "kink" to overthrow Overseer Voliva. Overseer Voliva said last night that he would ignore the self-styled regent.

"I know of him only what I have heard," said Voliva. "As far as I am aware John Alexander Dowie had no brother."

"King" Dowie is supposed to be located at present on the south side, having arrived from Minneapolis during yesterday. With him is "Pops" Schrader who is in charge of a church in San Francisco

BOY A DETECTIVE

Saw Men on Roof Before Robbery

NASHUA, N. H., July 19.—Patrolmen Hallisey and Gaudett last night arrested Charles Diskenavitch, who is charged with breaking and entering and larceny of $52 at the home of Peter Yakavitch, 26 Pearson avenue yesterday afternoon. It is alleged Diskenavitch gained entrance through the roof and broke open a trunk.

Diskenavitch and a companion, it is charged, were seen by two boys, who pointed him out to the police in a barroom. When the police entered, it is alleged the man tried to hand a roll of bills to the bartender. The money was seized and was found to be of the same amount and the same denomination as that stolen.

When searched at the police station his pockets were found to contain eight boxes of cigarets, a large quantity of cigars and matches, a box of cartridges and a number of other articles.

PLEADED GUILTY

To Charge of Looting Freight Cars

GREENFIELD, July 19.—Hedley J. Miller of Greenfield, formerly in a position of trust on the Fitchburg road, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of larceny and was sentenced to six months in the house of correction. He was charged with breaking into freight cars and stealing shoes, cloth and other articles.

Edward J. Conway, another railroad man, who also pleaded guilty to larceny, was sent to the house of correction for three months. He was indicted on a charge of breaking and entering but Miller was regarded by the court as more of a leader.

Julius Blasberg of Turners Falls, charged with breaking and entering and also with receiving stolen property, pleaded guilty to receiving stolen property and paid a fine of $150. He was said to have purchased goods at a low price, stolen from the railroad.

William A. Dwyer of East Whately paid a fine of $400 on a liquor charge. The Franklin county law and order league got after Mr. Dwyer some months ago and secured convictions against him in the lower court on various liquor complaints. Affidavits were presented from officials in Whately and elsewhere which stated that the hotel had been burned, that Dwyer is sick, that he has left Whately, etc.

George B. Waterman of Bernardston is on trial charged with assaulting William Deitz, also of Bernardston.

WAS NO WEDDING

Girl Failed to Put in an Appearance

NEW YORK, July 19.—Believing that she was kidnapped by a rival suitor, detectives today are hunting for Mazie Cullen, 17 years old, who disappeared from her home, 10 La Grange street, a few hours before she was to have been married.

Wedding guests had assembled at the Cullen home when word came that Mazie could not be found. Her fiance, John Fernando, of 69 Bushwick street, is distracted.

All day he has urged the police to find her. Search of the hospitals revealed no trace of the missing bride-to-be, and nearby towns have been notified to be on the lookout for a pretty girl with golden hair, dressed in a black and white princess gown.

That she was carried or lured to some house and detained is the general belief. The girl carried no money when she went to St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, Leonard and Maujer streets, two hours before the ceremony was to be performed. She chatted with the priests and seemed in the best of spirits.

Passing around the corner of Leonard street she disappeared.

While the bridegroom waited he was not alarmed until he telephoned to the girl's house and found she was not there.

Wedding guests were thrown into consternation. Immediately searching parties were organized.

There was no word left in the girl's room. Her wedding dress was laid out ready to wear. Several hundred persons were at St. Mary's church. Father Crowley announced that there would be no wedding and these guests also joined in the search.

Fernando sought the aid of Captain Reidy of the Stagg street station.

Mazie and the young man had been sweethearts from childhood. Her parents say they don't know of other suitors. Friends, however, intimate that other young men have long endeavored to pay court to her.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., July 19.—Reports on the progress of the association in securing legislation affecting its interests were made at today's sessions of the Commercial Law league of America convention, which is being held here this week. The hundreds of lawyers attending the meeting also listened to several addresses on subjects of pertinent interest to them by leaders in their profession.

GIFFORD PINCHOT

SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF "INSURGENT" CANDIDATE

OAKLAND, Cal., July 19.—Gifford Pinchot arrived here today to make several speeches in California in behalf of Hiram Johnson, the Lincoln-Roosevelt league candidate for governor and William Kent, "insurgent" candidate for congress. He refused to discuss the report that Secretary Ballinger had been exonerated by the congressional committee investigating the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

Charging that the Pickett bill under the provisions of which President Taft on July 3 withdrew 8,495,731 acres of public land, contained a "joker" Pinchot said:

"The Pickett bill withdraws all this land from entry but leaves it open at all times to exploration, discovery and occupation under the mining laws of the United States so far as the same apply to mineral other than coal, oil, gas and phosphates.

There is nothing to prevent the large corporations from entering this land ostensibly for mining purposes after they have shown that they have found small quantities of gold or other metals."

It does not cost any more to have The Sun mailed to your vacation address than to have it delivered at your home. Order it sent before going away.

TRAINS STALLED

BUSINESS AT A STANDSTILL AT BURLINGTON

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 19.—All business was at a standstill in the local freight yards of the Central Vermont railroad today as a result of the strike begun last night by the conductors and trainmen of the Grand Trunk system of which the Central Vermont road is a part. All freight and express matter is received here "subject to delay." The express company which does business over the Central Vermont road today sent a large part of its shipments to St. Albans by steamer. The train due to leave Burlington for Montreal at 9.20 a. m. was an hour late in starting. It was manned by strike breakers brought here from Pennsylvania, it is said, by a professional strike-breaking contractor. There was a large crowd waiting at the station to board the train but the train pulled out of the yards and through the station without stopping for any passengers. The train scheduled to leave here at 4 a. m. did not make its trip today.

CREWS OF STRIKEBREAKERS

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt., July 19.—Manned by crews of strikebreakers, two trains on the Grand Trunk railroad whose conductors and trainmen struck last night, left here on scheduled time early today. The first train to pull out of the station here this morning was the 12.45 express to Montreal, while the other train was the 8 o'clock local for St. Albans. No demonstrations were made when the trains left the station here. It is not expected that there will be any developments made here before noon today because of the fact that no trains are scheduled to leave this station until after that time.

Anyone who wanted to go to White River Junction or to Windsor, Vt., 14 miles below here, had to walk or go over the roads in carriages or automobile today. The rails between here and Windsor belong to the Central Vermont road, but the trains over this section are operated by the Boston & Maine.

When the south morning train left here the train crew locked all the doors and windows of the cars, and no one was transported to any station on the Central Vermont road by the Boston & Maine trainmen.

NO TRAINS MOVED

TORONTO, Ont., July 19.—There has been no passenger or freight traffic out of this city by the Grand Trunk railroad today. Last night's strike order was promptly obeyed by the 500 employees of the road in this city. Conditions are identical at Hamilton, Stratford and other terminals in Ontario.

FREIGHT IS NOT TIED UP

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 19.—Little freight is tied up here as a result of the strike on the Central Vermont railroad in connection with that on the Grand Trunk lines, but some inconvenience has been caused business houses by the non-arrival of freight. The boat train carrying the mail is the only train which has come through from New London this morning. According to posted notices no passenger trains are to be run until further notice. A number of small towns get their mail through this city and the delay may cause considerable inconvenience.

NO TROUBLE IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 19.—The strike of conductors and trainmen on the Grand Trunk railroad, declared last night, had not been felt in this city early today. The Montreal passenger train that left that city last night for Boston arrived here at 8.05 this morning on time. The train came down over the regular route via Grand Trunk and Central Vermont roads by the way of White River Junction. The local officials believe that the two day passenger trains from Boston to Montreal which left here at 9 and 11.30 will go through without any delay. This statement was made following a dispatch received by the local officials that arrangements had been made to that effect.

DANGER OF STRIKE SETTLED

PHILADELPHIA, July 19.—Unless unforeseen trouble arises the danger of a strike on the Pennsylvania railroad has passed. A settlement of the wage dispute between the company and its trainmen and conductors east of Pittsburg, Buffalo and Erie probably will be effected at a conference here today before a sub-committee of the men and the division superintendents. The terms of settlement being worked out follows the award of the New York Central.

FREIGHT HELD UP

FREIGHT TRAFFIC TIED UP

MONTPELIER, Vt., July 19.—All freight traffic here was tied up tight today by the strike. Some passenger trains were running today but the crews were strike breakers or station agents and office employees. The passenger express due from Montreal at 3 a. m., arrived four and a half hours behind time with strike breakers in charge.

Six freight locomotives were laid up idle at Montpelier junction today and the "subject to delay" provision was imposed on all freight.

LAWRENCE'S MUDDLE

Brown's Appointment a Blow to Mayor White

LAWRENCE, July 19.—By the appointment, confirmation and his assuming the duties of his office yesterday of Jesse F. Brown as master of the house of correction and jail here, wherein Mayor William P. White is confined to serve three years for conspiracy to bribe, it is believed the unfortunate situation of this city's affairs will soon be brought to adjustment in the courts.

Mr. Brown as acting master, pending his permanent appointment, was largely responsible for the order denying Mayor White privileges of conducting city business from the jail. This order is regarded by many as creating "incapacity" in the meaning of the law, thereby creating a necessity for a new head to the city's executive department. Whether the step will be of a friendly nature and merely a legal form will be largely determined by the opinion promised for today by City Solicitor Murphy, who will advise the board of aldermen as to whether, in his opinion, Mayor White's conviction and confinement in jail on charge of misdemeanor deprives him of official capacity.

It has already been intimated an action may be brought in the supreme court and whatever Solicitor Murphy's opinion may be, now that it is assured Mayor White will have no further official privileges as a prisoner, there are strong assurances of an early and positive action which will insure protection to the city's interests in well grounded legal procedure.

With Acting Mayor Jordan at its head, the committee on fire department of the city government assumed the role of peacemaker last night in pouring oil on the troubled waters of that department.

Chief Engineer James A. Hamilton and the two assistant engineers, William F. Macreadie and Edward F. Toye, have been at loggerheads because of the overriding of the latter two by the chief, with the result that the assistants refused to approve a batch of bills, aggregating upward of $1800. Some of these had been authorized by the committee, while others were for "extras" and charges contracted by the chief without consulting his assistants. These bills came before the committee for consideration, in which connection the attitude of Acting Mayor Jordan toward Chief Hamilton, the effort to oust whom landed Mayor White in the house of correction, was in marked contrast to that of the imprisoned chief executive.

Because a portion of the extra charges incurred by the chief was offset by a saving made in some of the work authorized by the committee was, to the acting mayor's mind, evidence of good faith on the part of Chief Hamilton. The difference was less than $200. "I give him credit for spending the money where it was really needed," was the declaration of the acting mayor.

Assistant Macreadie said that the chief had contracted bills without proper authority and had ignored his associates, although they had asked him repeatedly to keep down expenses. The assistant engineer believed that it was a matter for the government to adjust.

Assistant Engineer Toye refused point blank to sign the vouchers unless the government indorsed the purchases.

Chief Hamilton said the talk of prospect of a big overdraft in the department was all bosh. He urged that the bills be cleared up. The committee grouped the bills which had been contracted by the chief without the sanction of his assistants, and on motion of Alderman Callahan voted to recommend their payment. The alderman explained that his object was to promote harmony among the engineers. He believed the assistants should be consulted by the chief, and he exacted the promise from the latter to do so in the future. "Anything for harmony," was the chief's expression of compliance.

Jordan Assumes Voting Right

Although Acting Mayor Jordan is not a member of the committee by appointment, he assumed the right to exercise the prerogative of the mayor to vote and divided evenly the committee on the question of accepting the new fire alarm system, which was inspected in the afternoon. The award of this contract was reported to have been one of the subjects of consideration by the grand jury which brought the indictments in connection with the manner in which Chief Hamilton is alleged to have received his appointment and the attempt of Mayor White to depose him.

Aldermen Jordan, Scanlon and Callahan and Councilman Dooley voted against acceptance, and Councilmen Keaveny, Taylor, Nugent and Noonan in favor. Councilman Keaveny questioned the right of the presiding officer to vote, but was overruled. President Jordan thought that it would be well to look into the specifications of the contract in detail before accepting the work.

To Start Building Work

The charge of Mayor White's secretary, Matthew De Grey Ripon, that Chief Hamilton employed in the fire alarm department a man who was not a citizen, was refuted by the chief, who produced the naturalization documents of Charles Higgins, showing that his final papers had been issued March 8. Councilman Keaveny moved that the committee censure the mayor's secretary, but President Jordan dismissed the subject, with the remark that it was groundless, as were many of the charges.

Acting Mayor Jordan was authorized to take the initiative toward having a beginning made upon the new ward 5 engine house, which was contracted for last year.

EYES ON MAYOR'S CHAIR

LAWRENCE, July 19.—In the event of Mayor William P. White being disqualified from officiating as chief executive because of his confinement in the house of correction for alleged conspiracy to bribe, there is a possibility of a lively contest being opened up to succeed him.

Should a special election occur, Dr. John T. Cahill, who was Mayor White's opponent last fall, is an avowed candidate, and there may be others. In discussing the situation Dr. Cahill said he considered himself the candidate of the democratic party until another was nominated, and should seek the position of mayor, if the government is called upon to make a choice.

Michael F. Cronin, who was a candidate in the democratic primaries, was less pronounced in his determination to enter a contest to be decided by the city council, but said he should be a candidate in the fall primaries.

President Thomas M. Jordan of the board of aldermen has his eye on the place and he is inclined to the opinion that it is not mandatory that the city council shall elect a mayor. He considers that the word "shall" as it appears in the section relative to the choice of a mayor by the city council is open to the same interpretation as where it refers to the duty of the mayor to preside over meetings of the board of aldermen. In the latter instance it is claimed by Mayor White's friends that the word is used in directory sense rather than a mandatory one.

So President Jordan sees no reason why he should not go on as acting mayor for the balance of the year.

BROWN BEGINS DUTIES

SALEM, July 19.—Jesse F. Brown, now acting master, succeeds the late Charles A. Stillings as master of the house of correction and jail in Lawrence. He was appointed to the position by Col. Samuel A. Johnson, high sheriff of Essex county, early yesterday afternoon and was qualified by Commissioners James Hale and George R. Lord at the clerk of court's office in this city, and at once assumed his new duties.

Mr. Brown is about 70 years old and served in the Civil war as a private in the 48th Mass. regt. Returning from the war, he served for a time as one of the officers in the house of correction at Ipswich and subsequently was transferred to the penal institution at Lawrence, where he has held varied positions in that institution for forty years. He will receive a salary of $1300 per year with house rent, fuel, etc., free.

There were several applicants for the position.

Mr. Brown has received instructions from Sheriff Johnson to treat Mayor White of Lawrence, who is serving a three years' sentence, the same as any other prisoner. Aside from visitations from counsel, Mayor White will be permitted to receive guests but once each week, according to prison rules.

BALLOON ASCENSION

PITTSFIELD, July 19.—The balloon Pittsfield with M. H. Arnold of North Adams as pilot and F. S. Hoppin and G. Von Utassy, both of New York, made a flight from here early today. The balloon soon floated out of sight in a southwesterly direction.

NO TIDINGS FROM BALLOON

CINCINNATI, July 19.—No tidings have been received from the balloon Drifter which ascended from Hamilton, O., shortly before 8 o'clock last night with Walter Collins and George Howard of Cincinnati as pilots.

The craft was not seen in this city though when disappearing from Hamilton it had ascended to a great height and was being driven toward the southwest by a thirty mile wind.

PRES. TAFT'S STAY

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—President Taft's stay in Eastport today will be brief according to plans suggested by the president and transmitted to Mayor Garnett in a communication from Secretary Carpenter. The president will go ashore during the afternoon and Mayor Garnett will take him for the motor car ride for an hour and point out places of interest in and around the city. His address will be brief and the formalities likewise.

TRAFFIC DELAYED BY ACCIDENT

BOSTON, July 19.—Traffic from Harrison square to the South station on the New Haven road was delayed for nearly an hour today. The cause of the delay was the derailment of the trucks of a car on the 8.27 morning train from Harrison square.

DIVIDEND TO CREDITORS

WASHINGTON, July 19.—A first dividend of 60 per cent, aggregating $233,000, to the creditors of the National City bank of Cambridge has been authorized by the treasury department. It will be distributed this week.

BROTHERS DROWN

In Sight of Their Friends

NEW YORK, July 19.—Two New Yorkers—Adolph Meyers, 34 years old, of 319 East 92nd street, and his brother Charles, 27, of 204 East 84th street—were drowned yesterday off New Dorp, Staten Island. Two hundred men, women and children, many of them personal friends of the victims, witnessed the accident, but were powerless to give aid.

The brothers had only gone to New Dorp beach on Saturday, bent on spending an enjoyable vacation with friends encamped there. Yesterday at about 4 p. m. Adolph proposed that they don their bathing suits and go out in a rowboat on a fishing excursion. Soon the pair, in a flat bottomed boat, were anchored 500 feet from the beach and busily engaged in their quiet sport. An hour passed, and to the friends on the beach they seemed to be thoroughly enjoying themselves.

Suddenly the swell from a passing steamer hit them and filled their boat. The men were seen to jump into the water, and their terrified friends—who knew neither of the men could swim—saw the boat slowly sink.

Several persons immediately started swimming toward the floundering men, while others shouted encouragement or ran for boats. The brothers were seen to sink, rise again, remain on the surface for a few moments and again disappear.

The police were notified, and late last night a launch was dispatched to the beach with grappling irons. The bodies had not been recovered at midnight.

BIG WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK, July 19.—When the will of Mrs. Mary E. Brinkerhoff, who died in New York last April, and who had a summer home at Irvington-on-Hudson, came up for probate yesterday before Surrogate Millard, of Westchester county, objections were filed by counsel representing Miss Mary Williams, of Lyons, N. Y., who maintained that Mrs. Brinkerhoff, who left $2,500,000 to fifty relatives and friends, had willed away money left in trust for her father, John Williams.

It developed that two heirs had not been served with notice in the Surrogate's court, and Surrogate Millard postponed the hearing until next Monday.

Mrs. Brinkerhoff left $5000 for the care of four horses and gave several thousand dollars each to servants, while some relatives were ignored.

SUNDAY DANCING

IS THE LATEST FAD IN NEWPORT SET

NEWPORT, July 19.—They play golf, tennis and other sports on Sunday in the cottage settlement, and as Saturday and Sunday nights are now about the only nights all the men of the colony can be here dancing was introduced by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas after the musicale at their cottage. It is said that other society folk will give Sunday night dances, and that the practice may be continued in New York this winter.

When golf was first played in Newport a cry was raised by some of the ministers. Now they say nothing about it, and it is not likely that they will protest against dancing, for attendance at the morning church services is larger this summer than for some years past.

When the music at the Thomas cottage was heard by hundreds of young people strolling along Bellevue avenue Sunday night—a summer custom here—Newport beauties and their escorts lingered in front of the cottage and danced on the sidewalk, while the guests within were dancing to Mr. Thomas' recent waltz composition, "La Blanche."
